Mountain Warfare Over Seven-Mile Front in West Virginia-Kentucky Coal Region Resumed

HEAVY FIRING NOW IN PROGRESS

Riflefire Heard All Along Border—Known Casualties 3 Killed, 2 Wounded

Governors of Both States Appeal to Pres. Harding for Federal Troops

WILLIAMSON, W. Va., May 13.—Mountain warfare which raged all of yesterday and intermittently through the night over a seven-mile front in the West Virginia-Kentucky coal strike region, was resumed with vigor this morning. Reports sent to Captain J. R. Brockus, of the state police, at headquarters here said heavy firing was in progress at McCarr, Ky., the eastern end of the trouble zone, and at Merrimac, W. Va., where yesterday's shooting started. Sporadic rifle fire could be heard along the West Virginia and Kentucky border at Matewan.

An unidentified man was killed on the bridge leading from McCarr to the West Virginia bank of the river this morning, bringing the known casualties to three killed and two wounded. This includes the member of the attacking party killed at McCarr last night.

News that Governor Morgan of Kentucky had requested federal troops was continued to Page 18

POLICE SEEK HUSBAND OF WOMAN FOUND DEAD IN BED IN CHEEVER STREET HOUSE

Five-year-old Son of Mr. and Mrs. John Michalakos Tells Medical Examiner He Saw His Father Strike Mother With Strap on Night She Died

Further evidence tending to indicate that Mrs. John Michalakos, alias Kalliotharakos, whose body was found in a bruised condition in a tenement at 57 Cheever street, Tuesday evening, met her death as the result of ill-treatment, was unearthed by the police and Medical Examiner, Thomas B. Smith today. Medical Examiner Smith interviewed Michalakos, five-year-old son of the dead woman, and from him learned that Mrs. Michalakos' husband struck her with a strap on the night that she died. The boy, it was learned this morning, was in bed with his mother when the body of the dead woman was found.

JOHN MICHALAKOS
Sought by the Police

The boy does not speak English and it was with considerable difficulty that the interview was made, an uncle of the child acting as interpreter. All that Michalakos remembers is that he saw his father strike his mother with a strap and apparently he is not yet aware of his mother's death, because he told Dr. Smith this morning that she would return soon. He is now living with his uncle, George Michalakos, in Cheever street.

The husband of the dead woman has not yet been located by the police. He disappeared a few hours before her body was discovered Tuesday evening. A dragnet has been laid all over New England and particular efforts are being made to locate him in the Greek centres.

Mr. and Mrs. Michalakos were married in Greece about 8 years ago and a few months later Mr. Michalakos, who also went under the name of Kalliotharakos, came to this country, locating in Lowell. A couple of months ago he sent money to his wife requesting her to join him with the boy in this city and the mother and son arrived in Lowell about six weeks ago at which time they hired a four-room tenement in the rear of 57 Cheever street. One of the rooms was used as a kitchen, a box and a board being put together and utilized as a table. There is no kitchen range, but in a corner of the room is located a very small oil stove, while on the "table" lay food and two large lamps. The room in which the body was found contains but an old iron bed with a few pieces of clothing, while the other rooms are unfurnished.

Jury Finds Alfred Fortier Guilty of Murder in 2nd Degree---Theberge Brothers Found Not Guilty

EMILE THEBERGE

LIONEL THEBERGE

ALFRED FORTIER

Alfred Fortier of this city was found guilty of murder in the second degree in the superior court in East Cambridge this afternoon.

Lionel and Emile Theberge, jointly indicted and tried with Fortier, were found not guilty.

The three men were charged with having participated in the killing of David N. Tallen, a Middlesex street storekeeper, on the evening of January 25. The trial started, with the drawing of jurors, in this city, May 4. The next day the case was adjourned to East Cambridge.

It was nearly 10 o'clock when Judge Cox began his charge to the jury. He closed at 11:21, whereupon there were requests for ruling by counsel. After explaining certain points as asked by attorneys, the jury retired from the courtroom at 11:46 o'clock and a few minutes later had entered the jury room where the exhibits in the case were brought to them.

At 2:35 o'clock the jury filed in and they had placed on a slip of paper the following question:

"Please explain to us again as you did this morning, the law as applied to the different degrees of murder?"

The judge explained in part that a murder committed with deliberately premeditated malice aforethought, with extreme atrocity or cruelty, while committing or attempting to commit a crime punishable by life imprisonment would be first degree murder. He stated that there was no evidence of extreme atrocity or cruelty, consequently the first and last clauses would be the only ones to be considered. He also explained that if the Theberges were actually in a conspiracy to commit a crime as specified above and did not withdraw from the conspiracy, they could be found guilty of first degree murder as much as though they had actually fired the shot.

The judge repeated further portions of his instructions in this connection and at 4:15 o'clock the jury filed out to resume their deliberations.

During the judge's charge to the jury Fortier preserved his attitude of indifference or lack of comprehension of the proceedings, sitting with downcast head for the most part. The Theberges, on the contrary, appeared to follow intently the words of the judge, especially Lionel.

In his charge the judge reminded the jury of their oath as to being without bias and he instructed them that they must remain with open mind up to the moment that they reach their decision. They must be ready to listen to the arguments of their fellow jurors, he said. He told of the law which allows an accused man to refrain from testifying and he said that no significance must be attached to such actions on the part of the defendants. Failure to testify must not be used against a defendant. The judge spoke of the presumption that a man is innocent until

FIRST "SLACKER" WAS A LIEUTENANT COLONEL

CHICAGO, May 13.—Discovery that William Sutherland Bacon, the first man named on the first "slacker list" released at Fort Sheridan, had in reality been a lieutenant colonel and commander of the chemical warfare service at Lakehurst, N. J., virtually has stopped further publication of the list in Chicago newspapers.

Three Chicago papers announced yesterday that until greater accuracy is attained in the lists, they will not be published.

Mr. Bacon, it was ascertained, was not only guiltless of the slacker charge but had a conspicuous record as a volunteer in the service, rising from the rank of private to that of lieutenant colonel. He is a member of the American Legion, with residence given as New York.

SECRETARY OF COMMERCE HOOVER SAYS INDUSTRY IS ON THE UP GRADE

MILITARY MASS ON THE SOUTH COMMON

A PEN PERSONALITY STUDY OF HOOVER

Secretary Hoover on the job sketched by Artist Grove of The Sun at Washington. Grove found Hoover too engrossed in public affairs to smile, yearning a bit for his war orphans, tapping his pencil constantly while he pondered and figured, and addicted to cigars of doubtful quality.

Although We Have Turned the Corner, There Are Many Loose Ends to Pick Up—High American Standards of Living Can Be Maintained

BY H. N. RICKET
WASHINGTON, May 13.—"I am convinced that we have fundamentally turned the corner."

This was the answer of Secretary of Commerce Hoover to my question: "Are things going to be better or worse industrially in America?"

Because of his knowledge of European conditions as well as the intimate touch with American business which his position gives him, Hoover is probably as well informed as any man in America in or out of office to discuss present conditions and future possibilities.

Continuing, Hoover said: "It would be foolish not to acknowledge frankly that we are in the midst of great economic difficulties. But it is infinitely more foolish for anyone to think we will not grow out of them.

"In some ways the situation is more difficult than that following the Civil war, because today our economic machinery is more intricate and less easy to adjust. Also we are dealing with a world situation and not a domestic situation alone.

"Great as our difficulties have been and are, we have much upon which to congratulate ourselves. For the first time in our history we have passed safely through a commodity crisis without monetary panic. For this we may thank the federal reserve system, which made this possible.

"Although we seem to have turned the corner, there are many readjustments to complete. Part of the bitterness of the situation arises from the inequalities in the progress of these readjustments in different walks of life, and different branches of industry.

"Much of this readjustment can be accomplished only with time and patience. Economies of hard times produce savings and great endeavor. Shrinkage in values yields more free capital. These savings in time fertilize the soil for upward progress.

"What are the chief impediments to smooth movement of readjustments?" I asked Hoover.

"There are many impediments," was the answer, "and everyone will set a different value and importance upon each of them.

"Among those daily enumerated are badly adjusted railway rates, excessive and badly adjusted taxes, insufficient tariff, high wages, high profits, high interest, restriction on effort by labor and a dozen others, while our domestic recuperation is sadly interlocked with the recovery of Europe.

Parity of Levels
"It is necessary that we approach a parity of levels in profits, prices and wages in different industries. Some groups are able to put up stronger resistance to reduction of economic levels than others.

"For instance, this resistance against lower levels in the services and commodities that the farmer must buy in the face of his very much lower returns is digging a grave of unemployment for the other industries."

"Isn't there a great lesson to be drawn from this situation?" I asked.

"There is," was the emphatic answer. "No greater lesson can be brought home to our people than that we must not only get but give gold pro in service."

"No particular economic fraction of our population can long continue recurring over-advantage without disaster to itself and the community.

"Our whole economic and moral problem, indeed our safety, our satisfaction and our happiness are balanced upon our practice of this basic fundamental in business dealings."

Signs of Readjustment
"What are some of the encouraging signs?" I asked.

TELLS OF MAKING
A "CITY BEAUTIFUL"

Various phases of civic welfare work were treated upon in an illustrated lecture given by G. W. Sullivan of Dayton, Ohio, in Colonial hall last night. He told of a large manufacturing concern taking up the welfare work as a means of protection against the damage done to its property by mischievous boys, by directing their energies into other lines, and said that it had proved profitable from a financial standpoint. Children's gardening was one of the early features of the work, and this later developed, it was stated, into a movement that had resulted in the general beautifying of the city. Unightly buildings, yards and streets had been made attractive, the speaker said, at the expense of only a few cents paid out for seeds. Particularly interesting were pictures showing a city bridge made beautiful by the placing of flower boxes along the side that are cared for by members of a Rotary club.

SUPERVISORS FOR LOCAL PLAYGROUNDS

The Lowell park commission will be allowed to select its playground supervisors for the coming summer without regard to civil service standing as a result of a conference which Superintendent John W. Keenan of the park department has had with Payson Dana, commissioner of civil service.

Unless some such arrangement is allowed, Lowell will be without a sufficient number of playground supervisors this summer as only nine Lowell people have been certified as eligible out of the 50 or more who took the examination last winter. One of these, Miss Hattie Lawler, does not wish the position.

Statistics of women's colleges show that for a period covering sixty years the average college girl of today is one inch taller than the college girl of 1860. Statistics also prove the modern girl is about seven pounds heavier.

At the military mass which is to be celebrated on the South common on the morning of Memorial day, Rev. William Farrell, former chaplain of the 103d Field Artillery, who has been decorated with the French war cross for heroism in action, will deliver the sermon.

The open air mass will probably be attended by 20,000 people, it is estimated, and it promises to be a unique feature of the memorial exercises in this city.

Invitations have been sent to the following military and semi-military organizations: Post 42, Post 120, Post 135, G.A.R.; Battery B, 2nd P.A., Gen. Adelbert Ames camp, S.W.V., Admiral Farragut camp, Sons of Veterans, Garde Sacre Coeur, Garde Frontenac, Angel Guardian Cadets, O.M.I. Cadets, Pulaski Hussars, Women's Auxiliary American Legion, 103d Women's Auxiliary, Veterans of the American Wars, Meigs Guards, Sheridan Guards, Fourth Degree Knights of Columbus, Memorial Auditorium commission, Tewksbury post, American Legion, Billerica post, American Legion, North Billerica post, American Legion, Chelmsford post, American Legion, Lawrence post, American Legion, Haverhill post, American Legion, Nashua post, American Legion, and others. Other military or semi-military organizations not appearing in this list are invited to attend in bodies without further notice.

The military mass is being run under the direction of Lowell post, American Legion, and Company S, Cadets. Rev. William Farrell, O.M.I., chaplain of the post, is chairman of the committee, and Capt. W. C. MacBrayne and Lieut. Robert Glinivan are serving with him in making the arrangements.

A platform and altar will be erected in the basin of the pond on the South common, from which the water will be drawn off. There will be reserved seats for the clergy, members of the G.A.R. and S.W.V., and other veteran organizations. The altar will be erected on the Thorndike street side of the selected area. On the right of the altar will be stationed the choir of 100, selected from the different churches throughout the city under the direction of Mr. Kelly. The U.S.C.C. military band, William Regan, director, will be located next to the choir.

On the side opposite the choir will be a reservation for the 100 gold star mothers and relatives of deceased veterans. Mrs. William H. Merritt of 292 Concord street has charge of these arrangements. It is her desire to have the altar decorated with flowers contributed by the mothers and wives of the war heroes, and also to have all the flags which were returned to the gold star mothers with the bodies of overseas soldiers used for decorating the altar. The relatives who have not been reached are requested to call Mr. Merritt at 373-11 to make the proper arrangements.

The mass will be celebrated at 10 o'clock. Reservations will be made for all organizations which attend in a body if they will notify the committee of their plans. All colors of all organizations will be massed at the altar.

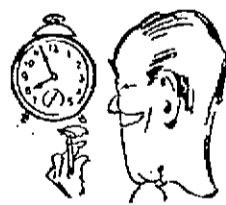

Rev. Daniel J. Keleher, Ph.D., will celebrate the mass, assisted by two Lowell clergymen as deacon and sub-deacon. The augmented choir and the band will furnish music.

At the close of the mass parts will be blown by Musicians L. F. Fox, T. J. McDermott, Frank Merritt, and Joseph Lamoureux. A salute of three guns will be fired by a section from Battery B, 2nd Field Artillery. This gun will be stationed on the upper section of the common near the Edison grammar school.

Battery B will perform guard duty on the common during the exercises. Former members of Company M will serve as ushers. The mass will be served by Sergt. L. F. Fox and Sergt. T. J. McDermott, former non-commissioned officers of Company M.

An invitation is extended to the public to attend this Memorial day service, and the sloping ground which surrounds the spot selected for the exercises will easily accommodate 20,000 people. Adequate police and military protection will be provided.

The war reduced the French population by 1,000,000.

Held in Connection With Judge's Death

TULSA, Okla., May 13.—A. P. Dickson, superintendent of a large oil refinery here, was arrested today and charges of murder had been filed against Mrs. Jesse James, nurse, and Goldie Gordon, her companion, in connection with the death of Judge John Devoreaux, former supreme court commissioner, under mysterious circumstances. Police declare Judge Devoreaux was found wounded and under the influence of poison Monday in Dickson's room at the hotel. The two women pleaded not guilty to the murder charge and were committed to jail without bond, pending a hearing Monday. An autopsy performed at the order of the county attorney disclosed that Judge Devoreaux's death probably was due to a blood clot on the brain caused by a heavy blow, and to administration of drugs.

MRS. BARRY FEELS 15 YEARS YOUNGER

Lowell Resident Says It Is Simply Wonderful How Tanlac Has Restored Her

"Since Tanlac overcame my stomach trouble, I feel 15 years younger," said Mrs. Margaret J. Barry, 52 Berkeley St., Lowell. "Nobody knows how I suffered from indigestion which I was told was caused by gastritis. Some nights I suffered so terribly I thought I would never live to see the light of another day and often I have walked the floor all night long in unspeakable agony. My nerves were all upset, even the ringing of the door-bell would sometimes start me trembling like a leaf. I had awful headaches, too, they felt like an iron band was being drawn around my head. "Tanlac has just made me feel like a different person. I have a splendid appetite and my digestion positively could not be improved upon. My nerves are normal, my headaches are all gone and I sleep all night like I used to do when I was a child. I am a well and happy woman and I owe it all to Tanlac. It's simply wonderful." Tanlac is sold in Lowell by Green's drug store, under the personal direction of a special Tanlac representative; by Wright Drug Co., Boston, Mass.; Shaw's Pharmacy, Concord, Mass., and by the leading druggist in every town. —Adv.

HUMANE SOCIETY HOLDS ANIMAL CLINIC

The first animal clinic under the auspices of the Lowell Humane society was held yesterday afternoon at the office of the society in Central street. The affair was conducted under the direction of Agent Charles F. Richardson, while the attending veterinary surgeon was Dr. W. S. Eaton, who has an office adjoining that of the society in the old Boston & Maine depot. There were not many who took advantage of the opportunity of receiving free advice or free treatment for their animal pets, but those who did attend the clinic were well satisfied with the result. So satisfactory was the clinic to Mr. Richardson that he announced he will do his utmost to have another clinic next week and will endeavor to make it a weekly event. The clinic was advertised for four o'clock, but at 2:30 o'clock the first visitors put in their appearance. In the course of the few hours that followed eight dogs, three cats, four horses and one bird were taken to the clinic. One of the dogs suffered from a tumor of the eye and it was a matter of a few minutes for Dr. Eaton to remove the tumor. Another dog was troubled with a fractured humerus as a result of being run over by an automobile. This animal was also attended to and its owner was advised as to the best way of administering treatment. A valuable English bulldog owned by a Nashua party, was taken to the police station for the purpose of being sent to the happy hunting grounds via the gas box, but the animal was later tied to the clinic, where Dr. Eaton diagnosed its case as one of dropsy. The dog will be operated upon later. Sometime after 4 o'clock a little black mongrel was taken in by two boys, who said their father instructed them that if there was no cure for the animal, to take it to the gas box. Dr. Eaton examined the "little fellow" and said it was suffering from a chronic cough. The boys left with the dog and a few minutes later returned with tears in their eyes, saying gas had done the job. The owner of the other dogs were advised as to the proper treatment necessary for their pets. A young man whose business is peddling led a bay horse to the clinic and informed Dr. Eaton that the animal, although but eight years old, was suffering from some pain in the leg and at times was practically worthless. After a careful examination of the horse's mouth the doctor said the animal was 15 years of age instead of eight. He looked the beast over carefully and diagnosed its case as one of ring bone for which there is no cure. The young man was advised to get rid of the horse. Another horse suffered from spavin and its owner was told what to do. The other two horses suffered from minor ailments. The cat's troubles consisted of fracture of the nasal bone, fracture of the frontal bone and internal injury. One of the cats was sent to the electric box, while the others were given treatment. There was but one bird at the clinic and that was a sparrow brought in by two small boys, who picked it up on the street. The little fellows wanted the doctor to do something for the little creature, but its condition was beyond treatment and a wring of the neck finished its misery. The clinic was absolutely free to all who attended it and it is hoped that more people will avail themselves of the opportunity to have their pet animals treated free at future clinics.

CHARLES F. RICHARDSON
Humane Society Agent

DROP IN BUTTER AND SUGAR PRICES

BOSTON, May 13.—Again lower food prices prevail in the food market on many standard articles. Butter is among them, the price having dropped three or four cents a pound yesterday, making the best Vermont tub butter retail at 46 cents a pound, and affecting other grades and quantities in about the same ratio. Good western butter is 42 cents a pound, while prints range from 47 to 55 cents and the unsalted prints are 65 cents a pound.

Sugar Cheaper

Sugar is lower. It is obtainable in bulk and packages at 5 cents generally, and in chain stores at 7 cents a pound. New mild cheese is 5 cents a pound cheaper and sells at 25 cents. Eggs are at last week's prices, but the probabilities are that they will be cheaper.

Hennery eggs are 53 to 55 cents a dozen, fresh pullet eggs are 42 cents, eastern eggs are 45 to 50 cents and western eggs are 39 to 45 cents. Fresh duck eggs are 60 and 65 cents a dozen. The prices of groundfish are cheaper than last week. Also fresh eastern salmon is fairly plentiful at $1 a pound. Another delicacy is fresh mackerel caught as far north as Newport. Striped bass also from Newport are 35 and 40 cents a pound. Lobsters are plentiful. Live chicken lobsters are 30 cents and larger one 25 cents a pound. Balled lobsters are 40 cents a pound. Lobster meat is $1.50 a pound and crab meat is $1.

Cod, flounders, haddock and alewives are 10 cents a pound. Lemon sole and turbot are 20 cents, fresh shrimp are 30 cents and balled ones 40 cents, weakfish and butterfish are 35 cents, also eastern halibut. Jack shad is 40 cents, roe shad 55 cents, and bluefish 50 cents a pound. Clams are 50 cents a quart, oysters are 30 cents, scallops are $1.50 and shad roe are $1.50 a pair.

The cold weather has a tendency to increase vegetable prices, especially the better grades. Lettuce is 25 cents a head with light heads bringing 20 cents. Asparagus is higher too. Native grass in small bunches is 50 and 55 cents. Large double bunches are 65 cents and Jersey asparagus is 75 cents. Summer squash are 20 to 30 cents, green and wax beans are 20 and 25 cents a quart, green peas are 15 and 20 cents a quart, cucumbers are 20 and 25 cents, scallions are 5 cents a bunch, radishes are 8 cents, silver skin onions are 10 cents a pound, bunch beets and carrots are 20 cents, spinach is 35 to 45 cents a peck, dandelions are 40 to 50 cents a peck and beet greens 50 to 60 cents.

Strike in Upper Silesia Called Off

BERLIN, May 13.—The general strike begun by the German workmen at Oppeln, Upper Silesia, in protest against the attitude of the inter-allied commission toward the Polish insurrection has been called off, according to advices from Oppeln today. Members of all the German parties including the German nationalists and the communists visited the headquarters of the commission yesterday and were assured by General Lerond, head of the commission that no negotiations with the Polish insurgents had taken place, as had been reported. He said he had asked for military reinforcements and would be glad to see British and Italian troops sent to the district.

FIND TRACES OF POISON

Mrs. Southard Held in Connection With Death of Her Fourth Husband

HONOLULU, May 13.—(By the Associated Press)—Mrs. Paul Vincent Southard was held today in connection with the death of her fourth husband, Edward P. Meyer, who died in a hospital at Eucatelelo, Idaho, Aug. 20 last. An autopsy revealed traces of poison, according to the report of physicians, which was forwarded here. Mrs. Southard was held incommunicado, although she expressed a willingness to return to the mainland without extradition. Territorial officers said arrangements for her early extradition were being made. She is the wife of a chief petty officer in the navy. She is also known by the name of Mrs. Lydia Meyer. The Southards arrived in Honolulu from San Francisco, Jan. 12. They were married in Los Angeles last November. Mrs. William Kietzer of Honolulu, who said she knew Mrs. Southard in San Francisco, said she was a "good, sweet woman." Both Mr. and Mrs. Southard are under 30 years of age. Southard denied the assertion attributed to him by the police that Mrs. Southard had sought to have him take out $10,000 worth of life insurance. He said he did not carry any life insurance and that his wife never had asked him to take out any.

Father Furnished Clue
TWIN FALLS, Idaho, May 13.—W. L. Trueblood, father of Mrs. Lydia Southard, arrested in Honolulu, charged with the murder of Edward P. Meyer, her fourth husband, furnished the clue that led to the discovery of her whereabouts. Prosecuting Attorney Frank L. Stephen said here today. Last January, the prosecutor said, the father, who had learned of the suspicious death of his daughter, asked the police against his wife concerning an accusation made against Mrs. Southard involving the theft of diamonds from Mrs. Fred James of Twin Falls, while on a trip to Los Angeles. According to the prosecutor, Mr. Trueblood inquired if any report had been received of the chemist's examination of the viscera of her fourth husband.

Mr. Stephen replied that the reports had not yet arrived, but he hoped the results would clear Mrs. Southard. "I'm afraid they will not," the father is said to have replied, tears running down his cheeks. Charges against Mrs. Southard on account of the alleged theft of the diamonds were never pressed, the county prosecutor said, but authorities made use of the information in tracing her to Los Angeles.

BRITISH MILITARY MISSION AT CHITA

RIGA, Latvia, May 13.—A British military mission has arrived at Chita, capital of the Far Eastern republic of Siberia, according to a Moscow despatch to the Latvian Telegraph Agency, which adds that recognition of the Chita government by the powers is imminent. In connection with the Far Eastern situation, a Reval despatch reports that the Prince of Oldenburg is organizing new forces in Siberia "to join General Semenov and Japan against the Bolsheviks."

Prince Alexander of Oldenburg was one of the Russian princely and ducal groups in the Revolution of 1917 supported the new provisional government, but later were driven into exile or imprisoned by the Bolsheviks. His name has not previously been associated with that of General Semenov, one of the chiefs of the anti-Bolshevik movements which have appeared from time to time in Eastern Siberia.

Railwaymen Support Striking Miners

LONDON, May 13.—(By the Associated Press)—The National Union of Railwaymen today stepped actively into the fight in support of the striking British miners, taking measures designed to prevent the transportation by rail of coal imported to replenish the nation's fuel supply, badly depleted because of the strike at the coal pits, now in its second month. The railwaymen's action took the form of a decision by the executive committee of the union that its members would not handle imported coal, no matter for what purpose it was intended. The committee further instructed the members of the union not to handle coal of any description loaded or previously handled by "blackleg" labor.

Plans Another Arctic Expedition

PASADENA, Cal., May 13.—Another expedition into the Arctic regions in two or three years is planned by Vilhjalmur Stefansson, the explorer, he announced here today. Despite the discovery of the North Pole, Stefansson said, there remains much room for exploration in the Arctic. "The center of the ice-bound regions of the north never has been reached by man," he said. "The North Pole region is 450 miles from the edge of the icy area, while the center is 800 miles from the edge. We are centering our interest on getting to the center and finding out what is there. I have no theories. It may be land or ice."

STATE CONSTABULARY

Bill Creating New State Police Force Ordered to Third Reading

(Special to The Sun)
BOSTON, May 12.—Organized labor sustained another bitter defeat in the house yesterday afternoon, when the bill creating a new state police force of fifty men—generally called a state constabulary—was ordered to a third reading by a vote of 132 to 85. The vote followed a long debate in which Rep. Andrew P. Doyle of New Bedford, leading the fight for the labor men, reminded the members of the demands of Governor Cox for economy, while members of the ways and means committee, which reported the bill, ridiculed the claims of the labor representatives that a force of fifty men, scattered all over the commonwealth, could be a serious factor in labor disturbances. Rep. Doyle read from the governor's inaugural message, in which he insisted that the constantly increasing cost of state government must be checked. He pointed out that the pending bill does not in any way coincide with Governor Cox's recommendation on the subject, because the governor asked for a "small motor vehicle patrol of inspectors, attached to the department of public works." The pending bill, he said, creates an entirely new police force.

Movie Censorship Bill
The senate, by a single vote, ordered the moving picture censorship bill to a third reading, the vote being 15 to 18. Several senators remained silent when their names were first called, but finally when all but one had responded to their names, the vote stood a tie, 18 to 18.

GIRLS! BLEACH SKIN WHITE WITH LEMON

Squeeze the juice of two lemons into a bottle containing three ounces of Orchard White, which any drug store will supply for a few cents, shake well, and you have a quarter pint of harmless and delightful lemon-bleach. Massage this sweetly fragrant lotion into the face, neck, arms and hands each day, then shortly note the beauty and whiteness of your skin. Famous stage beauties use this lemon lotion to bleach and bring that soft, clear, rosy-white complexion. Also as a freckle, sunburn, and tan bleach because it doesn't irritate.—Adv.

to 18. Then Senator Warren E. Tardiff of East Brookfield arose and announced that he would vote for the measure, making the vote stand as stated. The closeness of the vote, as well as the circumstances under which it was cast, leave the final fate of the measure very much in doubt. Senator Reed of Taunton offered in the senate yesterday an order requesting the opinion of the supreme court as to the constitutionality of the bill which passed the house early in the week, and which is known as the "Massachusetts Volstead act." Fifteen questions are propounded in the order for the consideration of the court with relation to the bill, the effect of which is practically to make all police officers in Massachusetts, both state and local, enforcers of the provisions of the federal Volstead act. This is accomplished by providing that whatever standard is adopted by congress as to alcoholic content of non-intoxicating liquors shall be considered as the Massachusetts standard, and in his order Senator Reed raised the question whether the legislature, by passing such a law, would not for all practical purposes be delegating to congress its right to make laws for the state of Massachusetts. The order was referred to the rules committee, and consideration of the bill was postponed until next Wednesday.

ADMIRAL FARRAGUT AUXILIARY
Prior to the regular business meeting of Admiral Farragut auxiliary, which was held last evening, supper was served. The business meeting was held in Memorial hall and plans for the dinner to be served to the U.S.A. and Spanish War Veterans on Memorial day were discussed. An invitation from Sister Sawyer to spend the day of June 13 at her camp was accepted. An original poem was recited by Cora Ade Thon and routine business was transacted.

Romance Perishes When Its Wings Are Clipped

LOIS WILSON, SHE'S LEADING WOMAN IN "THE LOST ROMANCE," THE MOST POPULAR LEADING MEN IN WHICH KNOBLOCK POINTS OUT OF THE SCREEN. HE HAS THE THAT VARIETY IS THE SPICE OF ROMANCE

By JAMES W. DEAN
Monotony kills romance. That's the moral of "The Lost Romance," just released.

The play is by Edward Knoblock. It points out that few humans have the disposition or temperament of plow horses. When love is taken for granted, romance flies. For romance demands change, excitement.

Sylvia (Lois Wilson) is loved by Mark, an explorer (Jack Holt), and Allen, a doctor (Conrad Nagel). The doctor wins her. The explorer goes away—but he still loves Sylvia. Sylvia and Allen live like two doves in a cot. Their happiness is complete when a son is born.

Then the years lag. Their feet tread the clasp of commonplaces. Both consider themselves martyrs. Mark returns from the jungle. Maternal duties are empty things when Sylvia realizes that Mark still loves her.

She plans to divorce Allen and marry Mark. However, differences are patched up between Sylvia and Allen. All would have gone well but Sylvia yawns as Allen is about to kiss her. That disgusts him. The breach is widened.

Sylvia again lays plans for a divorce. Then—the little son disappears. A common sorrow brings Allen and Sylvia together. Through the long, dark hours of night as they wait for the son's return they realize that they love each other as much as ever.

Mark realizes that Sylvia did not love him, because she turned to her husband in time of grief.

Denouncing Sylvia's aunt had hidden the child to bring hubby and wife together.

Funeral of Private Thomas J. Quirk, War Hero, To Be Held Here

The body of Private Thomas J. Quirk, one of the first Lowell men to give up their lives in the world war, has arrived in this country from France and will be removed this evening to the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Quirk of 1546 Gorham street, by Undertakers M. H. McDonough Sons.

Private Quirk enlisted in Co. G of the 104th Infantry, formerly the old Sixth Regiment. In June, 1917, shortly after the outbreak of hostilities, he received his preliminary training at Framingham, Ayer and Westfield and went across in the summer of 1917 with the other members of the regiment. He saw active service until February, 1918, when he was stricken with pneumonia in Soissons, France, and died Feb. 17. He was only 17 years of age at the time of his death.

Private Quirk is survived by his parents, two sisters, Irene and Mary Quirk, and one brother, John Quirk.

Was Held Up and Robbed

Continued

Once one week from today on a charge of assault with intent to rob and of robbing Lyndon Failing of School street of a watch, watch chain and knife on the evening of April 24.

According to the story told by the police, Failing, accompanied by a young woman, was walking in First street, near the old car barn, on the evening in question when he was held up by Matson, Mack and Samuel L. Campbell, who is now in the house of correction. Revolvers were displayed, according to the police. Failing's watch was valued at $50 and the chain at $10. Mack and Matson were arrested last evening by Lieut. Martin Maher. Mack's home is said to be in Lawrence.

Matson is one of the young men who appeared in police court a day or two ago on a charge of entering the Paris Lunch in Middlesex street on the evening of April 20 and stealing a safe valued at $10 and $375 in cash. He and Campbell, who also figured in the safe removing episode, were at that time each held in $1000 for the grand jury. Campbell was unable to produce the $1000 and was sent to the house of correction pending action by the grand jury. Matson was out on $1000 bail.

Mack was also charged at this morning's session with being implicated in the Paris Lunch robbery and was held in $1000 on the charge. Both men will appear in police court one week from today. The continuance was asked by the prosecution.

FOR AFTERNOON WEAR

For the informal afternoon affair the gray chiffon which Miss Billie Wedgewood of the Lady Billy company wears, is just the thing. Artificial flowers at the waist line and a generous design in silver lace give it a festive touch. The hat is of lace and straw—and could you see its top, you'd find it flower trimmed.

of Coyt that they disperse and when a volley was fired over their heads, the desperadoes state they charged at the police, who leveled their guns at the crowd. The Catholics, some of whom were women, were dazed at the action of the police, and seeing their comrades lying dead in the streets fled in panic.

The wild rubber plant is now the subject of experiments in Southern Arizona. It is hoped the ultimate result will have a decided effect in reducing the market price of rubber.

HELD CHARACTER PARTY

Entertainment by Capt. Paul Kittredge Council, A. A. R. I. R. in Y. M. C. I. Hall

The character party held last evening in Y.M.C.I. hall, Stackpole street, under the auspices of the Capt. Paul Kittredge council of the American Association for the Recognition of the Irish Republic, was a most successful affair and a substantial addition to the local Irish relief fund will result. There was a large crowd on hand and the entertainment was the most enjoyable and successful yet held by the council.

The costumes displayed during the evening helped to conceal the identity of many of those present and judges of the grand march found difficulty in selecting the winners. Miss Rose Laverty won first prize for the best woman's costume and Miss McDermott, Mrs. Leo Tansey, Mrs. Paul Choquette and Miss Helen Crane were the other prize winners. The prize winners in the men's competition were J. J. Clowery, Joseph A. Preston, Joseph McLaughlin and John Payne. These gentlemen appeared in outfits that were not only comical but quite attractive. John Payne was arrayed in colonial style and his partner personified Miss Liberty. This couple led the grand march.

Earlier in the evening an excellent program of entertainment was carried out with the following taking part: Scotch dancing, Miss Bernadette Finnegan; piano selections, Lawrence Kane; fancy dancing, Alena Redmond and Little Peggy O'Reilly; piano and violin selections, Charles T. Flood and David Connors; Irish folk dances, John J. Clowery, Mrs. O'Shaughnessy, Miss Barry, Mrs. Patrick McDermott and Mrs. Catherine McMahon; song, William Moss; song, Warren Kane. In the folk dancing contest Irish couples were represented and the rivalry excited much interest.

Mrs. Percival and Frank Redding were the accompanists for the occasion. General dancing followed and continued until midnight with the following musicians kindly offering their services: Piano, Frank Redding; violin, George Halligan; cornet, Sumner Edwards; and drums, Charles Sullivan.

The committee in charge of the affair included the following members of the council: Mrs. John J. Clowery, chairman; Mrs. Thomas McNamara, Miss Nellie O'Hearn, Mrs. Helen Curran, Mrs. E. Lyons, Mrs. Mary Curran, Mrs. Catherine McGinnis, Mrs. Michael Kierce, Mrs. O'Neill, Miss Celia Fallon, Miss Sadie Clark, Mrs. Patrick Kane, Miss Hannah Lennox, Mrs. Thomas Scullane, Mrs. Alexander Anderson, and Mrs. George Sharkey.

They were assisted by all the other members of the council as aids. The refreshment committee consisted of Mrs. Patrick Kane, chairman; Mrs. Thomas Scullane, Mrs. Alexander Anderson and Mrs. Geo. Sharkey. Patrick Kane was the interlocutor of the evening. John McGowan and Mr. Garvey were the door committee.

proven guilty. He referred to the "universal kindness of the law," and said that it holds that "every man does right until the contrary appears."

He said that the fact that the grand jury returned indictments against the prisoners must not be considered as having any weight. He defined the various necessary factors entering into murder in the first degree. He said that when there is a specific intent to take life or to do an unlawful act, which naturally would cause the taking of life, there is malice aforethought. He said that it is immaterial to show that a man has any particular motive, but if a motive is shown it is evidence of intent. He told the jury that they are to find the degree of murder, if murder is found at all.

All Equally Guilty

He said that if all the prisoners or any of them conspired to rob the deceased and that in progress of a common design to rob the conspirators being present, all found guilty, are guilty in the first degree. He stated that the commonwealth is not required to show deliberate premeditation in a case in course of which robbery with assault or putting in fear armed or unarmed, result in a murder. He said it was important for the jury to be satisfied that the Theberges were found with Fortier in a common undertaking, if they are to be considered guilty. He informed the jury that mere flight by the Theberges would not save them from responsibility if they were actually members of a conspiracy and were there to aid.

Fortier, he said, according to his understanding, could not be found guilty of manslaughter, for if mentally sound and found guilty, it would be first or second degree.

The judge stated that it was for the jury to decide whether the alleged confessions were obtained by the police through violence or inducement. He said it was not necessary, according to law, to warn the prisoners of their rights to make a confession valid, except that it would bear on whether the confession was voluntary. He also stated that no prisoner can be bound by the statement of other prisoners even if he is present unless he assents.

Fortier's Mental Condition

The judge then took up the mental condition of Fortier. He said that if the prisoner knows that his act is against justice and right, and is wrong, and criminal, he is responsible. Partial insanity does not exempt him if he is aware of his act. He pointed out that the evidence showed "want of mind," rather than insane delusions. His Honor spoke of the fate of the prisoner being on one hand and the fate of society on the other, and said that this made it most necessary for a correct conclusion by the jury.

He warned the jury that discussions by counsel were not evidence, although, he said, he made this statement with the thought of criticism a long distance from his mind. He instructed the jury in the manner of announcing their verdict and finding.

A conference at the bench resulted in the jury being allowed to take a typewritten copy of Mr. Goldman's note of statements by the prisoners, with them to the jury room. The judge explained that if the jury was convinced that Fortier being of sufficient sound mind to be responsible for his act, killed the deceased, the murder, if it was a murder, could be first or second degree. The only other verdict in his case could be not guilty by reason of insanity. The Theberges' decision, however, could be first or second degree or manslaughter, or not guilty.

He pointed out to the jurors that the consequences of their decision are as for defendant, Lionel Theberge at the momentous to the community as to the prisoners and he admonished them not to be misled by appeals on one side or the other, but only by the evidence.

Arguments Made

Atty. O'Neill resumed his argument for defendant, Lionel Theberge at the close of the noon recess yesterday. He asked why the district attorney's office hasn't sent Mr. Boudreau to Canada to trace the "fourth man" in the case, when he was despatched thither to secure the presence of Dr. Maras. He referred to Officer Joseph Clark as

MEXICO WILL NOT SIGN

by United States

MEXICO CITY, May 13.—Mexico cannot and will not sign a formal protocol as a condition to recognition by the United States, President Obregon announced today in referring to Pres. Harding's policy, as outlined in despatches received here on Tuesday. He said he had received letters recently from friends in Washington, who assured him they saw in President Harding, Secretary of State Hughes and Assistant Secretary of State Fletcher, three men with extremely cordial feelings toward Mexico, who apparently were inclined to establish relations between the two countries.

Although President Obregon has insisted that this government cannot sign a formal treaty, or protocol, it is known here that an informal exchange of communications between the two governments which would be tantamount to formal conferences, would not be rejected by the Mexican government. Friends of President Obregon assert that he is willing to give the United States any information it desires relative to conditions in Mexico. Assurances have been given as to safeguards and guarantees for foreign investments and various public declarations by President Obregon indicate he believes such assurances are ample and sufficient to prove the nation's stability and its right to recognition.

Referring to Great Britain's evident intention to withhold recognition until safeguards are given, the foreign office states that the Mexican government wishes at all times to return all confiscated property to its legitimate owners and to pay for damages suffered during revolutions.

"Not for one moment," the statement added, "does the Mexican government wish to abrogate its promises much less to appropriate goods belonging to another, either a foreigner or a Mexican."

ACUTE LABOR SHORTAGE

Great Sugar, Pineapple and Coffee Plantations in Hawaii Facing Extinction

HONOLULU, April 25. (Delayed)—By Associated Press.—The sugar, pineapple and coffee plantations of Hawaii are facing near-extinction as the result of the most acute labor shortage in the territory's history; the rice-growing industry of the islands has been wiped out by the same cause, and the business of Hawaii is fast slipping into the grip of the Japanese, the dominating race in the territory, according to Gov. Charles J. McCarthy and Albert Horner, territorial sugar expert.

Gov. McCarthy has asked the legislature to memorialize congress requesting the lifting of immigration bars so that labor, including orientals may be imported with the provision that such importation shall be only for limited periods and shall not operate so that there will be within the territory at any time a total number of aliens of any one race more than 25 per cent of the population of the territory.

This last provision would bar the importation of the Japanese, stopped since the "gentlemen's agreement" as made in 1907 since already the number of Japanese in Hawaii far exceeds 25 per cent of the total.

So urgent do the governor and his advisers consider the situation that he has asked the legislature to authorize the creation of the Hawaiian emergency labor commission of three members to go to Washington and impress the territory's critical situation upon congress.

It has been for some time an open secret in sugar circles and in govern-

Get Ready for Street Hearing

the files without the formality of debate or consideration. Mayor Perry D. Thompson was absent from the meeting and on his return he took his associates to task for their hasty action and offered a resolution at a council meeting ordering the paving of Chelmsford street by contract. Commissioner Donald A. Murphy offered an amendment which was approved, that a hearing should be given on the subject. Whether the hearing is to be confined to the question of contract work on the street named, or the whole subject of taking highway work out of the hands of the street department will be open for discussion is not known.

Fireworks or a Fizzle

Today the question was being discussed in circles in which there is interest in street construction work as to whether tonight's hearing was likely to result in a fizzle or the setting of an elaborate display of oratorical fireworks.

It is known that there is considerable opposition to the introduction of contract work on the streets. In laboring circles, especially, there is a disposition to object to having outsiders come in and do the work that heretofore has been under the direction of the street department. One of the questions that is being asked by the workers is whether or not outside contractors would agree to pay the same rate of wages as are now being paid by the city to its street men.

The recommendations of the chamber of commerce to the municipal council provide that a clause shall be inserted in any contracts that may be entered into for street work providing that only Lowell workers, if obtainable shall be given employment, and that first preference shall be given to persons whose names are on the civil service lists of the city.

No information was obtainable at a conference of the board of directors Wednesday, Mr. Wells' instructions provide that he shall set forth the chamber's attitude on contract street work as already shown in its communication to the council, but that he shall indicate the largest response ever made to a request for an expression of opinion in a chamber referendum. All votes to be counted must be received in the chamber's rooms not later than Monday afternoon.

Wells to Appear

Secretary-Manager George F. Wells is to appear at tonight's hearing before the municipal council in accordance with instructions formulated at a conference of the board of directors Wednesday. Mr. Wells' instructions provide that he shall set forth the chamber's attitude on contract street work as already shown in its communication to the council, but that he shall be without power to commit the chamber to any other course of action than that already outlined. It is understood that Mr. Wells will not respond to any attempts that may be made to "heckle" him by persons present at the meeting, and that he will refuse to enter into any argument of discussion.

It is understood that a decision by the municipal council to have paving work done on Chelmsford street alone, or on a limited number of other streets will not halt the chamber's plans for invoking the initiative to force the council to adopt an order turning all of the new highway building over to contractors.

Spoiled Children Real Divorce Germ, Says Expert; Cure Starts at Cradle

LOS ANGELES, May 12.—Divorces start in the cradle.

They mature in the cabaret, the bridge club or the parlor of the "other woman"—But, like many another disease, the germ was already in the system.

For there is a "divorce germ," declares Mrs. N. A. Courtwright, now in charge of the city social service commission here, and she should know, for she has had the divorce disease under a microscope for many years.

And this germ, she declares, has no Latin name. It is simply this: Spoiled children.

Spoiled husbands are grown-up spoiled boys, and spoiled wives are grown-up spoiled girls, and the two make divorce.

Her Conclusion
"This is what she says: 'The average boy and girl of today is not taught poise. Self-control is not in the category of child attributes. The great sin of modern mothers is their everlasting babying of children. Kissing, kissing, kissing, when they are hungry, when they are tired, when they are angry. Kissing is supposed to be the cure-all. It is not love, I contend. It is merely emotionalism, bad for the child, bad for the mother. The modern child is obsessed with a mother's sympathy. He never learns to depend on himself, even for the smallest things.'

Mrs. N. A. Courtwright

BIG OPPORTUNITY FOR AMERICAN TRADE

J. W. Sanger, commissioner of the U. S. Department of Commerce, has just returned from China, where he made an investigation of the advertising methods of that country, with a view to the best way of advertising American goods. He had previously visited other countries of the Far East and his work, naturally, has put him in close touch with trade conditions. He has written this article on American trade with the Far East exclusively for The Sun.

By J. W. SANGER
Business economists have figured that the difference between good and bad conditions is 17 per cent.

The foreign trade of the United States in 1920 was about 17 per cent. In other words, if America was at the peak of prosperity and foreign trade was suddenly cut off, the country would drop to the pit of depression.

Those facts speak for themselves and point directly to the importance of foreign trade.

It is no longer sensible to discuss whether we shall, or shall not, enter into foreign trade. America has been in for years. And the country is bound to stay in.

The real question is: how shall we go about building up this foreign trade?

The Far East plays an important part in the answer to this! There are scores of things that the United States must get from foreign lands. And for them, we must pay in gold or goods, preferably goods.

The most profitable foreign trade is in manufactured goods, and that is what the Far East needs most. Where France, England and Italy have facilities for manufacturing, the Far East, generally, has not.

Right now there is an abundance of silk, tea and vegetable oil, that the United States can always make use of. In China, in return, China wants machinery, cotton goods and kerosene.

The main article Japan has, that America needs, is silk—the index to the prosperity of Japan. And, from this country, Japan wants machinery and raw cotton.

From the Philippines the United States can get agricultural products, and in return send finished products. Japan and the Philippines stand much higher in buying power, per capita, than China. Yet China offers wonderful opportunities to America, when you look into the future.

Right now the country is held in the background, in a trade war, because of the lack of transportation facilities. But that problem is bound to work out, in the future. The country is at work, at the present time, with the cooperation of foreign capital, on the construction of railroads.

As results come, trade possibilities are certain to improve. America can find a market, growing better all the time, in China.

Shanghai is the commercial metropolis, handling 40 per cent, of the entire total of foreign business. For the first time in the international history of China, the United States led, in 1920, in foreign trade, with that country.

Americans who have visited China return with a wonderful impression of the trade possibilities. They base their ideas on the fact that the population of China is about 400,000,000. Imagine selling, for instance, one pair of shoes to each inhabitant.

That would give the impression that 400,000,000 Chinese are just waiting for America to step in with goods. Such is not the case, however.

However, if but a small percentage of the population continued to buy an increasing amount of American goods, it would put hundreds of millions of dollars in American pockets.

Right now there is a bill, commonly known as the China act, before the senate, which if put into effect, would place the American business man on a par with business men of Britain, Japan and other foreign countries, in trade dealings with China. It would do away with income and excess profits taxes on business done by Americans in China.

Time will come when the Far East, after machinery orders are filled, will buy mostly the higher grade and more expensive articles from outside. The higher the grade, the bigger the profit.

Trade in the Far East is open right

"The consequence is evident in a variety of ways when that child grows to womanhood, or manhood, and weddeth. Neither husband nor wife has learned self-restraint nor poise nor self-sufficiency.

"I have had dozens of men, who were seeking divorce, say to me—'My wife is so unsympathetic. I could do wonderful things and accomplish something worth while if my wife would only sympathize with me and show an interest in what I am doing.'

"Pooh! Pooh! There you have the over-sympathized-with child grown into a weakling of a man.

Makes Study
Mrs. Courtwright is making a careful study of child-life and its environment.

She is noting cases in which boys and girls are being allowed to follow their own sweet will.

She is tabulating results, as the children grow, under an analytical eye.

These children are of all ages. Some of them soon will be seeking the marriage license clerk and building homes of their own.

It is her purpose to follow their destinies and to prove—at least in a few cases—the truth of her assertion.

"Spare the rod and spoil the child" was the old adage. A new one might be: "Spoil the child and point the way to future divorce court annals."

now. And it is going to get better right along. When the Chinese railroad situation is straightened out, a boom in that section is bound to come. And with the general return to normal conditions, in all Far East countries, foreign trade is on the general pick-up.

The Chinese merchant feels very friendly toward the American merchant. He stands ready to welcome trade with America, but is a shrewd buyer and will look to the best and cheapest market.

The American merchant will do well to get in strongly in the swing of trade with the Far East.

And it is well to remember that the more business—the more money—the more jobs. That's why trade with all foreign countries closely concerns every American.

BUTTERFLIES BRIGHT SPOTS DECEPTIVE
By EDWARD F. BIGELOW

The wings of butterflies are worthy of careful study.

The main framework is composed of chitinous tubes which are in reality double, the inner tube filled with air and the outer tube with blood, or what corresponds with blood, and which circulates most freely during the time that the butterfly is changing from chrysalis to insect; that is, from the time when it comes out of the pupal stage until it is the full winged insect.

After the wings are well formed the circulation of blood in the outer tubes is largely, if not altogether suspended.

These tubes, like the meshes of a net, support membranes, which are clothed on both sides with flattened, peculiarly beautiful scales, arranged in overlapping rows like shingles on a roof.

Butterflies at rest generally hold their wings rigid with their upper surface in proximity, that surface alone displaying the color pattern to the eye. There are few exceptions to this general rule, whereas on the contrary moths nearly always keep their wings widely spread.

Spots on the wings of some butterflies are their defense. For example, the eye spot of the cecropia has been thought by some persons to be one of two eyes with which the moth might frighten a bird tempted to capture it.

In South America there is a butterfly that goes so far as to slight upside down, when the big wing spots make it look remarkably like an owl.

Woe be to the adventuresome bird that would dare stick it, so the insect must think, secure in its natural camouflage.

Canada is discussing the possibilities of the musk ox as a source of wool. In the Arctic region, east of the Mackenzie river, millions of these animals are to be found foraging and thriving on a pasture which no other animal but the reindeer could live on.

preaching—especially to women—the gospel of a former day.

"The women of today must obtain a firm grip on the old-fashioned virtues of loyalty and helpfulness," says Miss Lincoln. "We glimpsed those ideals for a few fleeting seconds during the war; then the American women wrote a chapter of service worthy to stand beside the record of the women of the Revolutionary and Civil wars."

About 12,500,000 acres of the new Czechoslovak republic are given over to forest cultivation. This is approximately 30 per cent. of the republic's whole area.

Davis Tells Aim of the Labor Department

In response to many requests for a definite statement of his attitude toward important industrial problems with which the federal department of labor is expected to deal, Secretary James J. Davis gives out a prepared statement which says:

"It is a time of perplexity for us all, a time of denial, of irritation. It calls for the utmost patience and forbearance on the part of every good citizen.

"Under such conditions, and with every variety of problem laid before it, the department will lay down no fixed policy. Its policy must remain flexible, readily subject to changing conditions.

"The only policy it is possible to announce for the present is not a policy, but an aim. Our aim is toward conciliation.

"I am out to preach the doctrine of good will and fraternalism, the spirit

Less Strife This May
The first week of May developed less labor strife than any similar week in previous peace years.

May Day itself, usually a time of demonstration, passed quietly everywhere.

Besides the usual grist of minor strikes and lockouts, there were three major disputes of national interest, involving shipping, building trades and job printers.

The shipping strike, more important than most landlubbers realize, grows out of fundamental differences over conditions, although brought to a climax by wage reductions.

The building disputes in many cities are not generally as startling in their effect of work stoppage as in other years, because of slack construction.

New York and Chicago job printers and unions have signed up on a 41-hour week basis. In other cities the strike gives evidence of being short-lived, with the same termination in view as the unions.

Labor Far and Near
Unemployment shows a very slight increase, mass meetings, outdoors, held in New York by unemployed.

Paper mills generally shut down, and production tied up, by strikes due to wage cuts.

Contractors, material men and union leaders, numbering 110, indicted in Chicago for price-fixing and combinations in restraint of trade.

War department reopens decision of war labor board and Secretary Baker, awarding $500,000 back wages, during war period, ordered paid to employees of Minneapolis Steel & Machinery Company, who continued production without strike during long-drawn-out hearings. Senator Kellogg's intervention on behalf of the company is credited with causing reconsideration.

California assembly passes law forbidding use by employers of "labor spies" and "spotters" in trade unions. Penalty, $250 fine or three months in jail, or both.

Department of labor reports wage cuts in many industries, particularly among unskilled and unorganized workers.

MAY STEAL THE RAINBOW

For Day Wear, Milford, But
Black and White for Dress

BY RUTH AGNES ABELING
He smiled—ah, such a sphinx-like smile, this expert on the many style—when queried as to the direction men's fashions take to reach perfection.

Follow women," thus quoth he, surely most engagingly.
Which brought forth visions rare; astounding, of men their lissome heights surrounding, in rufes, organdies and bows, in Mayenage and Spanish clothes; the 1840 decollete, the fanciful directoire; ribbons, parasols and gashes; uneven hems, tassels, slashes.

Men always follow the feminine mode as to line and color, in so far as they dare. Thus the season will be much given to grays and browns.

Gray is the color especially approved for the business and the semi-sport suit. The smartest of the latter are herringbone tweed and have the belted back only.

For the man who expects to golf during his week-end out of town, but would "travel light," there is the semi-sport of herringbone tweed with huge patch pockets, a belted back and trousers as well as knicker. Thus with a change of one garment he may step from the links to the office and be quite correct.

Top coats, like women's dresses, are lengthening their lines. They are loose box affairs hanging from the shoulders. Homespuns and tweeds are approved materials.

Black and white for dress with gray introduced for semi-dress, is the rule. For dress the stiff white pique bosom, is correct with the white pique tie and either the poke or wing collar. The former collar is, of course, the most formal. Gloves worn for dress should be white with self backs. Links are white pearl.

With the Tuxedo man can vent a little more of his fondness for tons. His links may be smoked pearl and may sport an edge of platinum. The tie should be black. The shirt should be plaited pique and the collar of the low turn down variety.

However quiet he may be in his evening apparel, in daytime he may flirt with the rainbow. His ties, in their striped gayety, may shriek at his wife across the breakfast table, and yet be perfectly correct.

Pin stripes of color have appeared in the handkerchiefs of the smartly dressed man and shirts have taken a fancy to figures, departing from the stripes and checks.

FOR BABY

There are possibilities in the barrel hoop. Let the male member of the family cut it in one place for you, then wind it with ribbon of a desired tint, snap it across baby's crib or buggy and tie his toys on. While you are busy you will not be interrupted to pick up the things he has thrown down.

DINNER WITH JACK

Easy Thing is Usually the Correct Thing

BY RUTH AGNES ABELING
It is terrifying in prospect—that first dinner at the hotel with Jack. There are so many things which, according to their doing or not doing, make or mar the girl. With a man, it's quite different. He is forgiven for his blunders, sometimes even liked for them, because they are attributable to his masterful disregard of things in general.

But a girl—never! She must be on to all of the little niceties—especially when she is dining with Jack! In the first place, when the supercilious personage, who stands so correctly in the dining room door, directs you to the waiter to follow to your table, don't rush ahead of Jack! Remember that you have the evening before you, and in the graceful fashion of the French woman, walk beside him or just a trifle ahead of him.

If you were dining with a woman, since you are walking a trifle ahead just as you reach the table, you would take the farther chair which the attendant pulls out. But since you are with Jack take the nearest and thus give him the opportunity of easily helping you with your wraps—even though the waiter is there to assist you, Jack should show you that attention.

Ordering

As for napkins—as long as you don't tuck it under your chin—there will be no harm done! However, the absolutely correct thing for the dinner size, is to leave it in the double fold, that facilitates using it to dry your lips before drinking and thus eliminate the soiled-edged glass.

In ordering—if Jack is quite on to what he should do—he will consult your wishes on the principal foods and then order. If he leaves it very much to yourself, order moderately. The well-bred girl will not order extravagantly just because a man is paying for her meal.

Remember that when not in use, your knife should be entirely on your plate, don't let it trail from the edge of your plate to the tablecloth. And be sure that when you put your sherbet or ice cream spoon down, to eat your cake, that you put it on the plate under the cup or special service dish. A spoon should never be left in a stemmed dessert container or cup.

Perhaps the waiter will put the coffee urn with the two cups at your plate. If he does pour it for both and consult Jack as to sugar and cream. He may arrange it for Jack to serve, or may serve it himself. A clearet, with his coffee, if Jack wishes, is quite correct.

Leaving

For anger bowl service—put the tips of your fingers in the bowl, then dry them on the napkin. Then moisten the cleansed finger tips again, touch them to the napkin and pass it across your lips.

Leaving the table—give Jack an opportunity to assist you with your wraps, then either walk out beside him or slightly behind him.

There now! Your dinner is over tuck it under your chin—there will be no harm done! However, the abso-

Rev. W. B. Tutthill Formally
Placed in Charge of Eliot
Union Church

In accordance with simple, time-honored Congregationalist usages, Rev. William B. Tutthill was formally inducted into the pastorate of the Eliot Union church last night. Previous to the installation service a meeting of delegates from 17 out of the 24 churches in the Andover Association of Congregationalist churches took part in a council at which Mr. Tutthill read a paper, "Finding and Knowing God," which contained a statement of his religious beliefs, and members of the council asked him many questions. At the meeting of the council Rev. Arthur Stanley Beale of the Highland church acted as moderator and Rev.

Arthur G. Lyon of the Pawtucket church served as scribe.

At the installation service in the evening, following Gounod's "Marche Romaine," played on the organ, Rev. Arthur G. Lyon of the Pawtucket church served as scribe.

At the installation service in the evening, following Gounod's "Marche Romaine," played on the organ, Rev. Arthur G. Lyon of the Pawtucket church served as scribe.

The importance of personal religion was stressed in a sermon by Rev. Ashley Day Leavitt of the Harvard church of Brookline. The speaker said that it is the individual man that counts in the world and that God treats men individually and not collectively. He urged his hearers not to forget their personal religion in giving support to great movements.

Following the singing of "Eye hath Not Seen" by Miss Hazel P. Tutthill, the installation prayer was offered by Rev. John G. Lovell of Chelmsford. Rev. Frederick A. Wilson delivered a welcome and charge to the pastor and Rev. William A. Bartlett gave the charge to the people. The closing prayer was offered by Rev. Herbert G. Blank and, following the singing of "For All the Saints Who From Their Labors Rest," the benediction was pronounced by the new pastor.

LOWELL Y. M. C. A. MEN GUESTS IN BOSTON

Mayor Leander F. Conley of the Red Triangle Village of the Lowell Y.M.C.A. and Membership Secretary N. R. Farrum were the guests last evening of the Red Triangle Village of the Boston Y.M.C.A. at a banquet held at the Boston Y.M.C.A. The banquet was the first annual one held by the Red Triangle Villages of Greater Boston, including Lynn, Lowell, Beverly and Boston. The dormitories of these various Y.M.C.A.s have been put on a self-governing basis with a mayor and board of councilmen in charge. Mayor John Schreyer of the Boston Red Triangle Village presided at the banquet last evening, following which there was a musical program and a general good time. Mayor Conley brought the greetings of the Lowell Villagers to the occasion.

BEN TURPIN, HE DOESN'T MIND LOOKING TWO WAYS AT ONCE AS LONG AS HE CAN LOOK A STEADY CONTRAST AND A FAT BACK ROLL, SQUARE IN THE FACE.

BY JAMES W. DEAN
Ben Turpin can't look his wife straight in the face when he tries to tell her why he comes home late. When he takes friends for a spin in his car only Ben knows where they're going, because Ben looks two ways at once.

Ben's eyes became permanently crossed when he forced them into that condition 10 times a day while he was acting the part of Happy Holligan on the stage.
Ben isn't sensitive about his eyes. He made such a hit in Sennett comedies that he has been made a star. He was featured in "A Small Town Idol." His first starring vehicle will be "Love's Outcast."
As long as Ben can star and collect a star's salary on his affliction he intends to steer clear of surgeons and their knives.
"Some day when I am ready to retire and live like other people do, I'll have my eyes made like other people's," says Ben. Then I'll look the world square in the face and be straight.

Colored Photography
A. W. Peck has developed a colored photography process that seems to near perfection that a company has been incorporated to produce pictures with the process.

Peck claims to have eliminated the fringe of intense color that appears around a moving object in pictures employing two or more colors.
He also claims that his process has eliminated parallax, the failure of backgrounds to remain in color-focus.
If Peck's process eliminates these two things it is indeed near perfection, for these are the main faults of colored pictures now current on the screen.

"The Ship" in Films

275 BRITISH WARSHIPS FARRELL AS CHAIRMAN OF HAVE DISAPPEARED SHIPPING BOARD

LONDON, May 13.—Some 200 destroyers, 25 battleships, and 50 light cruisers have disappeared from the British navy during recent months. The Admiralty has issued an explanatory announcement saying the vessels were all sold to British firms for breaking up.

This statement was the result of reports circulated in America that Great Britain was making extensive sales of war craft to South American governments for eventual transfer to Japan.

"The only ships disposed of to foreign governments since the armistice," the statement said, "are the battleship Canada and two other vessels, all of which were sold to the Chilean government, for which they were originally built; one sloop to Denmark, two sloops to Portugal, and one sloop to Belgium."

WASHINGTON, May 13.—James A. Farrell, president of the United States Steel corporation, it was authoritatively stated last night, has agreed to accept temporarily the post of chairman of the shipping board and his nomination will be sent to the senate today or Saturday, together with the nominations of six other commissioners.

The acceptance, it is said, has been handed to the president with the distinct understanding that Mr. Farrell has simply been loaned to the government by the steel corporation for the purpose of reorganizing the shipping board along business lines and that when this is accomplished he will resume the office of president of the corporation.

Mr. Farrell is known to have been offered the post several times by President Harding, but has refused on the plea that he could not leave his personal affairs. Several others have been asked by President Harding to serve, but each has declared that their personal business responsibilities were of such a character that they could not be settled in time to be of any use. Carnal Thompson of Cleveland, O., declined the post yesterday.

WOULD STOP SENDING MONEY TO SINN FEIN

LONDON, May 13 (by the Associated Press).—The British government is considering the possibility of introducing legislation to prohibit the receipt of foreign money in the United Kingdom intended to promote a revolutionary movement or to sustain revolutionary propaganda. Edward Shortt, secretary for home affairs, made this announcement in the House of Commons yesterday in answer to a question.

(Note.—The move is supposed to be against so-called Sinn Fein funds sent from the United States.)

"THE NINE HUNTING CONTEST" CLOSED

More than 400 entries had been received in "The Nine Hunting Contest" conducted by The Sun in co-operation with the Merrimack Square theatre, when the closing hour of the contest came at 9 o'clock last evening. The judges immediately began their work of elimination and it is expected that the winners will be known tomorrow. Another feature of anniversary week at the Merrimack Square last evening

BOLSHEVIKI VICTORIOUS IN BRITISH COURT

LONDON, May 13.—The initial judicial decision on a case arising out of the British government's tacit recognition of the de facto government of Russia as the de facto government of Russia was given yesterday afternoon when the court of appeal covered a previous finding of the high court in the disputed ownership of a quantity of goods shipped from Russia.

The goods were confiscated by the soviet government in 1919 and sold to a firm of British importers last August.

The court of appeal found that since the soviet government had been recognized as the de facto government of Russia, it was not within the jurisdiction of the British courts to consider the justice or morality of the confiscatory order.

Because of the absence of crime in Huntington, Utah, the jail has been turned into a public library.

Gov. Morgan Appeals for Federal Troops to Quell
Disorders in Mine District

WILLIAMSON, W. Va., May 13.—The people of the upper Tug river valley where a battle raged yesterday between the forces of the state and the miners hidden in the mountains awaiting today, some news concerning the request of Governor Morgan that federal troops be sent into the district.

Captain Brooks, commanding the little force of state troopers who held the towns of Merrimack, Sprigg and Alburn had no disposed his forces late last night as to hold in check the attacking forces in the mountains. Reports from the vicinity of McCarr on the Kentucky side of the river, were that the firing continued intermittently until late in the night but there was no information that the list of casualties, one known dead and two wounded, had been increased. A report from McCarr that one of the attacking parties had been killed was not confirmed.

David Phillips and J. C. McCoy, who were arrested at Sprigg by the state police in connection with the shooting of Harry C. Staten, a state prohibition officer, soon after the firing started, it is expected, will be arraigned today at the mines. The mining towns is declared to be an outgrowth of the disturbed conditions which have prevailed along the Upper Tug river with varying intensity, since last May 19, when a party of private detectives sent to evict miners from company houses at Matewan became involved in a conflict with the people of that town. Seven detectives and three of the town's residents were killed. A strike of miners in this section was called off and has since been in progress. On two other occasions federal troops have been called into Mingo county to restore order.

GERMAN FORCES ALONG ODER REINFORCED

OPPELN, Silesia, May 13.—(By the Associated Press.)—German forces on the left bank of the Oder are being gradually augmented by the arrival of former German soldiers from Breslau and a number of known and unknown German soldiers. Several hundred security police from Hamburg and Kiel and a few from other German cities have reached Brigg, 20 miles northwest of here, and are apparently reported to be placed themselves at the disposal of German authorities.

The Poles, in the meantime, are known to be strengthening their positions with artillery, although they are not advancing. French sources declare that Adalbert Korfanty, leader of the Polish insurrection, has "headed General Loredano's instructions for the first time, and suspended his offensive."

EXERCISES IN PAIGE STREET ANNEX

The exercises which the boys of the high school regiment and the boys of the freshman class were to have held on the South common this noon in preparation for field day were held in the Paige street annex, owing to the inclement weather. The members of the girls' battalions also held their exercises indoors.

MOVIE CENSORSHIP BILL PASSED

BOSTON, May 13.—The bill for censorship of motion picture films passed its last debatable stage in the senate today by a vote of 19 to 12. It had previously passed the house. After enactment in both branches it will go to Governor Cox for signature.

said. General Pershing will direct training of the regular army and organized reserves which he will command in the event of active field operations before his retirement. He will retain the duties recently assigned to him as chief of the war staff now being organized. General Harbord, an assistant chief of staff, will take over all of the administrative details hereafter handled by the chief of staff. Mr. Weeks announced, leaving General Pershing free to direct the organization and training of the army of the United States as a whole, including the national guard and the organized reserves.

In time of war the plan contemplates that General Pershing would immediately assume command of the entire army and General Harbord automatically become chief of staff. In this way General Pershing would pass to the head of the field staff, already in process of organization, and General Harbord would take charge of the war department general staff and be entirely familiar with all the duties of the post, having performed them in time of peace.

Tincher Bill Passed By House

WASHINGTON, May 13.—The Tincher bill to regulate dealings in grain futures, was passed today by the house and sent to the senate.

SMITH COLLEGE HONORS HARVEY'S FIRST CALL ON MME. MARIE CURIE

NORTHAMPTON, May 13.—The honorary degree of doctor of science was conferred on Mme. Marie Curie, the noted French scientist, at Smith college here this afternoon by President William Allan Nelson. Mme. Curie and her two daughters arrived at the home of President Nelson at 2 o'clock, where the party was entertained at luncheon. Over 2500 people attended the convocation exercises in John M. Greene Hall, including delegations from the faculties of Amherst, Mount Holyoke, M.A.C., and other colleges.

Prof. Albert Schatz of Smith college delivered an address of welcome in French and Prof. H. Edward Wells of the chemistry department paid high tribute to the invaluable contributions made to science by Mme. Curie. In a section reserved for distinguished guests, sat Mrs. Calvin Coolidge, her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Goodhue of Burlington, Vt., and Mrs. Curie's daughters. Among the trustees attending the exercises, were George B. McCallum, treasurer of the college, ex-Governor Samuel W. McCall, Mrs. Charles Davenport of Boston, Mrs. Elizabeth Cutter Morrow and Mrs. Edgerton Parsons of New York, Paul J. Sachs of Cambridge, and Frederic M. Jones of Springfield.

DECISION RESERVED IN SHAW CASE

BOSTON, May 13.—"We cannot pick those who are to be brought here on violations and personal sensitivities cannot be considered in prosecutions," declared Assistant United States Attorney Joseph W. Keith, in argument in the alleged moonshine case against Louis Agassiz Shaw, of 8 Marlboro street before Commissioner Hayes yesterday afternoon.

Attorney Lawrence Ford, counsel for Shaw, had referred at considerable length to the "notoriety" brought upon Shaw, which he stated "would remain with him as long as he lives" all through the entrance effected by prohibition agents Kelley and Sullivan, with an alleged illegal search warrant.

"Publicity is not the fault of the court, but is due to the defendant's prominence and that of his family," retorted the federal prosecutor in his turn later.

dormance of the campaign as it will relate to Lowell and to secure permission to conduct a sale of poppies throughout the city on May 28. As is already known, the American Legion at its Cleveland convention adopted the poppy as the national memorial flower. Auxiliaries of the Legion, the G.A.R., the Service Star Legion, Daughters of Veterans, Sons of Veterans, Women's Relief Corps and other patriotic societies have passed resolutions at their recent conventions, "to recognize the poppy as the national memorial flower to be worn on Decoration day."

The American-Franco Children's league has as its purpose the aid of children of French war heroes and in order to obtain the widest possible distribution of poppies for Memorial day, the league is seeking the co-operation of at least one of the patriotic societies or women's clubs as its representative in each community. In Lowell, Mr. Walsh will lead the work and appoint his committees both active and honoraries, as well as handle the details for the sale of the flowers on the 28th.

The league feels that, while, perhaps, members of patriotic societies, have a prior right to wear the Elanders poppy, every loyal American will want to wear the flower on Memorial day, first, in memory of the boys who lie in Elanders fields, and second, as a reminder that we shall never forget the cause for which they laid down their lives.

Motion pictures showing criminals in action have been barred in Chicago.

JOHN F. DIETZ PARDONED BY GOV. BLAINE

MADISON, Wis., May 13.—John F. Dietz, who attracted nation-wide attention more than a decade ago as the defender of Cameron Dam in northern Wisconsin, was pardoned today by Gov. Blaine. Dietz was convicted and sentenced to life imprisonment for the killing of George Harp, a deputy sheriff, on Oct. 2, 1910, but the sentence was later reduced to 20 years.

Gov. Blaine in a statement said Dietz had an exemplary prison record and as a result had but another year to serve. The fact that he is now 60 years old and in poor health, were determining factors in the governor's decision, he said.

BOY SCOUTS FIND SUICIDE'S BODY

NASHUA, N. H., May 13.—As a result of the police calling out the Boy Scouts by the ringing of the fire alarm yesterday afternoon to search for Edward Jarvis, 33, of 31½ Lake street, who had been missing since Monday, the body was found last night on the Cummings farm on the West Dunstable road. He had shot himself blowing his head off with a shotgun he had borrowed just before he left on a bicycle. He started for a hunting trip. He had been sick for some time.

LOWELL, MECHANIC HILLMAN.—The next regular meeting of Lowell Mechanic Hillman, old Co. C, 6th regiment, will be held at the camp of the organization in Tyngsboro, next Sunday. The camp is located at Johnson's corner on the Merrimack river and commands a beautiful view of the river in either direction, while a large pine grove in the rear acts as a setting for the camp itself, making it a most desirable spot during the summer months. Quite a few improvements have been planned for the camp and members are requested to arrive as early as possible, as working details will be the order of the day. Transportation will be provided for all members who will meet at the army in Westford street, Sunday morning at 9 o'clock. Dinner will be served at noon, after which the regular meeting will be held. The rest of the day will be occupied by regular sports.

Sergeants eligible for the examination for a lieutenancy are Patrick J. Frawley, Hugh Maguire, Thomas McCaughy, George B. Palmer, Philip Dwyer, Peter P. McManis and Samuel J. Bigelow.

Inasmuch as there is standing an eligible list of patrolmen for promotion to sergeants, no examination will be held for this class. Mayor Thompson requested that the civil service commission expedite the matter of examination dates as much as possible.

IN POLICE COURT

William L'Ecuycr, 17 years old, was charged in police court this morning with being a subversive child and after his mother had testified that he had not worked since Jan. 1 and that she needed his support as her husband was working only three or four days a week, the court ordered a suspended sentence to the state reformatory. L'Ecuycr was ordered to go to work at once. The case of Anthony Medina, charged with threatening and non-support of wife and minor child, consumed a large part of the session and the court finally ordered a continuance of one month. In the meantime, it is expected that a settlement will be brought about.

RAILROAD INVESTIGATION

Table Showing Expenses
and Taxes From 1917 to
1920 Submitted

WASHINGTON, May 13.—A table showing what sums had been expended for railway operating expenses and taxes from 1917 to 1920, inclusive, was submitted to the senate interstate commerce committee today by Julius Kruttschnitt, chairman of the board of Southern Pacific, who appeared for conclusion of his cross-examination in connection with the committee's inquiry into the railroad situation.

The total of operating expenses and taxes for the railroad, according to the table, rose from $3,043,000,000 in 1917 to $6,047,000,000 in 1920. Salaries of general officers of the railroads in 1920 totaled $47,119,485 as against $3,043,000,000 in 1917.

Salaries of division officers remained practically stationary.

3000 CALL TO SEE QUADRUPLETS

NEW HAVEN, May 13.—Three thousand people yesterday called to see the first set of quadruplets born in this city in 20 years. The little folks lay at the home of their parents, Michael Skelton and Mrs. Michael Skelton, of 9 Olive street, while throngs of interested people called to make their acquaintance. They are ideal babies and, one woman said, "They do nothing but sleep and laugh."

The New Haven Visiting Nurse association has assumed charge of them until Mrs. Skelton is able to look after them.

COAL GAS TOMORROW

A number of new valves in the gas-making apparatus at the School street plant of the Lowell Gas Light Co. are being installed and General Manager C. H. Brichard hopes to have coal gas running through the pipes tomorrow or Sunday, he said today. The striking employees, who left their work a week ago last Saturday, continue to maintain their peaceful picketing around the plant.

Receiver for J. S. Orlor & Co.

BOSTON, May 13.—Patrick A. Duane, formerly United States marshal, was appointed receiver for the investment banking firm of J. S. Orlor & Co., today. The action was taken by Federal Judge Morton on petition of three creditors. Jordan S. Orlor, head of the firm, John D. Beyer, a former employee, and Mrs. Jane Rutland, were arrested yesterday charged with larceny of securities valued at $115,092, from Mrs. Walter K. Martin, a widow.

U. S. May Have to Come to R. R. Rescue

WASHINGTON, May 13.—Unless some way is found to increase revenues and reduce expenses, the railroad deficit will have to be met from the national treasury, Chairman Cummins of the senate interstate commerce committee declared today at hearings on the general railroad situation.

WASHINGTON, May 13.—Dr. David Jayne Hill of New York is understood to have definitely declined to be considered for ambassador to Japan and it is believed he is foremost among those now under consideration for ambassador to Germany when diplomatic relations with that country are resumed.

Samuel Gompers Sounds Warning To the Enemies of Unionism

By H. N. RICEY

WASHINGTON, May 11.—"I know something of the struggles of the tolling masses of our country. I have lived to see industrial depressions and panics, so-called. I have seen the pendulum swing both ways—to industrial revivals and activity as well and I say in all earnestness, that it won't do, it bodes no good for the enemies of the rational labor movement at this critical juncture in the affairs of the nation, to drive the bargain too hard."

The speaker was Samuel Gompers, president of the American Federation of Labor. For 40 years Gompers, now 71, has been one of the leaders of the organized labor movement in America. For 31 years he has been its undisputed leader as president of the federation.

As the one man qualified by position and experience to present labor's side of the present drive to reduce wages and to establish the "open shop," I arranged an interview with him.

The foregoing was his answer to my first question and then he continued: "Every reduction of wages is a reduction in the consuming power of the wage earners and a direct blow at the future prosperity and wellbeing of the country."

"Organized labor is not only insisting upon maintaining the present standards of wages and working conditions, but proposes to continue its struggle to further improve those standards."

"It is astounding but true that even after so great a lapse of time since the ending of the war, there is, so far as the average family is concerned, practically no reduction in the high cost of living. I will admit freely that in some commodities there has been a reduction of prices in the wholesale markets, but there has been no commensurate reduction in the retail prices at which the working people must make their purchases."

"Labor has time after time indicted the commercial interests of the country for wanton profiteering. The government continues to be impotent in the face of the criminal operations of the profiteers."

"Going hand in hand with profiteering there has been and is a shameful and undoubtedly unjustified over-capitalization of industrial and commercial projects, compelling the consuming public to pay interest in the form of inflated prices on vast sums of money, back of which there is no foundation of intrinsic value or productive capacity."

"In the face of these incontrovertible facts the workers of the country, who compose the great mass of the producers and consumers, protest against the attempt to reduce the wage level. Leaving the subject of wages and the cost of living, Gompers took up the subject of the fight against organized labor in general and the drive for the "open shop" in particular. He said:

"The titles 'open shop' and 'closed shop' are both misnomers. Employers hostile to trade unionism long ago gave to the union shop the name 'closed shop.' They also coined the term 'open shop' to describe the kind of a shop which it was their aim to operate in opposition to the union shop."

"There is such a thing as an open shop, but it is not the kind of shop that most employers mean when they say 'open shop.' Least of all, it is not the kind of a shop that is meant by enemies of labor."

"The union shop is a shop in which there is a definite agreement between the employer and the workers as an organized unit. In union shops non-union workers sometimes are employed but only when union men cannot be had."

"The non-union shop is a shop in which there is no organization of the workers and in which the workers, as a consequence, have no voice in determining the questions which affect them."

"The anti-union shop—and that is generally the 'open shop'—is a shop in which the employer pursues a militant policy in opposition to organization. It is the shop of the crusading employer, bent upon maintaining industrial autocracy."

"The kind of shop which certain employers' associations today are endeavoring to establish under the name 'open shop' is in reality the anti-union shop."

"The 'open shop' crusade is not what its name implies. It is a crusade against unionism. It is a crusade to break down the organized labor movement and to restore industrial oligarchy."

"There is no such thing as an 'open shop' campaign in America. Every person who has the opportunity to speak or to write, or to counsel his fellows should expose the fraud."

"What there is in America is a campaign on the part of autocratic employers to kill trade unionism."

"Then after a few minutes reflection, the leader of the labor movement continued: 'Suppose the organized labor movement could be wiped out of existence tomorrow, can anyone imagine what such a condition would mean with all the centralization of wealth in the hands of a few? What would be the condition of the working people be?'"

"I firmly believe that if it were possible to crush the organized labor movement, which it is not, that the possessions of the man of wealth and power would be a curse to them and anarchy would reign supreme."

"And in conclusion I want to say that now is one of the times that tries men's souls. With a vast number of unemployed, with the attempts to destroy the labor movement, and with the cutting of wages but still profiteering, the pirates in finance and business have much to answer for."

form a most interesting and powerful story. The other big feature for the week-end, "One Man in a Million," stars George Reban, said to be the greatest interpreter of foreign characters on the American screen today. A comedy and the International News round out the bill.

B. F. KEITH'S THEATRE

The speediest bill for many months, headed by Bayonna Whipple and Walter Huston, in "Shoes," is underlined at the B. F. Keith theatre for the current week. This little comedy, with a dash of philosophy to it, is quite the most distinctive of its kind yet seen here. Tom Patricio and Irene Delroy are also seconds in the week's lineup, while Jack Kenny and Emily Barry make a wholly likeable pair of entertainers, after the style of musical comedy. The word "class" is written all over them. Vincent O'Donnell, who is known as "the kid McCormack," is another performer on this bill who has bundles of talent, and the dancing act of Cooper & Lacey is a lively, well given one. Other acts on the bill are: Sutter & Dell, in a slam-bang bicycle turn, and Sankur and Sylvie in delightful acrobatics.

RIALTO THEATRE

Lionel Barrymore, star of the screen, endears himself once more in the leading role of "Jim the Penman," showing at the Rialto theatre for the rest of this week. It is his best picture taken under the distribution of the Associated Film National Pictures. The program also carries Bebe Daniels in a smart picture "She Couldn't Help It," also an Educational comedy, an episode of "Fighting Fate," and the Fox News. Don't fail to see it.

More people are killed and injured by tripping, slipping, and falling than any other cause of accidents.

AMUSEMENT NOTES

By Theatres' Own Press Agents

OPERA HOUSE

Of the many laugh-producing scenes in the great comedy, "Billy," which is being given this week by the Lowell Players at the Opera House, are the depictions of toothless Billy himself, endeavoring to hide his shortcomings when his false teeth drop out and are lost. He's terribly sensitive about it and of course he's into all kinds of trouble. Miss Priscilla Knowles, is also seen in a room that is productive of much humor, and the rest help materially.

Next week, the closing week of the season, the Players will appear in the merry musical comedy, "The Circus Girl." The management promises some surprises.

THE STRAND

Bert Ladd, one of the most sterling American screen actors, who is appearing in an adaptation of the great stage success of recent years, "Message From Mars," is seen in one of his most interesting characterizations. You should not miss it. The other feature will be Edith Roberts in "The Fire Cat," a picture filled to the brim with action and interesting characterizations. The rest of the bill will have a comedy and Weekly Good musical numbers also.

MERRIMACK SQUARE THEATRE

The dangers that confront a girl possessed of exceptional physical beauty form the central theme of "The Love of Love," the feature production at the Merrimack Square theatre for the week-end. Such a girl is "Blanche Davis," played by Betty Compson, late star of "The Miracle Man." Her irresistible charm attracts to her many over ardent admirers. Her experiences in meeting these various admirers

How to Increase Weight and Put On Solid Stay-There Flesh

What difference does it make to you how EVANS' TRIPLE PHOSPHATES builds good, solid, red-blooded, healthy flesh on your bones as long as it does it and makes you feel 100 per cent. better at the same time?

Evans' Triple Phosphates is something new and usually that ally does what is claimed for it. Start to take it today with each meal, and in four days you'll know that you are growing more robust and feel stronger and more active. Continue with the treatment faithfully for 10 days more and note with satisfaction that your nerve force and ambition does not lag but is cheerfully obedient to your wishes, that a touch of color is appearing in your cheeks and that your occupation ceases to become a task and is a pleasure. Notice that never before in your whole life have you enjoyed living as you do today. Weigh yourself at the end of one month and let the scales tell the story. Fred Howard and all good druggists have agreed to supply this, run-down, under-developed persons with the understanding that if one month's treatment doesn't give most gratifying results your money is waiting for you. But don't take it even though it accomplishes wonders in nervous digestive troubles and as a general nerve tonic, unless you really want to put on flesh and gain weight—Adv.

BIG FIRE IN LAWRENCE

Wheel Plant, Barns and Coal Pocket Burned—Loss Estimated at $300,000

LAWRENCE, May 13.—Fire, which may have been of incendiary origin, swept through the "seasoning" department of the Archibald Wheel Company on West street last night, spread to adjoining buildings and for a time threatened to get beyond all control and eat its way through the heart of the tenement district.

It is estimated that damage of more than $300,000 was done before the flames were checked by the efforts of the entire Lawrence fire department and additional engines from Andover, North Andover and Methuen.

During the height of the fire the sky was illuminated for miles around and thousands of persons were attracted to the scene. They jammed into the big vacant lot just south of the wheel plant, which was once occupied by Cuddy's arena, and the police had trouble keeping many from being injured.

The flames leaped to the barn of William J. Carroll's Sons, contractors, and the screams of imprisoned horses could be heard above the crackling of the flames. Lieutenant Edward Sirols led a detail of firemen into the blazing building and rescued 13 horses and a number of pigs before the roof fell.

Nothing seemed to stop the progress of the flames, which leaped to the concrete coal pocket of the Gage Company and set afire 150 tons of anthracite coal. A number of firemen were painfully injured when one side of the Carroll stable fell in and one man, Edward Bolton of Engine Company 9, was taken to the hospital.

The heaviest loss was felt by the wheel company. Seven storehouses were burned up and with them went 100,000 oak wheel spokes and as many hubs and rims. Most of the material had been manufactured during the war for use by the government on artillery and had never been delivered.

Tenements in Danger

Silverman's junk shop was swept into oblivion by the flames and a dwelling house on the Gage property was also damaged. The firemen worked frantically to keep the flames from spreading to the northward, where row upon row of tenements reach all the way to Manchester street and the power house of the Arlington mills partially blocks the way. They were successful in this because of the absence of a strong breeze.

Anthony Shinkonis, a watchman employed by the wheel company, declared that the flames started in a portion of the plant where it would have been absolutely impossible for them to have originated unless someone had deliberately started the blaze. Officials of the company know of no reason why anyone should have attempted to burn down the plant.

Just before the blaze was declared under control the storehouse of John Fitch, a grain dealer, adjoining the plant, caught fire and the firemen had another job on their hands.

Lurid Flames

Lurid gleams in the eastern sky called the attention of Lowell people to the blaze in Lawrence that destroyed a quarter of a million dollars worth of property and threatened to wipe out the centre of the business section about 9 o'clock last night. Preceding about a half hour there had been a glow on the horizon from a woods fire in Bracut. This pale into insignificance as the great body of reddened smoke rolled up into the air from the Lawrence blaze. The Lowell firemen were in readiness to make quick time to the scene of the fire if their assistance had been called for.

LOWELL MOOSE HOLD CONCERT AND DANCE

The tenth anniversary of Lowell lodge, 618, Loyal Order of Moose, was observed last evening with a concert and dancing party, the affair being held in Associate hall. There was a large attendance and all thoroughly enjoyed the program given. In the early part of the evening concert numbers were rendered by the orchestra and later general dancing was started and continued till a seasonable hour.

FIFTH STREET CHURCH

Tobacco Least Harmful of "Four Poisons"

LONDON, May 13.—Tobacco is the least harmful of the "four social poisons"—ten, coffee, tobacco and alcohol—according to Sir James Cantlie, the eminent surgeon, speaking here recently. "Smoke the same amount of tobacco every day," said Sir James, "and the heart will become accustomed to a certain amount. If one smokes less one day than another, he feels the effect as much as if he had smoked more." He said three days' abstinence from smoking would entirely free the system from nicotine. He condemned the cigaret.

GENERAL GUINEY COUNCIL MEETING

General Guiney council of the A.A. R.R.R. held a well attended meeting in St. Michael's guild hall late evening with President James Mullin in the chair. Thomas Delehanty reported the result of his interviews with several representatives and senators on the subject of recognition of the Irish republic. Mrs. Daniel Sullivan asked that all who plan to contribute to the cake sale to be held by the council in Gagnon's store next Wednesday leave their contributions in the Guild hall between 2 and 6 next Tuesday afternoon. The following entertainment committee was appointed: James Mullin, Mrs. Daniel Sullivan, Dennis Brasell, Mrs. Richard Campbell, Mrs. James Farrell, Mrs. Mahoney, Mrs. Dominic Molloy, Hugh Leonard, John Flannery and Miss Delehanty. Patrick Moran, John Flannery, Thomas Delehanty and Mr. Conlon spoke on the good of the order, and entertainment numbers were provided by Dennis Brasell, Dominic Molloy, Miss Nora Duddy and Miss Sullivan.

Kilbane Tells Who Should Referee and Why

By JOHNNY KILBANE

The task of selecting a referee for the Dempsey-Carpenter fight, in my opinion, is going to be a difficult one if the New Jersey officials insist that a Jerseyman be chosen.

If, on the other hand, the principals are given free rein, no better man than Bob Edgren, the stakeholder and general arbiter of conditions surrounding the articles could be found. Edgren has been a student of boxing for years, has a cool head, a good eye and keen judgment, and with it the ability of a trained athlete to get around the ring. Eddie Graney of California, probably as ever ordered a pair of fighters to break and who can tell off the seconds with the accuracy of a split-second watch, is another good man. The late Jack McGulgan of Philadelphia would have been another good "third man" as he knew every angle of the game.

Danger in Referees

The trouble with our referees of today is that they are chosen more as a favor than for their ability. Instead of being named because they are merely good fellows and stand well with the principals or the managers and the promoter, their knowledge of the duties of a referee and of the rules, they are now interpreted, should be taken into consideration. The fact that a man has witnessed many fights, has hobnobbed with fighters, managers and promoters does not make a competent referee for him.

What is needed is not a big fat fellow whose sole claim to fame is based upon the brand of rum that he may have sold before the country dried up and almost blew him away, but an active man with a ring brain. Edgren and Graney represent the highest type of the latter class.

Few Know How

Few referees of today know how to handle the boxers. They have no right to tell a boxer when and how to fight or to manhandle him in the clinches. If a boxer is deliberately running away from a fight the referee has the power to disqualify him, but if he is showing skill and generalship in warding off the attack of a dangerous opponent or playing around for an opening, the referee has no right to bellow to him, "Say, kid, if you don't fight pretty soon I'll throw you out of the ring."

Nor has the referee the right, when one man is holding with both hands and the other is fighting with one free arm to grab each by an arm and tear them apart as though he were splitting a couple of sheets of sticky flypaper. The man holding with both hands can be warned and if he continues to offend he can be disqualified, but there is no need of grabbing both men and hazing them in different sides of the ring, or by choice, of turning one man as to leave him in position to receive a possible knockout punch from his opponent.

Graney Shone

If the boxers can be convinced that the referee means business when he talks of disqualification there will be little holding. That is where Graney shone as a referee. He never went between the boxers. In fact, he rarely took his hands from behind his back. If they were locked he would say quietly and suavely, "Now, break like gentlemen, boys," and they broke, but if one failed to heed the warning he would say just as pleasantly to the offender, at the same time tapping him lightly on the shoulder, "I won't tell you again to break," and the boy to whom he spoke knew that the next offense meant disqualification.

Another great fault of the present day referee is his proneness to play to the gallery. He prefers to satisfy the house rather than to give the boxers a right deal. If a couple of boxers go in and slug their heads off two or three rounds and then are forced by exhaustion to take a rest, the bloodthirsty and uninitiated immediately jump to the conclusion that they are faking and begin to howl for more blood. The referee, in too many cases, unmindful of the condition of the boxers, but wishing to win favor with the yellers, backs at the leg, lung and arm-weary boys, "Garn an' fight or outta go." Only a fool referee, one who does not know and who does not care for the sport for sport's sake, will do that, but unfortunately, there are many of that brand.

Would Train 'Em

If it were left to me, I would compel every man who aspired to become a referee, to go through a thorough course of mental and physical training—mental training to give him judgment and knowledge of the rules and physical training to make it possible for him to get out of his own way when the going is fast and to be able to step around the ring at all times in order that all of the spectators may see what is going on within the ropes.

How Dempsey Rode on Box Cars to Championship

This story of Jack Dempsey's career has been written for The Sun by Hal Cochrane on information much of which was furnished by Dempsey himself. The rest was obtained from Dempsey's close acquaintances and official records.

By HAL COCHRANE

Chapter I

This might be the story of a champion peach picker, the history of a miner, or the tale of a hobo.

But it just naturally leads into the rise to fame of one William Harrison Dempsey.

About 10 years after Hiram Dempsey, erstwhile school teacher of Logan, W. Va., moved to the San Luis valley of Colorado, the stock paid a visit to the little Dempsey ranch, between Antonito and Manassa. Then it was June 21, 1895—that William Harrison first saw the light of day.

In the early years of his life William got bits of schooling here and there, and plenty of outdoors and fresh air. It was the latter that played a big part in his growing into the husky of the family.

Handy With Mitts

When the Dempsey tribe moved to Montrose on the western slope of Colorado, dad and mother Dempsey had six boys. They were all handy with their mitts, sometimes at milking, sometimes at peach picking, but most of the time in an athletic way.

If there was a baseball game, a football game, a wrestling match or a boxing go in the neighborhood, it was a safe bet that the six Dempseys would be on deck. William and Bernard, an older brother, usually came out on top.

Bernard leaned strongly to fistic encounters and finally dropped his own first name, prefixed that of the famous Jack Dempsey, "Nonpareil," and stepped out into the surrounding country to take on other fighters.

Bernard Pivotal Out

William watched Bernard in a lot of his battles, and he saw his older brother battle out as a prizefighter. In the meantime there was affluence to be, freestones to be picked, and cattle to be cared for on the Dempsey ranch. William was long on the peach end of it, but managed to slip away for an occasional fight with some kid in the town of Montrose.

He finally grew into the town champion. He had licked every one of the village scoundrels except one. And this one and William were buddies and had never mixed in a fistic way.

Succeeding finally William to grab off the title of "Jack," dropped by his brother, and his forth to conquer amateur battles in other towns. Jack had no money, so he took a "private car" to Delta, Colo.

Jack Runs on a Freight

"It was soft picking," as Jack now recalls it. "I simply hopped into an empty freight car when nobody was looking."

This ride, as after events will show, was the first of many that went to make up the hobo, catch-as-catch-can adventure, portion of Dempsey's rough and tumble career.

Delta held Jack's interest for but a short time. He battled in a few bouts, picked up some odd change, picked peaches, and finally headed for Lakewood, Utah, where his family had moved in the meantime.

Jack had had visions of a real money bout for some time. He soon climbed another freight and landed in Montrose. In short notice a go was arranged—his first real coin encounter.

(The next story finds Dempsey a matchmaker, promoter and principal in the first match he got any coin out of.)

A Cincinnati bank has installed a target range in the basement. Bandits will find the employees ready to receive them should they decide to visit the bank.

HAYDEN WINS THE DAILY PRIZE IN TOURNAMENT

Hayden dropped into the Crescent today yesterday and registered in the handicap bowling tournament and proceeded to scatter the pins in all directions. In three consecutive strings he piled up a total of 367 and as a result won the daily prize. Dr. Hewson with 331 remains out in the individual class for the week. He also maintains his lead in the weekly single and the weekly picked strings.

Two-men, Bray-Hayden 695, Bray-Lutender 694, Flynn-Schomborn 691, Bray-Dr. Horne 687.

Three-men, Dr. Horne-Bray-Perrin 1013, Hayden-Bray-Whitecock 990, Sullivan-Perrin-Schomborn 989, Curtin-Barnes-Dr. Hewson 979.

Daily prize: Dr. Hewson 361; weekly high single, Dr. Hewson 145; weekly three picked strings, Dr. Hewson 409.

Stanislaus Zbyszko won the mat title in his bare feet.

Clarence Rowland, manager of the Columbus team, will get a bonus if he makes a good showing. His bonus is to be stock in the club.

Bill Tilden, tennis champion, says that he has been beaten more often than any other player. That happened when he was a kid.

Whether left-handed pitchers are effective or not depends on the man to whom the left hands are attached.

Boxers, who hit hardest, get fewer challenges than the glove tappers.

Watchful waiting is the only way fans can dope the Babe Ruth-George Kelly home run race.

Yale takes the same stand against gazing opposing players that Tris Speaker does. "Down with the fog-borne," they say.

It is costing Heinie Groh money to nurse his dignity. Heinie could be drawing a $12,000 salary from the Reds if he was tougher skinned.

Scott Perry will not have another party until he wins a game for the Iowa A's.

Willard couldn't understand why people bet on Dempsey, but he found out.

Dempsey boasts a "straight front." That's where he had it on Babe Ruth.

Pop Anson admits that Ruth and Kelly would have been classed as slug-gers even in his day.

If fighters of the yesteryear could see the Dempsey show they'd doubtless say that they could lick him.

U. OF PENN. AND CORNELL TRACK MEET

ITHACA, N. Y., May 13.—Track teams of the University of Pennsylvania and Cornell will compete in their annual dual meet at Schoellkopf Field Saturday afternoon and a close battle for supremacy is anticipated. The meet will bring together two of the best representative teams of the east. Pennsylvania is favored by many students of the sport to win this year's championship at the U.C.A.A. meet at Cambridge. Cornell has won more intercollegiate track championships in the past 15 years than all of the other eastern universities and colleges combined.

Penn will bring to Ithaca some of America's fastest short and middle distance runners, including Earl Eby, Larry Brown, Alvin and Rod, a fast sprinter in Lever and a clever hurdler in Smalley. The Cornell team, while not as strong as it will be two weeks from now when it competes in the intercollegiate meet at Cambridge, has developed steadily since its participation in the Penn relays, and its supporters are confident that it will give a good account of itself against the Red and Blue.

Among the Red runners who will be seen in action are U. G. Irish, T. C. McDermott, M. E. Brown, H. E. Eason and H. V. Ross. All are members of last year's champion cross country team, who will compete in the mile and two-mile runs; Carl John, an intercollegiate place winner in the 440; H. H. Smith, another fast quarter miler; H. J. Ramsay, who has done better than six feet in the high jump; Garden, who has equalled that mark; Gouldenlock, a good pole vaulter; Davidson and Richter, sprinters; A. B. and A. H. Freeman, Vermilye, Watt and Archibald, hurdlers.

Matthew Halpin of the New York Athletic club, manager of the American Olympic team at Antwerp, will be judge of the British. The rival coaches were also prominent figures at the Olympics. Jack Moskley of Cornell as head coach of the American team, Lawson Robertson of Pennsylvania as assistant coach of the same outfit.

As the baseball team will be out of town, this track meet will be the only big athletic event at Ithaca this weekend. The baseball team last night for Eastern where it will play Lafayette tomorrow. On Saturday, Cornell will cross bats with Fordham in New York city.

Will Play Opening Game Tomorrow

The opening game of the Abbott Worsted Co.'s baseball season will be played tomorrow afternoon at a spot park, Graniteville, with the fast Boston & Maine Y.M.C.A. team as the opponents. This team is now touring the New England States and Canada and is said to be an exceptionally fast semi-pro outfit. Many former league players together with a number of college men are in the line-up. The shot will present its usual strong roster with such men as Jimmy Liston, McVey, Belleville and other fast ball core comprising its lineup. The Abbott Worsted Co. band under the direction of James P. Larkin will furnish music.

May Throws First Ball

The usual opening formalities characteristic of all leagues, were carried out, with the mayor punching the first ball, and Ernest Kimball, who has agreed to donate a cup to the winning team, receiving the chief executives of the league.

Mr. Kimball acted as a "gunner" as Supt. Kernan of the park department was scheduled to perform, but he was unable to be present. Messrs. Morgan and Grady were the officials in charge and they handled the game in a most satisfactory manner.

Frank Garrity was on the mound for the South Ends and McNulty took the rubber for the Gillespies. Garrity showed good form in the early stages of the game, as his teammates gave him a good lead to work on. He was seldom in danger. In the sixth, however, the Gillespies began to solve his delivery and as a result of their activities they piled up three runs. McNulty performed well for Charley Bird's aggregation, but received rather poor support. Jimmy Liston, R.C. star, played light field for the South Ends and while he had little to do in the outfield, he showed much class and speed on the bases. He hammered out a fine triple and scored three runs. "Bing" Falls got two hits and played well in the infield. And

Each team made six hits. Garrity issued but two passes, while McNulty gave four. Larkin also made four errors, all misplays being made in the infield. And McNulty, who was the first man to step into the batter's box, was given a ticket to first. He was thrown out at second on Phinney's grounder to Crowe. Phinney was forced at second when Brosnan stumbled out at Brown. Condon's error gave Brosnan first, with Brosnan moving to second.

Liston opened for the South Ends by working McNulty for a pass. He stole second and continued on to third on Murphy's overthrow. White also walked. Buckley hit to Brosnan and Liston scored. White was nailed trying to go to third. Falls and Breck followed with hits and Buckley scored.

Four For South Ends

In the second inning after the Gillespies had been retired without a run, the South Ends made four runs and the team batted around. A pass to Crowe, a scratch hit by Dillon and an error by Phinney on Garrity, put Crowe across the plate and left two on with none out. White's bunt went for a hit and Dillon counted. Buckley hit to McNulty, who threw to Murphy for a relay to first for a double killing. Fall singled and Liston scored. White came home on Brosnan's error on

Third Base Rookie Fills Groh's Shoes With Reds

SAMMY BOHNE, WHO IS CROWDING HEINIE GROH OUT OF THE PICTURE

Pat Moran has a knack of picking brilliant third basemen.

In Sammy Bohne, Coast league recruit, he has unearthed another jewel. Getting a man who could fill the shoes of the great Heinie Groh seemed impossible.

But the rookie Red has cut the buck. He holds brilliantly. He is a dangerous hitter, his speed on the bases is helping the run column of the team. Coupled with these baseball essentials he possesses an ideal third base temperament.

Groh is still a holdout. He has declared he'll never play in Cincinnati again.

Since then he has been stepping around in American association and Coast league company.

He hit .335 with Seattle in 1920 and stole 42 bases.

In 19 games with the Reds he has hit .257 and stole six bases. He's leading the league in the base stealing department.

Bohne is 25. He had a brief trial with the White Sox in 1915. In 1915 he finished out the season with the St. Louis Cardinals.

Since then he has been stepping around in American association and Coast league company.

He hit .335 with Seattle in 1920 and stole 42 bases.

In 19 games with the Reds he has hit .257 and stole six bases. He's leading the league in the base stealing department.

Breen's grounder. This ended the agony.

History's Gillespies

Liston's triple, followed by a passed ball, gave the South Ends their seventh and last run in the third. There was no further scoring until the sixth when the Gillespies got to Garrity and sent three across the plate. The South Ends' pitchers' shoes were hit to all corners of the common. Singles by Brosnan and Boudreau and doubles by McIntyre and McNulty, the latter one of the longest hits of the game, brought the runs. In the second half of the sixth Liston was the only man to go to bat. He walked, but at this point the game was called off on account of darkness. The score:

BOYS' WEEK

The average boy is a problem in himself. He requires careful training, guidance and restraint until he knows what he wants and how to get it by honorable means.

In Chicago, some three million people are observing "Boys' Week" as the initial step to do something really helpful for the boys of that city, said to have been generally neglected in the past.

We can imagine what the boy's idea of a week devoted to his entertainment is likely to be: Ball games, and a carnival in the great outdoors, movies, a big circus, cookies, hot dogs and ice cream without limit would hit the bill. Do not imagine that "Boys' Week" contemplates such a surfeit of good things. The aim is entirely different. The Rotary Club of Chicago has made a survey of the boy life of the city and finds that of the 325,000 boys only one-sixth are reached by constructive or educational agencies specially designed for boys. The other five-sixths have to take their chances without the aid of such activities.

The utility of these agencies would seem to be placed in doubt by the fact that the Boys' Club conducted by the Chicago Union League Foundation finds that juvenile delinquency has increased in the ward in which the club is located, about 71 per cent. in the last year.

That state of affairs has aroused the business men of Chicago to the necessity of doing something to interest and amuse the boys so as to lure them from the downward paths on which many of them have evidently made a decided start.

They intend to provide wholesome sports and development for boys in order to overcome the evil influences and associations of the congested districts.

Chicago in providing more playgrounds, more outdoor sports, and more opportunity for healthy development for boys, sets an example that other cities, including Lowell, might well follow.

The policy of developing the boy as a social asset is a wiser economy than paying for the criminal, the drifter and the loafer as community liabilities. The problem of interesting boys to the extent of keeping them on the right path and offering them all the necessary opportunities for development, is one that is very generally neglected in many cities and hence we have a great deal more juvenile delinquency than we should have.

The Chicago experiment will be watched with interest.

A CHANGE OF POLICY

Even though it had to come at the eleventh hour, the action of the municipal council in exercising its legal function to formulate the policies of all departments of the city government, will be duly appreciated.

Since a beginning had to be made somewhere, it is perhaps just as well that the street department should have been taken in hand first for direction, since street construction just now is prominently before the public. There are other departments, though, that are equally in need of general supervision and perhaps their turn will come later.

It is unfortunate that this change of heart on the part of the council did not come until the commission form of government is facing the prospect of being wiped out of existence by the adoption of a new charter.

The present charter has its defects and they are very serious ones, but it is, nevertheless, unfortunate that the results obtained under it have been much worse than they might have been, because the councils elected under it have neglected to live up to some of its best provisions.

The framers of the present charter showed wisdom when they provided that all of the important activities of the city government should be under the control and general direction of the whole council. Policies arrived at after general consideration and debate by the five members, might have had real value that would have insured something of continuity for them. Instead of carrying out the intent of the charter, the members preferred to let each commissioner run his own department in the way most likely to serve his political ambitions. The result has been that the system has been discredited and it seems quite clear that the voters are to say in the not distant future that they will have no more of it.

The present council, however, can retrieve something of the unsatisfactory reputation that it has acquired. If it will seriously buckle down to the business of working as a unit to get the street department settled in an established path that will lead to its furnishing the city with cheaper and better highways.

TO MULCT THE MOTORISTS

Hon. John N. Cole, commissioner of the state department of public works, comes out in favor of a radical increase in the license and registration fees of motor vehicles as a means of improving the state highways. At the present time these highways are in fair condition and will soon require repairs and in many cases new construction, but there is no justification for any attempt to saddle the owners of motor vehicles with the expense of making all the improvements which he thinks necessary. He believes that $30,000,000 would be required to put our state highways in good condition during the next ten years. The roads are for all classes and not for motorists in particular. Moreover, what the motorists are paying to the state at the present time should be sufficient to pay for all necessary repairs to the state highways and even for some new construction. Last year the total amount paid to the state by motorists was $4,006,834.74, while the total paid by the state for maintenance, improvement and construction of highways was but $3,822,122.92. It is further asserted that motorists paid $4,000,000 in local taxes on their machines, that they are contributing liberally to the local expenditures for highway purposes.

Thus it appears that motorists are already contributing quite largely to highway construction and up-keep and today greater imposts upon them would, in our judgment, be unfair.

But in any re-arrangement of fees, it should be remembered that the big motor trucks carrying heavy loads and doing a regular freight business are by far the most severe on roads and should be required to pay accordingly. Pleasure cars, although numerous, are not often injurious to roads properly surfaced. Good roads are desirable, but apparently Commissioner Cole has in mind a very unreasonable and unfair scheme of meeting the expenditure.

GERMANY YIELDS

Germany has finally accepted the terms of the allied ultimatum which requires the payment of thirty-two thousand million dollars. The ultimatum, of course, is the seizure of her important cities by the allied forces and the virtual administration of a considerable portion of the country by the allies until the money, or the greater part of it, shall have been paid. By her objections and protests against the size of the reparation bill at first demanded, Germany has succeeded in having it cut down by one-half; and it would appear that the best thing she can do is to make up her mind to pay the amount now fixed upon as best she can. It will never repair the damage done to France and the other nations. Germany is getting off easy compared to what France and the other nations have had to pay in the destruction of towns and cities and the loss of life which can never be restored.

It is worthy of note that Germany did not yield until after the United States, through Secretary Hughes, warned her to accept the allied ultimatum. Thus the United States played an important part in ending the diplomatic conflict as she did in bringing hostilities to a close in 1918. Yet some of the allied powers boastfully claim they did it, and that the victory would have been won even if the United States had taken no part in the war, an assertion which is contrary to the acknowledged facts and the logic of the situation.

TONIGHT'S HEARING

Tonight at city hall a public hearing will be given on the recommendation of the Lowell chamber of commerce in reference to having street paving done at a reasonable price. No such hearing is likely to attract public general interest. All that can be expected is an intelligent presentation of the case. It is not advisable to call for a vote at such a hearing inasmuch as it is an easy matter for either side to pack the meeting. What is wanted at this hearing is the arguments for and against the proposition submitted so that the public can draw its own conclusions and so that the municipal council may have reliable data for its guidance in future action.

It should be understood that this city is face to face with an emergency in street work and that the go-as-you-please method of the past few years cannot be relied upon either to give us better streets or to give us a fair return for the money expended. Under such circumstances it is in time to formulate a new policy. If the street department cannot do it, then some other agency must be drafted for the purpose.

SWAT THE FLY

Now that we are nearing the warm weather, the usual injunction is sent out to "swat the fly." Swatting the fly may be a slow means of stamping out this pest. It is a much quicker and better method to remove the cause—the breeding places of flies. The automobile has done much in this respect by eliminating the horse. Manure heaps are less frequent now than formerly, but the garbage cans and the dumps remain. It is necessary to attend to these, so as to prevent their being made the breeding places of millions of flies. It is all very well to kill individual flies, but much more important to clear away the manure heaps and the cesspools where the pest is propagated. It is a health measure that should not be neglected.

Asked for his opinion as to the probable fate of the treaty of Versailles, Senator Lodge replied, "Things cannot be done in a minute." Is it possible the senator is trying to steal the deserved reputation of Mr. Harding for indefinite vagueness?

Someone placed the line "Noted Beauty Recovers From Sickness" over a newspaper cut of Judge Kenesaw Mountain Landis. Now, which will it be, a $33,000,000 fine, or life imprisonment, if the judge has a chance to pass sentence on the guilty party?

"Do you remember when you used to see $5 gold pieces in circulation?" asks the Lawrence Tribune. Yes, and when the street-car conductors insisted they were gilded half-dimes and declined to accept them at face value.

Would not life be dull, drab and colorless indeed without a touch of hypocrisy, occasionally assuming the role of ringmaster and snatching the whip at the show under the big top at city hall?

From recent happenings at the West Sixth street station of the water department it would seem as though the city had paid $45,000 for a pump that has brought with it a high-grade hoodlum.

We expect the suggestion sooner or later that the psychopathic experts shall be subjected to a test to determine the degree of their imbecility as shown by the questions they have devised to show grades of mental development.

Whole of a Story

The fish and fish story season is open in Algiers, France. Fishermen report the capture of three whales. One was 91 feet long and weighed 59 tons, they said.

Rolling the Landlord

And now they're jumping again on the generous, patient, kind-hearted and long-suffering landlord in Chicago. They tell him he has to furnish screens for the windows in the houses of his tenants. The department of health calls attention to the city ordinance providing for this in a public notice urging citizens to aid in fighting. Officials promise to enforce it. All sympathizers with the kind-hearted and long-suffering landlords please raise their right hands.

The Better Times

When folks speak of "good old times" their minds go back to the decade between 1890 and 1900. They were the last years of the old America. In those years no one was especially worried about money and economic problems. Life ran in a fairly smooth groove. Eggs sold for about 12 cents a dozen and butter for a quarter a pound. And it seemed as though it would go on like that for ever.

But if the increase of 450 per cent in the number of high schools in the United States since 1890 means anything, it means that we are better off than that generation. The tremendous increase of high schools must be a sign of progress and a consequent desire on the part of parents to make the lives of their children richer than theirs were. In the last generation the high school was largely the well-to-do family's luxury. Today it is the preparatory school of the working class and for the most part, modern city high school has become a vocational training center. In those days a workman could not afford high school for his children. Today a workman cannot afford not to send his children to high school. Then many men liked to say that what was good enough for their fathers was good enough for their sons. Today most men say nothing is good for their children. The good old soft snuggles give us cheap butter and eggs, but it is the last generation has sharpened our vision for self-improvement and social betterment; has popularized higher education and has educated has entered the needs. These needs cost us more and make us work harder than the simple needs of the easy nineties. But they are worth working for. These are the better times.

MAN ABOUT TOWN

A correspondent sends The Sun a series of complaints relative to the condition of Broadway, School street and Walker street. He thinks there are several streets in Lowell worse than First street but they do not attract so much attention. The repair gangs once suggested by The Sun to not seem to have been authorized or if so, they have never got around to do any work.

"Misfortunes never come single spies, but in battalions," wrote Hard of Avon. Amen, yes verily, said this morning. Night before last there was a wedding reception in the residence next door to the abode in which I hang up my hat when the day's toils are over. Everyone knows what the accompaniments of a modern civilized wedding reception are. Civilized, did I say? I recant—the proper word to use is heathen, pagan, non-militic, pre-cambrian or something of the sort. Wild savages never behaved much worse in the days when the bridegroom went out and sought his bride with a stone hammer in his hand, and the whole tribe rejoiced with warwhoops, tom-tom beatings and exultations that rent the atmosphere. Perhaps some wedding reception in those latter days are very orderly and subdued affairs. If so, I do not happen to be fortunately familiar with that kind. For several hours—in fact as the society reporters used to say until "the wee sma' hours"—I listened to such a riot of noise as made the welkin ring. Cowbells were rung, tin wash boilers were beaten, sirens were sounded, auto horns were honked, and the climax was capped with unrestrained jazz music. Sleep that night? A clear store Indian would develop insomnia in similar surroundings. Then last night. First came a small concert at the home of a friend (?) at which the soprano squeaked, the baritone was hardly convalescent from bronchitis, the basso was a fit subject for an operation for the removal of adenoids, and the piano gave evidence of having been tuned by a man with an acute ear for producing discord. As soon as was consistent with a decent regard for amenities, I snaked with my tortured nerves from the bedlam of noise to my own domicile. A whole battalion of misfortunes were there awaiting me. In a room beneath my bachelor apartment some one had incarcerated seven small dogs of tender age. About midnight they lifted up their voices in one united wail of protest over something that did not suit their fancy. There was no way in which I could still the creature of squeals short of hammering down doors or breaking windows. I hope the recording angel had cotton batting in his ears and did not overhear what was said in my apartment that night. I fell asleep at 6 a. m. this morning with the canine chorus still performing with undiminished vigor. I go to my dozy couch tonight with a brief under my pillow and woe be to the producers in the neighborhood.

WANT CAR FARE REDUCED

Will Request Trustees to Reduce Fare Between Square and Lakeview

On motion of Secretary John B. Curtin, the home rule committee at its meeting late yesterday afternoon voted to request the street railway trustees to reduce the fare between Merrimack square and Lakeview park from 15 cents to 10 cents for the period from May 26 to Labor day, inclusive. Last year the trustees put this reduced rate in effect during the summer months and, according to Manager Thomas Lees, it was a paying proposition.

Secretary Curtin, in making his motion characterized Lakeview as "the poor man's beach" and said that Lowell people showed their appreciation of the reduction in fare last year.

The committee also voted to meet only once a month during June, July and August, instead of twice a month as at present. The committee will meet on the final Thursday of each of those months.

Chairman John E. Sullivan asked Mr. Lees what had been done relative to the placing of signs in Merrimack square telling in what direction cars for the various parts of the city left and also their leaving time. The suggestion to have the signs placed there had been made by Mr. Hobson at a previous meeting.

Manager Lees said that he had taken the matter up with a local sign painting concern. He explained that it would be out of the question to have on the signs the time of leaving of each car because of the tremendous amount of space that it would take up. He said that under the present plan four signs would be required, one in front of The Sun building, one in front of the Sun building, one in front of the Sun building, one in front of the Sun building. On each sign would be printed the directions: "Take cars for" whatever routes left that particular place.

Mr. Hobson said that he felt the leaving time of the cars should be placed on the signs, if possible. Manager Lees agreed to look into this phase of the matter further.

Manager Lees said that at a previous meeting there had been some discussion as to the promptness of service on the various lines. He said that checks are frequently taken of the leaving time of cars on a particular line and he had brought with him the results of a few of these recent checks. On May 5, he said, from 6.15 a. m. to 10.55 p. m., on the Varnum avenue line there were only two cars off time. One was three minutes late

Preceding him by three months had come Mrs. Madeline Templeman, of 70 summers.

The two met—and Mrs. Templeman proceeded to nurse "the young" man back to health.

It was a happy road they traveled, a road which led to the Land of Love. The other day they were married. And today, despite their advanced years, no honeymooners fifty years their junior are as happy.

and the other two minutes late in leaving the square.

On the same day, he said, a check was taken on the cars running over the Lakeview avenue line and it was found that one car was two minutes late and another five minutes late, the delay being due to a slight accident.

On April 28 out of 120 trips on the Westford street line only 16 trips were on time. Most of the late cars came during the rush hours, he said, when the traffic is heavy. He said that the operators of the cars were not supposed to know that a check of their running time was being taken.

Messrs. Sullivan, Curtin and Durfee were present at yesterday's meeting, together with Manager Lees. The meeting began at 4.35 and adjourned at 5.10.

EATS Berton Braley

I'm told it is bourgeois and crude And oftentimes fearfully rude To mention nutrition Or talk deglutition Or hold conversation on food!

And yet it is pleasant to hear Description of things that appear On epicures' tables; Or read merry fables Or boards that are groaning with echoes.

How can it be wholly ill-bred To carol of steaks that are red, Or glorious salads Quite worthy of ballads Or chickens extremely well fed?

To talk about chops, if you please, Or rave over coffee and cheese, May fracture convention But oh, my attention Is captured by dishes like these!

Historical study reveals A fact which distinctly appeals; It seems that for ages The warriors and sages Have been pretty strong for their meals.

And so, though it seems to be true, That talking of food is taboo, I'm willing to try— For I'll plumply aver Or better—let's sit down and eat!

Says Industry is on Upgrade

signs in the readjustment?" I asked. "There are many," was the answer. "Many manufacturers and wholesalers are making cuts in their inventories that equal or exceed the increases when we were on the upgrade. They are passing their savings in raw material and labor on to the next step in distribution."

"Economically, the retailer is of necessity the last of the chain to make readjustment and in some localities and some lines he has been less responsive to the necessity of this readjustment than the situation calls for."

"The processes of competition work very sharply and promptly upon the manufacturer and wholesaler, because the buyers are few and very wise. They do not so react upon the retailer because the public at large is not so wise and too inert to do that shopping around for the best bargains which is necessary to set up the processes of competition."

"I believe labor is willing to face further reductions in wages, if its sacrifices can be demonstratively handed on in general reduction of final price levels, so that the cost of living travels in step."

"Our industrial system and our commerce is simply an implement for their comfort and happiness."

"When we deal with these great problems of economics let us deal with this one conception—that our object is to defend and increase the standards of living of all our people and upon this soil grow those moral and intellectual forces that make our nation great."

Standard of Living

"Mr. Secretary, in your judgment is it going to be possible to maintain the high American standards of living?" was my next question.

"Entirely possible" was the answer, "if we can secure equitable adjustments all along the line. But we must face the fact that if we are to hold our higher standards of living and to maintain employment of our people against the competition of the living standards of Europe, lowered for a whole generation, we must do it with greater efficiency and by harder work."

"I take it that on the whole you are not pessimistic," I suggested.

"Not at all. I would regret indeed if the recitation of problems for which we must find a solution should carry an air of pessimism."

Need of Energy

"With the intelligence, productive power and resourcefulness of the American people, we will emerge through all this, but the rapidly with which we recover will depend upon the promptness with which we grasp and well understand the nature of our difficulties and upon the unity and energy of our action."

"While our recovery may be slower than some may expect, nothing can prevent the prosperity of a country where the people have enlightenment, wish to work, wish to produce and wish to do right by their neighbor."

"We need remember at all times that we are not a nation of machines, and horses, factories and railways. We are a nation of men, women and children."

"Our industrial system and our commerce is simply an implement for their comfort and happiness."

"When we deal with these great problems of economics let us deal with this one conception—that our object is to defend and increase the standards of living of all our people and upon this soil grow those moral and intellectual forces that make our nation great."

Lowell Murder Case

Continued

"a brave officer, and a credit to the city of Lowell," but he added that he was not now to treat of Joseph Clark the police officer, but of Joseph Clark the witness. Mr. O'Neill made reference to the "famous statement" of Clark to the effect that when Talley fell in his death-throes, he was in his shirt-sleeves. He characterized this as "a wonderful recollection of what happened that night."

Witness Cloutier's manner was termed "nervous," and he was spoken of as "twirling his cap, star-gazing, afraid to look anyone in the eye."

The attorney took up Lieut. David Petrie's search for "the master mind," and that officer's tracing to Canada, according to testimony of "Dubuque" and his family.

Speaking of the commonwealth's contention that the Theberges entered into a conspiracy which resulted in Talley's death, Mr. O'Neill called attention to the words: "We won't go through, because we haven't got anything."

He closed by appealing to the jury to put themselves in the defendant's place and to do unto him as you would have him do unto you.

Atty. Donahue then arose and opened an impassioned appeal for his client and his brother.

He called attention to the fact that "until the jury says the final word," the defendants, in the eyes of the law, are innocent men. "You'll be told," said the attorney, "as I want you to be told, to render your decision without fear or favor."

"Why, gentlemen," continued the speaker, "you hold in the hollow of your hands three lives. These three defendants cannot go before their God unless you are mentally and morally sane, no tears, regrets, or recriminations can recall the lives gone hurriedly, and probably wrongfully. He drew a picture of the members of the jury, in future days, with their wives and children around them, having made a mistake, and having sent 'to an infamous death' those lives in your care."

"You are going to decide this case on the evidence," said Mr. Donahue. "You're going to say to the government that it must satisfy you that these men committed a crime as stated in the indictment."

Of the district attorney's line of questioning relative to late hours being kept by the Theberges, he said that the evidence indicates that they were home regularly every night save one. He made mention of the expert medical testimony, and remarked that, to judge from it, we all need have a care to be sure we are mentally and morally sane.

He quoted the Theberges as saying, when a hold-up was proposed: "Oh, no, nothing of the kind. I've got money of my own. I don't do anything like that," or words to that effect.

The search made by Lieut. Petrie for the "fourth man" was again called to the jury's attention, and it was pointed out that of courage the lieutenant had not conducted this quest with his own funds, but with those of the government. Although Mr. Bourdreaux was sent to get Mr. Marois, it was stated, apparently the securing of the "fourth man" was forgotten. Possibly, said Attorney Donahue, they thought it easier to drag these two young men in here, and put them on trial for their lives.

He deplored for the jury the bringing in of the evidence before them, as if it were the duty of the jury to be there, with his badge on, and clothed I will his authority. The statement of the defendants planning to go out to get some money by any means necessary, and of being prepared to kill if resisted. There was, said Mr. Tufts, a conspiracy to rob, being armed, and this rendered the Theberges liable.

He read the statement of Emile Theberge as recorded in Mr. Goldman's notes, to the following effect: "We all said we wanted money, and would go and get it, wherever it might be. I told them I didn't want any money, but that I would stick by them. My brother said he would be in it. We were all in it."

Mr. Tufts said that indirectly he had been criticized in relation to the "fourth man" in the case.

"There was a fourth man with this gang," he said, "and they lied about him—every one of them lied about him."

If the fourth man is not in the dock, said Mr. Tufts, it is because the three defendants gave false information about him, naming him as Dubuque, when no such man exists. He described Lieutenant Petrie's visit to the Essex Cambridge jail with photographs which none of the prisoners identified as being the man with them on the night of January 23.

Picking up the revolver with which Talley was killed, the district attorney declared that there was no evidence that it belonged to Fortier. He then recalled the testimony of Mr. Lull, of Lull & Hartford's, to the effect that two men, one of them being Lionel Theberge, purchased cartridges which they wished to be sure would fit a Harrington-Richardson .38-calibre weapon, the same as the revolver which is an exhibit in the case. He showed the jurors the cartridge-box which is one of the exhibits, and spoke of Mr. Lull testifying that the cartridges sold to Lionel Theberge and another man were in a box of this kind. The box, which is in evidence, Mr. Tufts reminded the jury, was found in the dresser, or bureau, in the lodging-house room of the Theberge brothers.

District Attorney Opens

About 5:05 p. m. court reconvened, and the district attorney opened the argument for the prosecution. He laid emphasis upon the fact that the state does not seek a victim, but merely wishes to prevent, as far as possible, any recurrence of crime.

First, he said, the case of Lionel

Theberge would be considered. He spoke of the defendants planning to go out to get some money by any means necessary, and of being prepared to kill if resisted. There was, said Mr. Tufts, a conspiracy to rob, being armed, and this rendered the Theberges liable.

He read the statement of Emile Theberge as recorded in Mr. Goldman's notes, to the following effect: "We all said we wanted money, and would go and get it, wherever it might be. I told them I didn't want any money, but that I would stick by them. My brother said he would be in it. We were all in it."

Mr. Tufts said that indirectly he had been criticized in relation to the "fourth man" in the case.

"There was a fourth man with this gang," he said, "and they lied about him—every one of them lied about him."

If the fourth man is not in the dock, said Mr. Tufts, it is because the three defendants gave false information about him, naming him as Dubuque, when no such man exists. He described Lieutenant Petrie's visit to the Essex Cambridge jail with photographs which none of the prisoners identified as being the man with them on the night of January 23.

Picking up the revolver with which Talley was killed, the district attorney declared that there was no evidence that it belonged to Fortier. He then recalled the testimony of Mr. Lull, of Lull & Hartford's, to the effect that two men, one of them being Lionel Theberge, purchased cartridges which they wished to be sure would fit a Harrington-Richardson .38-calibre weapon, the same as the revolver which is an exhibit in the case. He showed the jurors the cartridge-box which is one of the exhibits, and spoke of Mr. Lull testifying that the cartridges sold to Lionel Theberge and another man were in a box of this kind. The box, which is in evidence, Mr. Tufts reminded the jury, was found in the dresser, or bureau, in the lodging-house room of the Theberge brothers.

Court Took Recess

The court here took a recess to 7 o'clock, when Mr. Tufts resumed his argument. He called attention to Mr. Donahue's remarks about the production of Dr. Marois, and his comparison with the non-production of "Dubuque." He pointed out that there is no evidence that Lieutenant Petrie or himself knows where this fourth man is, if there be such a party connected with the case. He also declared that Dr. Marois, being a voluntary witness, could be brought here, whereas, to bring a defendant from Canada would necessitate extradition papers.

The district attorney charged that Fortier fired the second shot "to make sure," knowing that Talley was the only face-to-face witness of the robbery, and feeling that he must be slain. The prisoner was not being grappled when this shot was discharged into the storekeeper's body, according to the testimony, said Mr. Tufts.

Mr. Tierney spent a long time, declared the district attorney, in seeking to show that the police mistreated and abused the prisoner. He contended that, handcuffed and hurried into the police machine as the defendant was, he seemed in all reason to have been injured by falling, as the officers testified.

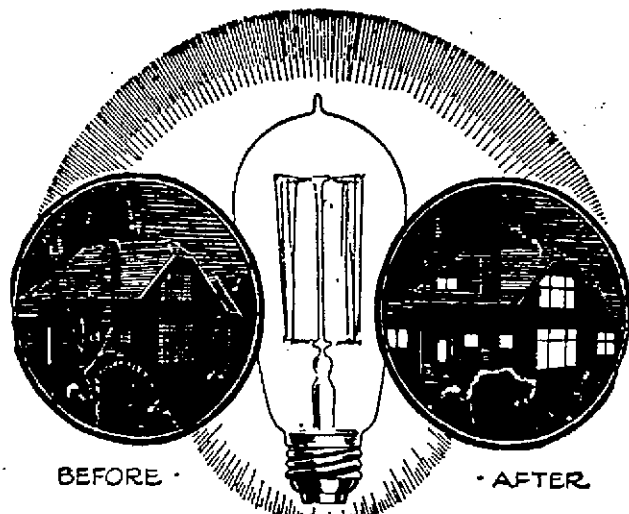

The district attorney stigmatized as charge of Fortier's outfit overseas

"absolutely worthless" the Binet test, unless the patient is "bona fide," and he told the jury that every expert, for either side has agreed to this on the stand.

Aside from the Binet test, said Mr. Tufts, on what does the defence rest its argument of insanity or imbecility. First, he stated, the testimony of Fortier's mother. "I didn't have the heart to cross-examine her," he said, but added that he didn't think all she said was "quite so"—that he thought she was doing what any mother would do. He instanced her statement that her sister was at an asylum in Quebec, and was not in her right mind. Dr. Marois, he recalled to the minds of the jurors, said that this sister was not mentally affected, had been suffering merely from rickets, a disease of the feet, and was kept by the Grey Nuns because physically incapacitated from working.

He questioned whether the officers in the district attorney's outfit overseas would have allowed him to remain in the battery, in charge of horses. If he were an imbecile.

Asking whether Fortier, with his associations, and having drawn the wages he has drawn, would not know a fifty-cent piece, would not be able to count to five, would not be able to give the days of the week, the district attorney queried:

"Are you men going to swallow that stuff?"

He characterized the defendants as "three gangsters, ready to kill if necessary."

"If the time has come when men can go out with guns in their pockets to rob and steal, he said, and can get away with it, let's know now."

The defendants were asked, at the conclusion of the district attorney's argument, whether they desired to address the jury personally. Judge Cox explained to them that they were privileged to do this in accordance with an old custom. After considerable hesitation, Fortier replied "No" twice, in an almost inaudible voice which was practically a whisper. Emile answered "No," also after a pause.

ZIPPY TALKS QUERILY

AS HE WENT ON EATING AND THINKING ABOUT THE CIRCUS HE HAD TO LAUGH.

Everything was very quiet for a few minutes in the Land-That-Was-Farthest-Away-Of-All. Mrs. Ostreich was seated at Mr. Ostreich for criticizing her grammar, and Zippy Zebra was sulking because Mrs. Ostreich had made remarks about his grammar, so nobody said a thing.

"The idea," Zippy kept saying over and over to himself, "That's always the way with people who stay at home and never go out to see the world. They think they know everything."

Zippy's ear kept on smarting and burning and he flapped it every little while to keep it cool. He went on snipping off bits of short, juicy grass with his teeth and thought and thought and thought.

After while he forgot all about being mad, and as he went on eating and thinking about the circus, he had to laugh—whinny!—I mean—for being first cousin to Prince, the Pony.

could whinny quite well. "My!" he chuckled, not knowing that he was talking out loud. "That was fine!" "What was fine?" demanded Mrs. Ostreich.

Ostreich looked up in surprise. "The slipper!" he said mysteriously, and went on eating grass.

After while he chuckled again, I mean whinnyed and remarked to himself, "My! That was nice, too."

"What was nice?" Mrs. Ostreich thought Zippy was losing his senses. But she was curious as well.

"The shoe," Zippy told her.

Mrs. Ostreich stamped her feet impatiently. But that's all the good it did her. Mr. Ostreich wasn't caring a brass farthing about anything but gobbling up stones and pieces of hard mud. That's a man for you. Always eating. By-in-by Zippy, rolling his eyes. "I was thinking of a boot!"

BRITISH-CANADIAN WAR VETERANS

At the last regular meeting of the British-Canadian Great War Veterans' association the following announcement was made relative to the allotment of war medals:

First, 1914-15 medal—For veterans who have served in any theatre of the war during 1914-15.

Second, British war medal—For veterans on the strength of any unit in a theatre of war up to November, 1918.

Third, Victoria medal—For veterans who have served in any unit in England or France with the Canadian or British armies.

Changes in address should be given to the secretary and these will be forwarded to Ottawa in order that the files may be kept up to date.

In the course of the meeting arrangements were made for a whist and smoker to be held at the next meeting in observance of Dominion day, and the following committee was appointed to decorate the graves of British-Canadian veterans Memorial day: Bro. Smith, Bro. Rushton, Bro. Groulx and Bro. Wesley. It was announced that the membership drive will be extended to July 1 and that a gold signal ring will be presented the member bringing in the largest number of applicants.

LEGAL NOTICES

Commonwealth of Massachusetts: Middlesex, ss. Probate Court.

To the next of kin and all others interested in the estate of Max Mednick, late of Lowell in said County, deceased, and to the executor and receiver of said Commonwealth.

Whereas, Albert O. Hamel, public administrator, the administrator of the estate of said deceased, has presented to said Court for allowance the account of his administration on said estate and application has been made for distribution of the balance in his hands among the widow and next of kin of said deceased;

You are hereby cited to appear at a Probate Court to be held at Cambridge in said County of Middlesex, on the fourteenth day of June, A. D. 1921, at nine o'clock in the forenoon, to show cause, if any you have, why said account should not be allowed and distribution made according to said application.

And the petitioner is ordered to serve this citation by publishing the same once in each week, for three successive weeks in The Lowell Sun, a newspaper published in Lowell, the last publication to be one day, at least, before said Court, and by delivering or mailing post-paid a copy of this citation to all known persons interested in the estate thirty days at least before said Court and by delivering a copy of said citation to the said Treasurer and Receiver General fourteen days at least before said Court.

Witness, George F. Lawton, Esquire, First Judge of said Court, this fourth day of May, in the year one thousand nine hundred and twenty-one.

F. M. ESTY, Register.

DECREE GRANTED DUKES OF MARLBOROUGH, FORMERLY CONSUEN VANDERBILT, MADE ABSOLUTE TODAY

LONDON, May 13.—The decree of divorce granted on Nov. 9 last to the Duke of Marlborough, formerly Consue Vanderbilt, which dissolved her marriage with the Duke of Marlborough, was made absolute today. Under the provisions of the British law, six months must intervene between the granting of a divorce decree and the issuance of a judicial rule making the divorce absolute.

At the trial of the case last November, allegations of desertion and misconduct were made by counsel for the husband.

And the petitioner is ordered to serve this citation by publishing the same once in each week, for three successive weeks in The Lowell Sun, a newspaper published in Lowell, the last publication to be one day, at least, before said Court, and by delivering or mailing post-paid a copy of this citation to all known persons interested in the estate thirty days at least before said Court and by delivering a copy of said citation to the said Treasurer and Receiver General fourteen days at least before said Court.

Witness, George F. Lawton, Esquire, First Judge of said Court, this fourth day of May, in the year one thousand nine hundred and twenty-one.

F. M. ESTY, Register.

Liner With 1100 On Board Beached After Collision

LONDON, May 13.—The Peninsula & Oriental liner Ben Alla from London to Sydney, Australia, with 1100 passengers and seamen on board, has been beached near the Royal Sovereign lightship, off Cherbourg, France, after a collision with the British tank steamer Patella, says a wireless despatch. The collision occurred in a fog. A statement issued by the company says that no one was injured and that the passengers will be landed this afternoon. The Ben Alla was damaged on her port side and may be floated late today.

Cholera and Typhus In Moscow

RIGA, Latvia, May 13.—Cholera and typhus are reported by a despatch to the Latvian telegraph agency to have broken out unusually early in Moscow. The soviet government is declared to be much alarmed over the situation and to have ordered a general cleanup of the city from June 5 to June 18.

Leaves Princeton University $100,000

PHILADELPHIA, May 13.—The will of Mrs. William L. McLean, wife of the publisher of the Philadelphia Evening Bulletin, which was probated today, leaves $100,000 to Princeton university in memory of her son, Warden McLean, of the class of 1912, who was killed in the war.

NATIONAL CONVENTION OF CORNELL GRADUATES

CLEVELAND, May 13.—Cornell university graduates from many cities gathered here today to talk over school memories, boost the interests of their college and discuss educational topics. It is said to be the first national convention of alumni ever held away from the seat of the alma mater. The slogan of the convention is "Don't just get educated—keep educated."

There has been much criticism of college curriculums on the ground that college men specialize too much. J. P. Harris, president of the Associated Alumni of Cornell said: "Many educators feel that proper safeguarding of the best in American education calls for more attention to culture. The subject will be threshed out at the convention."

Prof. Paul Shorey of the University of Chicago and Dr. James Parker Hall, dean of law at the same university, were on the morning program for addresses on "Cultural versus materialistic education." Acting President Albert W. Smith of Cornell university, is scheduled to speak on "Cornell."

Romeyn Berry, graduate manager of athletics, will preside at a banquet tonight.

Fifty hundred members of Cornell clubs are expected. Special cars bringing the college men from New York, Chicago, Buffalo, Pittsburgh, Detroit and Akron were met by Cleveland graduates.

Tao-Ke Alfred Sze, Chinese minister to the United States, who was graduated from Cornell in 1901, will arrive tomorrow. He will address the convention on "International influence of American Education."

The convention will continue through tomorrow.

BUSINESS PROBLEMS TO BE DISCUSSED

The most profitable ways of advertising will be discussed in a lecture in Memorial hall tonight, under the direction of the chamber of commerce, by G. W. Sully of Dapton, Ohio. Mr. Sully is a recognized expert and organizer. In his talk he will attempt to show how proper advertising can change a non-paying into a paying business and how newspaper advertising is the most satisfactory of all forms of publicity.

The speaker will also show how cooperation and organization make for a better community or city. He will show practical improvement in service and store organization that please the general public and draw trade. He will tell how system enables a merchant to know at all times about the conditions of his business instead of guessing. Six thousand feet of moving picture film will accompany Mr. Sully's lecture. There will be no charge for admission.

SALLIES ENTHUSIASTIC DESPITE RAIN

Heavy rain today halted for the time being the work of gathering funds in the Salvation Army drive, but did not dampen the enthusiasm of the workers, who, it is stated, are to keep at their task until the full amount that they have set out to raise is in hand.

Tomorrow at noon all of the workers are to gather in the chamber of commerce rooms for a luncheon and general discussion of plans.

Within the past five years no less than 527 young girls from 15 cities and towns in New England were given refuge at the Evangelical Booth home and maternity hospital conducted by the Salvation Army in Boston, according to figures made public today by the New England provincial headquarters of the army.

The cost of operating this home is about $30,000 each year and of this sum, only a very small amount is received in fees from the girls who are accommodated there.

No girl, regardless of race or creed, Fletcher class of the Calvary Baptist is ever denied admittance, provided there is accommodation and if the girl is without funds or friends no charge is made. The Evangelical Booth home is one of 25 similar homes which the Salvation Army conducts in the United States.

Mountain Warfare Over Seven-Mile Front in West Virginia-Kentucky Coal Region Resumed

HEAVY FIRING NOW IN PROGRESS

Governors of Both States Appeal to Pres. Harding for Federal Troops

WILLIAMSON, W. Va., May 13.—Mountain warfare which raged all of yesterday and intermittently through the night over a seven-mile front in the West Virginia-Kentucky coal strike region, was resumed with vigor this morning. Reports sent to Captain J. R. Brooks, of the state police, at headquarters here said heavy firing was in progress at McCarr, Ky., the eastern end of the trouble zone, and at Morgantown, W. Va., where yesterday's shooting started. Sporadic rifle-fire could be heard along the West Virginia and Kentucky border at Matewan.

An unidentified man was killed on the bridge leading from McCarr to the West Virginia bank of the river this morning, bringing the known casualties to three killed and two wounded. This includes the member of the attacking party killed at McCarr last night.

FIRST "SLACKER" WAS A LIEUTENANT COLONEL

CHICAGO, May 13.—Discovery that William Sutherland Bacon, the first man named on the first "slacker list" released at Fort Sheridan, had in reality been a lieutenant colonel and commander of the chemical warfare service at Lakehurst, N. J., virtually has stopped further publication of the list in Chicago newspapers.

Three Chicago papers announced yesterday that until greater accuracy is attained in the lists, they will not be published.

Mr. Bacon, it was ascertained, was not only guileless of the slacker charge but had a conspicuous record as a volunteer in the service, rising from the rank of private to that of lieutenant colonel. He is a member of the American Legion, with residence given as New York.

POLICE SEEK HUSBAND OF WOMAN FOUND DEAD IN BED IN CHEEVER STREET HOUSE

Five-year-old Son of Mr. and Mrs. John Michalakos Tells Medical Examiner He Saw His Father Strike Mother With Strap on Night She Died

Further evidence tending to indicate that Mrs. John Michalakos, alias Kalopotharakos, whose body was found in a bruised condition in a tenement at 57 Cheever street, Tuesday evening, met her death as the result of ill-treatment, was unearthed by the police and Medical Examiner Thomas B. Smith today. Medical Examiner Smith interviewed Michael Michalakos, five-year-old son of the dead woman, and from him learned that Mrs. Michalakos' husband struck her with a strap on the night that she died. The boy, it was learned this morning, was in bed with a strap and apparently he is not yet aware of his mother's death, because he told Dr. Smith this morning that she would return soon. He is now living with his uncle, George Michalakos, in Cheever street.

The husband of the dead woman has not yet been located by the police. He disappeared a few hours before her body was discovered Tuesday evening. A dragnet has been laid all over New England and particular efforts are being made to locate him in the Greek centres.

Mr. and Mrs. Michalakos were married in Greece about 6 years ago and a few months later Mr. Michalakos, who also went under the name of Kalopotharakos, came to this country, locating in Lowell. A couple of months ago he sent money to his wife requesting her to join him with the boy in this city, and the mother and son arrived in Lowell about six weeks ago at which time they hired a four-room tenement in the rear of 57 Cheever street. One of the rooms was used as a kitchen, a box and a board being put together and utilized as a table. There is no kitchen range, but in a corner of the room is located a very small oil stove, while on the "table" lay food and two large lamps. The room in which the body was found contains but an old iron bed with a few pieces of clothing, while the other rooms are unfurnished.

BOSTON, May 13.—The steamer Munalbro, tied up at South Boston, was raided during the night by men who assaulted members of the crew. Three of the Munalbro's men were taken to a hospital with scalp wounds. The assailants, who were armed with clubs and revolvers, boarded the ship while all but one of the crew were asleep. They attacked the men in their bunks and the latter gave fight. Police were called but before they arrived, the intruders had fled. Those taken to the hospital were not severely hurt. The men aboard the Munalbro had refused to join the seamen's strike, although importuned to do so several times, but the police today had no evidence connecting the assault with the walkout.

COUNSEL ASKS FOR RULING

Fortier Shows Little if Any Interest in Today's Court Proceedings

Theberge Brothers Follow Closely Words of Judge From Start to Finish

Judge Says No Significance Must Attach to Defendants Not Testifying

All Three Defendants are Equally Guilty if Conspiracy is Shown

The cases of Alfred Fortier, Emilie and Lionel Theberge, charged with the murder of David N. Tallen, a Middlesex street haberdasher, on the night of Jan. 25, went to the jury this forenoon.

It was nearly 10 o'clock when Judge Cox began his charge to the jury. He closed at 11:27, whereupon there were requests for ruling by counsel. After explaining certain points as asked by attorneys, the jury retired from the court room at 11:46 o'clock and a few minutes later had entered the jury room where the exhibits in the case were brought to them.

During the judge's charge to the jury Fortier preserved his attitude of indifference or lack of comprehension of the proceedings, sitting with downcast head for the most part. The Theberges, on the contrary, appeared to follow intently the words of the judge, especially Lionel.

In his charge the judge reminded the jury of their oath as to being without bias and he instructed them that they must remain with open mind up to the moment that they reach their decision. They must be ready to listen to the arguments of their fellow jurors, he said. He told of the law which allows an accused man to refrain from testifying and he said that no significance must be attached to such actions on the part of the defendants. Failure to testify must not be used against a defendant. The judge spoke of the presumption that a man is innocent until

A PEN PERSONALITY STUDY OF HOOVER

Secretary Hoover on the job sketched by Artist Grove of The Sun at Washington. 'Grove found Hoover too engrossed in public affairs to smile, yearning a bit for his war orphans, tapping his pencil constantly while he pondered and figured, and addicted to cigars of doubtful quality.'

Although We Have Turned the Corner, There Are Many Loose Ends to Pick Up—High American Standards of Living Can Be Maintained

BY H. N. RICKEY
WASHINGTON, May 13.—"I am convinced that we have fundamentally turned the corner."

This was the answer of Secretary of Commerce Hoover to my question: "Are things going to be better or worse industrially in America?"

Because of his knowledge of European conditions as well as the intimate touch with American business which his position gives him, Hoover is probably as well if not better qualified than any man in America in or out of office to discuss present conditions and future possibilities.

Confiding, Hoover said: "It would be foolish not to acknowledge frankly that we are in the midst of great economic difficulties. But it is infinitely more foolish for anyone to think we will not grow out of them.

"In some ways the situation is more difficult than that following the Civil war, because today our economic machinery is more intricate and less easy to adjust. Also we are dealing with a world situation and not a domestic situation alone.

"Great as our difficulties have been and are, we have much upon which to congratulate ourselves. For the first time in our history we have passed safely through a commodity crisis without monetary panic. For this we may thank the federal reserve system, which made this possible.

"Although we seem to have turned the corner, there are many readjustments to complete. Part of the bitterness of the situation arises from the inequalities in the progress of these readjustments in different walks of life and different branches of industry. Much of this readjustment can be accomplished only with time and patience. Economies of hard times produce savings and great endeavor. Shrinkage in values yields more free capital. These savings in time and free capital are the soil for upward progress.

"What are the chief impediments to smooth movement of readjustments?" I asked Hoover.

"There are many impediments," was the answer. "And everyone will set a different value and importance upon each of them.

"Among those daily enumerated are badly adjusted railway rates, excessive and badly adjusted taxes, insufficient tariff, high wages, high profits, high interest, restriction on effort by labor and a dozen others, while our domestic recuperation is sadly interlocked with the recovery of Europe.

Parity of Levels

"It is necessary that we approach a parity of levels in profits, prices and wages in different industries. Some groups are able to put up stronger resistance to reduction of economic levels than others.

"For instance, this resistance against lower levels in the services and commodities that the farmer must buy in the face of his very much lower returns is digging a grave of unemployment for the other industries."

"Isn't there a great lesson to be drawn from this situation?" I asked.

"There is," was the emphatic answer. "No greater lesson can be brought home to our people than that we must not only get but give good pro in service."

"No particular economic fraction of our population can long continue securing over-advantage without disaster to itself and the community.

"Our whole economic and moral problem, indeed our safety, our satisfaction and our happiness are balanced upon our practice of this basic fundamental in business dealings."

Signs of Readjustment

"What are some of the encouraging signs?" I asked.

TELLS OF MAKING

A "CITY BEAUTIFUL"

Various phases of civic welfare work were treated upon, in an illustrated lecture given by G. W. Sully of Dayton, Ohio, in Colonial ball last night. He told of a large manufacturing concern taking up the welfare work as a means of protection against the damage done to its property by mischievous boys, by directing their energies into other lines, and said that it had proved profitable from a financial standpoint. Children's gardening was one of the early features of the work, and this later developed, it was stated, into a movement that had resulted in the general beautifying of the city. Unlucky buildings, yards and streets had been made attractive, the speaker said, at the expense of only a few cents paid out for seeds. Particularly interesting were pictures showing a city bridge made beautiful by the placing of flower boxes along the side that are cared for by members of a Rotary club.

SUPERVISORS FOR

The Lowell park commission will be allowed to select its playground supervisors for the coming summer without regard to civil service standing as a result of a conference which Supt. John W. Kernan of the park department has had with Payson Dana, commissioner of civil service.

Unless some such arrangement is allowed, Lowell will be without a sufficient number of playground supervisors this summer as only nine Lowell people have been certified as eligible out of the 50 or more who took the examination last winter. One of these, Miss Bowtie Lawler, does not wish the position.

Statistics of women colleges show that for a period covering sixty years the average college girl of today is an inch taller than the college girl of 1860. Statistics also prove the modern girl is about 25 or 30 pounds heavier.

MILITARY MASS ON THE SOUTH COMMON

At the military mass which is to be celebrated on the South common on the morning of Memorial day, Rev. William Farrell, former chaplain of the 103d Field Artillery, who has been decorated with the French war cross for heroism in action, will deliver the sermon.

The open air mass will probably be attended by 20,000 people. It is estimated, and it promises to be a unique feature of the memorial exercises in this city.

Invitations have been sent to the following military and semi-military organizations: Post 42, Post 120, Post 185, G.A.R.; Battery B, 2nd F.A., Gen. Adelbert Ames camp, S.W.V., Admiral Farragut camp, Sons of Veterans, Garde Secre Coeur, Garde Frontenac, Angel Guardian Cadets, O.M.I. Cadets, Polish Hussars, Women's Auxiliary American Legion, 101st Women's Auxiliary, Veterans of Foreign Wars, Meagher Guards, Sheridan Guards, Fourth Degree Knights of Columbus, Memorial Auditorium commission, Tewksbury post, American Legion, Billerica post, American Legion, Chelmsford post, American Legion, Lawrence post, American Legion, Haverhill post, American Legion, Nashua post, American Legion, and others. Other military or semi-military organizations not appearing in this list are invited to attend in bodies without further notice.

The military mass is being run under the direction of Lowell post, American Legion, and Company M. Assisted by Rev. William Farrell, O.M.I., chaplain of the post, is chairman of the committee, and Capt. W. C. MacBrayne and Lieut. Robert Gintvan are serving with him in making the arrangements.

A platform and altar will be erected in the basin of the pond on the South common, from which the water will be drawn off. There will be reserved seats for the clergy, members of the G.A.R. and S.W.V., and other veteran organizations. The altar will be erected on the Thorndike street side of the selected area. On the right of the altar will be stationed the choir of 100, selected from the different churches throughout the city under the direction of Mr. Keller. The U.S.C.G. military band, William Regan, director, will be located next to the choir.

On the side opposite the altar will be a reservation for the 100 gold star mothers and relatives of deceased veterans. Mrs. William H. Merritt of 242 Concord street has charge of these arrangements. It is her desire to have the altar decorated with flowers contributed by the mothers and wives of the war heroes, and also to have all the flags which were returned to the gold star mothers with the bodies of overseas soldiers used for decorating the altar. The relatives who have not been reached are requested to call Mrs. Merritt at 3878-R to make the proper arrangements.

The mass will be celebrated at 10 o'clock. Reservations will be made for all organizations which attend in a body if they will notify the committee of their plans. All colors of all organizations will be massed at the altar.

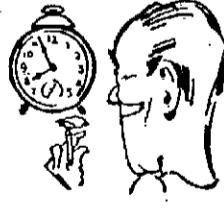

Rev. Daniel J. Keleher, Ph.D., will celebrate the mass, assisted by two Lowell clergymen, a deacon and a sub-deacon. The augmented choir and the band will furnish music.

At the close of the mass taps will be blown by Musicians L. F. Fox, T. J. McDermott, Frank Merritt, and Joseph Lamoureux. A salute of three guns will be fired by a section from Battery B, 2nd Field Artillery. This gun will be stationed on the upper section of the common near the Edison grammar school.

Battery B will perform guard duty on the common during the exercises. Former members of Company M will serve as ushers. The mass will be served by Sergt. L. F. Fox and Sergt. T. J. McDermott, former non-commissioned officers of Company M.

An invitation is extended to the public to attend this Memorial day service, and the sloping ground which surrounds the spot selected for the exercises will easily accommodate 20,000 people. Adequate police and military protection will be provided.

The war reduced the French population by 4,000,000.

Held in Connection With Judge's Death

TULSA, Okla., May 13.—A. P. Dickson, superintendent of a large oil refinery here, was arrested today and charged of murder had been fled against Mrs. Jesse James, nurse, and Goldie Gordon, her companion, in connection with the death of Judge John Devoreaux, former supreme court commissioner, under mysterious circumstances. Police declare Judge Devoreaux was found wounded and under the influence of poison Monday in Dickson's room at the hotel. The two women pleaded not guilty to the murder charge and were committed to jail without bond, pending a hearing Monday. An autopsy performed at the order of the county attorney disclosed that Judge Devoreaux's death probably was due to a blood clot on the brain caused by a heavy blow, and to administration of drugs.

SHE'S THE "SPIRIT OF THE AIR"

The rapid advance of aeronautics is startling the world. Announcement has been made that in a short time giant airplanes will cross the Atlantic in fourteen hours. Another announcement states that the navy is preparing to cross the Pacific during the coming summer. 'Round the world by airplane is no longer a dream, but a real possibility for the near future. Hundreds of other astounding feats of the air have been accomplished and calmly accepted.

WORLD'S LARGEST PIE

FRESNO, Cal., May 13.—One hundred thousand people helped to eat this pie. It was the world's largest pie, made of raisins and weighing 150 pounds. The center of attraction at the annual raisin festival held here recently. This huge raisin pie measured fifty

AN EXHIBITION OF LOWELL PRODUCTS

An extensive exhibition of the products of Lowell Industries, under the direction of the Lowell Community Service, is to be opened in the chamber of commerce rooms next Monday afternoon. The exhibit is to consist of samples of many products displayed on cards. Among other exhibits will be samples of canvas of the kind that was used for both the lighter and heavier sails of the cup defender Resolute, the material for this exhibit comes from the Bay State Cotton corporation. At 4:30 p. m. Monday the display will be inspected by members of the civic arts committee of the Community Service. The exhibition is to be open without charge to the public.

MRS. BARRY FEELS 15 YEARS YOUNGER

Lowell Resident Says It Is Simply Wonderful How Tanlac Has Restored Her

"Since Tanlac overcame my stomach trouble I feel 15 years younger," said Mrs. Margaret J. Barry, 93 Berkeley St., Lowell.

"Nobody knows how I suffered from indigestion which I was told was caused by gastritis. Some nights I suffered so terribly I thought I would never live to see the light of another day and often I have walked the floor all night in unbearable agony. My nerves were all upset, even the ringing of the door-bell would sometimes start me trembling like a leaf. I had awful headaches, too. They felt like an iron band was being drawn around my head."

"Tanlac has just made me feel like a different person. I have a splendid appetite and my digestion positively could not be improved upon. My nerves are normal, my headaches are all gone and I sleep all right like I used to do when I was a child. I am a well and happy woman and I owe it all to Tanlac. It's simply wonderful!"

Tanlac is sold in Lowell by Green's drug store, under the personal direction of a special Tanlac representative, by Wright Drug Co., Haverhill, Mass.; Shaw's Pharmacy, Concord, Mass., and by the leading druggist in every town. —Adv.

HUMANE SOCIETY HOLDS ANIMAL CLINIC

The first animal clinic under the auspices of the Lowell Humane society was held yesterday afternoon at the office of the society in Central street. The affair was conducted under the direction of Agent Charles F. Richardson, while the attending veterinary surgeon was Dr. W. S. Eaton, who has an office adjoining that of the society in the old Boston & Maine depot. There were not many who took advantage of the opportunity of receiving free advice or free treatment for their animal pets, but those who did attend the clinic were well satisfied with the result. So satisfactory was the clinic to Mr. Richardson that he announced he will do his utmost to have another clinic next week and will endeavor to make it a weekly event.

CHARLES F. RICHARDSON

The clinic was advertised for four o'clock, but at 2:30 o'clock the first visitors put in their appearance. In the course of the few hours that followed eight dogs, three cats, four horses and one bird were taken to the clinic. One of the dogs suffered from a tumor of the eye and it was a matter of a few minutes for Dr. Eaton to remove the tumor. Another dog was troubled with a fractured humerus as a result of being run over by an automobile. This animal was also attended to and its owner was advised as to the best way of administering treatment.

A valuable English bulldog owned by a Nashua party, was taken to the police station in the early part of the afternoon for the purpose of being sent to the hospital grounds within the gas box, but the animal was later led to the clinic, where Dr. Eaton diagnosed its case as one of dropsy. The dog will be operated upon later. Sometime after 4 o'clock a little black mongrel was taken in by two boys, who said their father instructed them that if there was no cure for the animal's trouble it was to be put to death. Dr. Eaton examined the "little fellow" and said it was suffering from a chronic cough. The boys left with the dog and a few minutes later returned with tears in their eyes, saying gas had done the job. The owner of the other dogs were advised as to the proper treatment necessary for their pets.

A young man whose business is peddling led a bay horse to the clinic and informed Dr. Eaton that the animal although but eight years old, was suffering from some pain in the leg and at times was practically worthless. After a careful examination of the horse's mouth the doctor said the animal was 15 years of age instead of eight. He looked the beast over carefully and diagnosed its case as one of ring bone for which there is no cure. The young man was advised to get rid of the horse. Another horse suffered from spavin and its owner was told what to do. The other two horses suffered from minor ailments. The cats' troubles consisted of fracture of the nasal bone, fracture of the frontal bone and internal injuries. One of the cats was sent to the electric box, while the others were given treatment.

There was but one bird at the clinic and that was a sparrow brought in by two small boys, who picked it up on the street. The little fellows wanted the doctor to do something for the little creature, but its condition was beyond treatment and a wring of the neck finished its misery. The clinic was absolutely free to all who attended it and it is hoped that more people will avail themselves of the opportunity to have their pet animals treated free at future clinics.

DROP IN BUTTER AND SUGAR PRICES

BOSTON, May 13.—Again lower food prices prevail in the food market on many standard articles. Butter is among them, the price having dropped three or four cents a pound yesterday, making the best Vermont tub butter retail at 45 cents a pound, and affecting other grades and qualities in about the same ratio. Good western butter is 42 cents a pound, while prints range from 47 to 55 cents and the unsalted prints are 65 cents a pound.

Sugar Cheaper

Sugar is lower. It is obtainable in bulk and packages at 8 cents generally, and in chain stores at 7 cents a pound. New mild cheese is 5 cents a pound cheaper and sells at 25 cents. Eggs are at last week's prices, but the probabilities are that they will be cheaper.

Hennery eggs are 53 to 55 cents a dozen, fresh pullet eggs are 42 cents, eastern eggs are 45 to 50 cents and western eggs are 35 to 45 cents. Fresh duck eggs are 60 and 65 cents a dozen. The prices of groundfish are cheaper than last week. Also fresh eastern salmon is fairly plentiful at $1 a pound. Another delicacy is fresh mackerel caught as far north as Newport. Striped bass also from Newport are 35 and 40 cents a pound. Lobsters are plentiful. Live chicken lobsters are 30 cents and larger ones 35 cents a pound. Baked lobsters are 40 cents a pound. Lobster meat is $1.50 a pound and crab meat is $1.

Cod, flounders, haddock and alewives are 10 cents a pound. Lemon sole and turbot are 20 cents. Fresh shrimp are 20 cents and boiled ones 40 cents. Weakfish and butterfish are 35 cents, also eastern halibut. Jack shad is 40 cents, roe shad 35 cents, and bluefish 30 cents a pound.

Clams are 50 cents a quart, oysters are 80 cents, scallops are $1.50 and shad roe are $1.50 a pair.

The cold weather has a tendency to increase vegetable prices, especially the better grades. Lettuce is 25 cents a head with light heads bringing 20 cents. Asparagus is higher too. Native grass in small bunches is 20 and 25 cents. Large double bunches are 65 cents and Jersey asparagus is 75 cents. Summer squash are 20 to 30 cents, green and wax beans are 20 and 25 cents a quart, green peas are 15 and 20 cents a quart, cucumbers are 20 and 25 cents, scallions are 5 cents a bunch. Radishes are 8 cents, silver skin onions are 10 cents a pound, bunch beets and carrots are 20 cents, spinach is 35 to 45 cents a peck, and delima are 40 to 50 cents a peck and beet greens 50 to 60 cents.

Strike In Upper Silesia Called Off

BERLIN, May 13.—The general strike begun by the German workmen at Oppeln, Upper Silesia, in protest against the attitude of the inter-allied commission toward the Polish insurrection has been called off, according to advices from Oppeln today. Members of all the German parties, including the German nationalists and the communists visited the headquarters of the commission yesterday and were assured by General Lerond, head of the commission that no negotiations with the Polish insurgents had taken place, as had been reported. He said he had asked for military reinforcements and would be glad to see British and Italian troops sent to the district.

FIND TRACES OF POISON

Mrs. Southard Held in Connection With Death of Her Fourth Husband

HONOLULU, May 13.—(By the Associated Press)—Mrs. Vincent Southard was held here today in connection with the death of her fourth husband, Edward F. Meyer, who died in a hospital at Pocatello, Idaho, Aug. 20 last. An autopsy revealed traces of poison, according to the report of physicians, which was forwarded here. Mrs. Southard was held incommunicado, although she expressed a willingness to return to the mainland without extradition. Territorial officers said arrangements for her early extradition were being made. She is the wife of a chief petty officer in the navy. She is also known by the name of Mrs. Lydia Meyer.

The Southards arrived in Honolulu from San Francisco, Jan. 12. They were married in Los Angeles last November. Mrs. William Stetser of Honolulu, who said she knew Mrs. Southard in San Francisco, said she was a "good, sweet woman." Both Mr. and Mrs. Southard are under 30 years of age.

Southard denied the assertion attributed to him by the police that Mrs. Southard had sought to have him take out $10,000 worth of life insurance. He said he did not carry any life insurance and that his wife never had asked him to take out any.

Father Furnished Clue
TWIN FALLS, Idaho, May 13.—W. L. Trueblood, father of Mrs. Lydia Southard, arrested in Honolulu, charged with the murder of Edward F. Meyer, her fourth husband, furnished the clue that led to the discovery of her whereabouts. Prosecuting Attorney Frank L. Stephen said here today. Last January, the prosecutor said, the father, who had learned of the suspicions directed against his daughter, asked the prosecutor's advice concerning an accusation made against Mrs. Southard involving the theft of diamonds from Mrs. Fred James of Twin Falls, while on a trip to Los Angeles. According to the prosecutor, Mr. Trueblood inquired if any report had been received of the chemist's examination of the viscera of her fourth husband.

Mr. Stephen replied that the reports had not yet arrived, but he hoped the results would clear Mrs. Southard. "I'm afraid they will not," the father is said to have replied. Charges against Mrs. Southard on account of the alleged theft of the diamonds were never pressed, the county prosecutor said, but authorities made use of the information in tracing her to Los Angeles.

BRITISH MILITARY MISSION AT CHITA

RIGA, Latvia, May 13.—A British military mission has arrived at Chita, capital of the Far Eastern republic of Siberia, according to a Moscow despatch to the Latvian Telegraph Agency, which adds that recognition of the Chita government by the powers is imminent.

In connection with the Far Eastern situation, a Royal despatch reports that the Prince of Oldenburg is organizing new forces in Siberia to join General Semenov and Japan against the Bolsheviks.

Prince Alexander of Oldenburg was one of the Russian princely and ducal group which early in the Revolution of 1917 supported the new provisional government, but later were driven into exile or imprisoned by the Bolsheviks. His name has not previously been associated with that of General Semenov, one of the chiefs of the anti-Bolshevik movements which have appeared from time to time in Eastern Siberia.

Railwaymen Support Striking Miners

LONDON, May 13.—(By the Associated Press)—The National Union of Railwaymen today stepped actively into the fight in support of the striking British miners, taking measures designed to prevent the transportation by rail of coal imported to replenish the nation's fuel supply, badly depleted because of the strike at the coal pits, now in its second month. The railwaymen's action took the form of a decision by the executive committee of the union that its members would not handle imported coal, no matter for what purpose it was intended. The committee further instructed the members of the union not to handle coal of any description loaded or previously handled by "blackleg" labor.

Plans Another Arctic Expedition

PASADENA, Cal., May 13.—Another expedition into the Arctic regions in two or three years is planned by Vilhjalmur Stefansson, the explorer, he announced here today. Despite the discovery of the North Pole, Stefansson said, there remains much room for exploration in the Arctic. "The center of the ice-bound regions of the north never has been reached by man," he said. "The North Pole region is 450 miles from the edge of the icy area, while the center is 800 miles from the edge. We are centering our interest on getting to the center and finding out what is there. I have no theories. It may be land or ice."

STATE CONSTABULARY

Bill Creating New State Police Force Ordered to Third Reading

(Special to The Sun)
BOSTON, May 13.—Organized labor sustained another bitter defeat in the house yesterday afternoon, when the bill creating a new state police force of fifty men—generally called a state constabulary—was ordered to a third reading by a vote of 125 to 55.

The vote followed a long debate in which Rep. Andrew P. Doyle of New Bedford, leading the fight for the labor men, reminded the members of the demands of Governor Cox for economy, while members of the ways and means committee, which reported the bill, ridiculed the claims of the labor representatives that a force of fifty men, scattered all over the commonwealth, could be a serious factor in labor disturbances.

He pointed out that the pending bill does not in any way coincide with Governor Cox's recommendation on the subject, because the governor asked for a "small motor vehicle patrol of inspectors, attached to the department of public works." The pending bill, he said, creates an entirely new police force.

Movie Censorship Bill
The senate, by a single vote, ordered the moving picture censorship bill to a third reading, the vote being 19 to 15. Several senators remained silent when their names were first called, but finally when all but one had responded to their names, the vote stood a tie 18 to 18.

GIRLS! BLEACH SKIN WHITE WITH LEMON

Squeeze the juice of two lemons into a bottle containing three ounces of Orchard White, which any drug store will supply for a few cents, shake well, and you have a quarter pint of harmless and delightful lemonblanch. Massage this sweetly fragrant lotion into the face, neck, arms and hands, each day, then shortly note the beauty and whiteness of your skin.

Famous stage beauties use this lemon lotion to bleach and bring that soft, clear, rose-white complexion, also as a freckle, sunburn, and tan bleach because it doesn't irritate.—Adv.

Romance Perishes When Its Wings Are Clipped

CONRAD NAGEL. HE'S ONE OF THE MOST POPULAR LEADING MEN OF THE SCREEN. HE HAS THE MADE LEAD IN "THE LOST ROMANCE."

By JAMES W. DEAN

Monotony kills romance. That's the moral of "The Lost Romance," just released.

The play is by Edward Knoblock. It points out that few humans have the disposition or temperament of plow horses. When love is taken for granted, romance dies. For romance demands change, excitement.

Sylvia (Lois Wilson) is loved by Mark, an explorer (Jack Holt), and Allen, a doctor (Conrad Nagel).

The doctor wins her. The explorer goes away—but he still loves Sylvia. Sylvia and Allen live like two doves in a cot. Their happiness is complete when a son is born.

Then the years lag. Their feet tread the clasp of commonplaces. Both consider themselves martyrs.

Mark returns from the jungle. Maternal duties are empty things when Sylvia realizes that Mark still loves her.

She plans to divorce Allen and marry Mark. However, difficulties are patched up between Sylvia and Allen.

All would have gone well but Sylvia yawns as Allen is about to kiss her. That disgusts him. The breach is widened.

Sylvia again lays plans for a divorce. Then—the little son disappears. A common sorrow brings Allen and Sylvia together. Through the long, dark hours of night as they wait for the son's return they realize that they love each other as much as ever.

Mark realizes that Sylvia did not love him, because she turned to her husband in time of grief.

Denouement: Sylvia's aunt had hidden the child to bring hubby and wife together.

BODY REACHES LOWELL

Funeral of Private Thomas J. Quirk, War Hero, To Be Held Here

The body of Private Thomas J. Quirk, one of the first Lowell men to give up their lives in the world war, has arrived in this country from France and will be removed this evening to the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Quirk of 1546 Gorham street, by Undertakers M. J. McDonough Sons.

Private Quirk enlisted in Co. G of the 104th Infantry, formerly the old Sixth Regiment, in June, 1917, shortly after the outbreak of hostilities. He received his preliminary training at Birmingham, Ayer and Westfield, and went across in the summer of 1917 with the other members of the regiment. He saw active service until February, 1918, when he was stricken with pneumonia in Solissons, France, and died Feb. 17. He was only 17 years of age at the time of his death.

Private Quirk is survived by his parents, two sisters, Irene and Mary Quirk, and one brother, John Quirk.

once one week from today on a charge of assault with attempt to rob and of robbing Lyndon Felling of School street of a watch, watch chain and knife on the evening of April 21.

According to the story told by the police, Felling, accompanied by a young woman was walking in First street, near the old car barn, on the evening in question when he was held up by Matson, Mack and Samuel L. Campbell, who is now in the house of correction. Revolvers were displayed, according to the police. Felling's watch was valued at $20 and the chain at $10. Mack and Matson were arrested last evening by Lieut. Martin Maher. Mack's home is said to be in Lawrence.

Matson is one of the young men who appeared in police court a day or two ago on a charge of entering the Paris Lunch in Middlesex street on the evening of April 30 and stealing a safe valued at $10 and $375 in cash. He and Campbell, who also figured in the safe removing episode, were at that time each held in $1000 for the grand jury. Campbell was unable to produce the $1000 and was sent to the house of correction pending action by the grand jury. Matson was out on $1000 bail.

Mack was also charged at this morning's session with being implicated in the Paris Lunch robbery and was held in $1000 on the charge. Both men will appear in police court one week from today. The continuance was asked by the prosecution.

The Catholic population of Morilla was much incensed Sunday when radicals entered several churches and broke many images.

The demonstration was resumed again in the evening. Vicente Coyt, inspector of police, led a large unit of fully armed gendarmes against the demonstrators, few of whom carried arms. The latter refused the demand

For the informal afternoon affair the gray chiffon which Miss Billie Wedgewood of the Lady Billy company wears, is just the thing. ### HELD CHARACTER PARTY

Entertainment by Capt. Paul Kittredge Council, A. A. R. I. R. in Y. M. C. I. Hall

The character party held last evening in Y. M. C. I. hall, Stackpole street, under the auspices of the Capt. Paul Kittredge council of the American Association for the Recognition of the Irish Republic, was a most successful affair and a substantial addition to the local Irish relief fund will result. There was a large crowd on hand and the entertainment was the most enjoyable and successful yet held by the council.

The costumes displayed during the evening helped to conceal the identity of many of those present and judges of the grand march found difficulty in selecting the winners. Miss Rose Laverty won first prize for the best woman's costume and Miss McDermott, Mrs. Leo Tansy, Mrs. Paul Choquette and Miss Helen Crane were the other prize winners. The prize winners in the men's competition were J. J. Clowery, Joseph A. Preston, Joseph McLaughlin and John Payne. These gentlemen appeared in outfits that were not only comical but quite attractive. John Payne was arrayed in colonial style and his partner personified Miss Liberty. This couple led the grand march.

Earlier in the evening an excellent program of entertainment was carried out with the following taking part: Scotch dancing, Miss Bernadette Flanagan; piano selections, Lawrence Kane; fancy dancing, Elena Redmond and Little Peggy O'Reilly; piano and violin selections, Charles T. Flood and David Connors; Irish folk dances, John J. Clowery, Mrs. O'Shaughnessy, Miss Barry, Mrs. Patrick McDermott and Mrs. Catherine McMahon; song, William Moss; song, Warren Kane. In the folk dancing contest Irish couples were represented and the rivalry excited much interest.

Mrs. Percival and Frank Redding were the accompanists for the occasion.

General dancing followed and continued until midnight with the following musicians kindly offering their services: Piano, Frank Redding; violin, George Halligan; cornet, Sumner Edwards; and drums, Charles Sullivan. The committee in charge of the affair included the following members of the council: Mrs. John J. Clowery, chairman; Mrs. Thomas McNamara, Mrs. Nellie O'Hearn, Mrs. Helen Beaty, Mrs. E. Lyons, Mrs. Mary Curran, Mrs. Catherine McGinnis, Mrs. Michael Kierce, Mrs. O'Neill, Miss Cecilia Fallon, Miss Sadie Clark, Mrs. Patrick Kane, Miss Hannah Lennox, Mrs. Thomas Seillane, Mrs. Alexander Anderson, and Mrs. George Sharkey.

They were assisted by all the other members of the council as aids. The refreshment committee consisted of Mrs. Patrick Kane, chairman; Mrs. Thomas Seillane, Mrs. Alexander Anderson and Mrs. Geo. Sharkey. Patrick Kane was the interlocutor of the evening. John McGowan and Mr. Garvey were the door committee.

Lowell Murder Case

proven guilty. He referred to the "universal kindness of the law," and said that it holds that "every man does right until the contrary appears."

He said that the fact that the grand jury returned indictments against the prisoners must not be considered as having any weight. He defined the various necessary factors entering into murder in the first degree. He said that when there is a specific intent to take life or to do an unlawful act, which naturally would cause the taking of life, there is malice aforethought. He said that it is immaterial to show that a man has any particular motive, but if a motive is shown it is evidence of intent. He told the jury that they are to find the degree of murder, if murder is found at all.

All Equally Guilty
He said that if all the prisoners or any of them conspired to rob the deceased and that in progress of a common design to rob the conspirators being present, all found guilty are guilty in the first degree. He stated that the commonwealth is not required to show deliberate premeditation in a case in course of which robbery with assault or putting in fear, armed or unarmed, result in a murder. He said it was important for the jury to be satisfied that the Theberges were found with Fortier in a common undertaking if they are to be considered guilty. He informed the jury that mere flight by the Theberges would not save them from responsibility if they were actually members of a conspiracy and were there to aid.

Fortier, he said, according to his understanding, could not be found guilty of manslaughter, for it mentally sound and found guilty, it would be first or second degree.

The judge stated that it was for the jury to decide whether the alleged confessions were obtained by the police through violence or inducement. He said it was not necessary, according to law, to warn the prisoners of their rights to make a confession valid, except that it would bear on whether the confession was voluntary. He also stated that no prisoner can be bound by the statement of other prisoner even if he is present unless he assents.

Fortier's Mental Condition

The judge then took up the mental condition of Fortier. He said that if the prisoner knows that his act is against justice and right, and is wrong and criminal, he is responsible. Partial insanity does not exempt him if he is aware of his act. He pointed out that the evidence showed "want of mind," rather than insane delusions. His Honor spoke of the fate of the prisoner being on one hand and the fate of society on the other, and said that this made it most necessary for a correct conclusion by the jury.

He warned the jury that discussions by counsel were not evidence, although, he said, he made this statement with the thought of criticism a long distance from his mind. He instructed the jury in the manner of announcing their verdict and closed.

A conference at the bench resulted in the jury being allowed to take a typewritten copy of Mr. Goldman's note of statements by the prisoners, with them to the jury room. The judge explained that if the jury was convinced that Fortier being of sufficient sound mind to be responsible for his act, killed the deceased, the murder, if it was a murder, could be first or second degree. The only other verdict in his case could be not guilty by reason of insanity. The Theberges' decision, however, could be first or second degree or manslaughter, or not guilty.

He pointed out to the jurors that the consequences of their decision are as momentous to the community as to the prisoners and he admonished them not to be misled by appeals on one side or the other, but only by the evidence.

Arguments Made

Atty. O'Neill resumed his argument for defendant, Lionel Theberge at the

MEXICO WILL NOT SIGN

Condition of Recognition
by United States

MEXICO CITY, May 13.—Mexico cannot and will not sign a formal protocol as a condition to recognition by the United States, President Obregon announced today in referring to President Harding's policy, as outlined in despatches received here on Tuesday. He said he had received letters recently from friends in Washington, who assured him they saw in President Harding, Secretary of State Hughes and Assistant Secretary of State Fletcher three men with extremely cordial feelings toward Mexico, who apparently were inclined to establish relations between the two countries.

Although President Obregon has insisted that this government cannot sign a formal treaty, or protocol, it is known here that an informal exchange of communications between the two governments which would be tantamount to formal conferences, would not be rejected by the Mexican government. Friends of President Obregon assert that he is willing to give the United States any information, it desires relative to conditions in Mexico. Assurances have been given as to safeguards and guarantees for foreign investments and various public declarations by President Obregon indicate he believes such assurances are ample and sufficient to prove the nation's stability and its right to recognition.

Referring to Great Britain's evident intention to withhold recognition until safeguards are given, the foreign office states that the Mexican government wishes at all times to return all confiscated property to its legitimate owners and to pay for damages suffered during revolutions.

"Not for one moment," the statement added, "does the Mexican government wish to abrogate its promises, much less to appropriate goods belonging to another, either a foreigner or a Mexican."

ACUTE LABOR SHORTAGE

Great Sugar, Pineapple and Coffee Plantations in Hawaii Facing Extinction

HONOLULU, April 25. (Delayed—By Associated Press.)—The great sugar, pineapple and coffee plantations of Hawaii are facing near-extinction as the result of the most acute labor shortage in the territory's history; the rice-growing industry of the islands has been wiped out by the same cause, and the business of Hawaii is fast slipping into the grip of the Japanese, the dominating race in the territory, according to Gov. Charles J. McCarthy and Albert Hornier, territorial sugar expert.

Gov. McCarthy has asked the legislature to amend the immigration laws so that labor, including orientals may be imported with the provision that such importation shall be only for limited periods and shall not operate so that there will be within the territory at any time a total number of aliens of any one race more than 25 per cent. of the population of the territory.

This last provision would bar the importation of the Japanese, stopped since the "gentlemen's agreement" as made in 1907 since already the number of Japanese in Hawaii far exceeds 25 per cent. of the total.

So urgent do the governor and his advisers consider the situation that he has asked the legislature to authorize the creation of the Hawaiian emergency labor commission of three members to go to Washington and impress the territory's critical situation upon congress.

It has been for some time an open secret in sugar circles and in govern-

the files without the formality of debate or consideration. Mayor Perry D. Thompson was absent from the meeting and on his return he took his associates to task for their hasty action and offered a resolution at a council meeting ordering the paving of Chelmsford street by contract. Commissioner Dennis A. Murphy offered an amendment which was approved, that a hearing should be given on the subject. Whether the hearing is to be confined to the question of contract work on the street named, or the whole subject of taking highway work out of the hands of the street department will be open for discussion is not known.

Fireworks or a Fizzle
Today the question was being discussed in circles in which there is interest in street construction work as to whether tonight's hearing was likely to result in a fizzle or the setting of an elaborate display of oratorical fireworks.

It is known that there is considerable opposition to the introduction of contract work on the streets. In laboring circles, especially, there is a disposition to object to having outsiders come in and do the work that heretofore has been under the direction of the street department. One of the questions that is being asked by the workers is whether or not outside contractors would agree to pay the same rate of wages as are now being paid by the city to its street men.

The recommendations of the chamber of commerce to the municipal council provide that a clause shall be inserted in any contracts that may be entered into for street work providing that only Lowell workers, if obtainable, shall be given employment, and that first preference shall be given to persons whose names are on the civil service lists of the city.

No information was obtainable at the chamber of commerce rooms today regarding the rate of wages that would be paid by contractors who might be bid on street work.

"Current Rate of Wages"

It is generally understood that the contractors, if employed would pay their men the "current rate of wages." This, it is asserted by persons interested in ascertaining the effect of a change in methods of street construction on the workers' pay would mean that pay would be very much less than the amount now being received by the city's workers. A large part of the street department laborers now receive, it is understood, 15 or slightly less a day.

It was stated today by friends of the workers on the streets that a "current rate of wages" might be interpreted by contractors as meaning as little as $3 a day, and that if this wage was paid to men constructing streets for contractors the wage would have been entered for chipping down the pay of the men in the street department to a corresponding level. It was also asserted that it was probable that with men drawn from the civil service list working for contractors on highway construction for low pay and another body of men employed by the city on the streets at much higher wages, much dissatisfaction and discontent would result.

Cheaper Labor

It was also claimed by opponents of contract work that an outsider would find it impossible to construct streets so much cheaper than the city, as it has been claimed they can, unless they employ much cheaper labor.

That there is deep interest among the members of the chamber of commerce in the fight to take street construction work out of the hands of the street department is shown by the number of votes that have been cast in a referendum to determine the attitude of the membership on the question of authorizing the board of directors to invoke the initiative to force the council to adopt a measure providing for throwing street work open to competitive bidding. The referendum marks did not reach the members until yesterday morning. In yesterday's mail 150 votes were received. In the early delivery this morning were 170 additional ballots. The returns indicate the largest response ever made to a request for an expression of opinion in a chamber referendum. All votes to be counted must be received in the chamber's rooms not later than Monday afternoon.

Wells to Appear

Secretary-Manager George E. Wells is to appear at tonight's hearing before the municipal council in accordance with instructions formulated at a conference of the board of directors Wednesday. Mr. Wells' instructions provide that he shall set forth the chamber's attitude on contract street work as already shown in its communication to the council, but that he shall be without power to commit the chamber to any other course of action than that already outlined. It is understood that Mr. Wells will not respond to any attempts that may be made to "heckle" him by persons present at the meeting, and that he will refuse to enter into any argument of discussion.

It is understood that a decision by the municipal council to have paving work done on Chelmsford street alone, or on a limited number of other streets will not halt the chamber's plans for invoking the initiative to force the council to adopt an order turning all of the new highway building over to contractors.

Spoiled Children Real Divorce Germ, Says Expert; Cure Starts at Cradle

LOS ANGELES, May 12.—Divorce starts in the cradle, the expert says. The child who grows up in the lap of the "other woman"—but, like many another disease, the germ was already in the system.

For there is a "divorce germ," declares Mrs. N. A. Courtwright, now in charge of the city social service commission here, and she should know, for she has had the divorce disease under a microscope for many years.

And this germ, she declares, has no Latin name. It is simply this: Spoiled children.

Spoiled husbands are grown-up spoiled boys and spoiled wives are grown-up spoiled girls, and the two make divorce.

Her Conclusion

This is what she says: "The average boy and girl of today is not taught to control. Self-control is not in the category of child attributes. The great sin of modern mothers is their everlasting 'babbling' of children. Kissing, kissing, kissing their children when they are hurt, when they are hungry, when they are tired, when they are asleep. Kissing is supposed to be the cure-all. It is not love, I contend. It is merely emotionalism, bad for the child, bad for the mother. The modern child is obsessed with a mother's sympathy. He never learns to depend on himself, even for the smallest things."

Mrs. N. A. Courtwright

"The consequence is evident in a variety of ways when that child grows to womanhood, or manhood, and wed. Neither husband nor wife has learned self-restraint nor poise nor self-sufficiency."

"I have had dozens of men, who were seeking divorce, say to me—'My wife is so unsympathetic. I could do wonderful things and accomplish something worth while if my wife would only sympathize with me and show an interest in what I am doing.'"

"Pooh! Pooh! There you have the over-sympathized-with child grown into a weakling of a man."

Makes Study

Mrs. Courtwright is making a careful study of child-life and its environment.

She is noting cases in which boys and girls are being allowed to follow their own sweet will.

She is tabulating results, as the children grow, under an analytical eye.

These children are of all ages. Some of them soon will be seeking the marriage license clerk and building homes of their own.

It is her purpose to follow their destinies and to prove—at least in a few cases—the truth of her assertions.

BIG OPPORTUNITY FOR AMERICAN TRADE

J. W. Sanger, commissioner of the U. S. Department of Commerce, has just returned from China, where he made an investigation of the advertising methods of that country, with an eye to the best way of advertising American goods. He had previously visited other countries of the Far East and his work naturally, has put him in close touch with trade conditions. He has written this article on American trade with the Far East exclusively for The Sun.

By J. W. SANGER

Business economists have figured that the difference between good and bad conditions is 17 per cent.

The foreign trade of the United States in 1920 was about 17 per cent. in other words, America was at the peak of prosperity and foreign trade was suddenly cut off, the country would drop to the pit of depression.

Those facts speak for themselves and point directly to the importance of foreign trade.

It is no longer sensible to discuss whether we shall, or shall not, enter into foreign trade. America has been in for years, and the country is bound to stay in.

The real question is: how shall we go about building up this foreign trade?

The Far East plays an important part in the answer to this!

There are scores of things that the United States must get from foreign lands. And for them, we must pay in gold or goods, preferably goods.

The most profitable foreign trade is in manufactured goods, and that is what the Far East needs most. Where France, England and Italy have facilities for manufacturing, the Far East, generally, has not.

Right now there is an abundance of silk, tea, and vegetable oil, that the United States can always make use of, in China. In return, China wants machinery, cotton goods and kerosene.

The main article Japan has that America needs, is silk—the index to the prosperity of Japan. And, from this country, Japan wants machinery and raw cotton.

From the Philippines the United States can get agricultural products, and in return send finished products.

Japan and the Philippines stand much higher in buying power, per capita, than China. Yet China offers wonderful opportunities to America, when you look into the future.

Right now the country is held in the background, in a trade way, because of the lack of transportation facilities. But that problem is bound to work out, in the future. The country is at work, at the present time, with the construction of foreign capital, on the construction of railroads.

As results come, trade possibilities are certain to improve. America can find a market, growing better all the time, in China.

Shanghai is the commercial metropolis, handling 40 per cent. of the entire total of foreign business. For the first time in the international history of China, the United States led, in 1920, in foreign trade, with that country.

Americans who have visited China return with a wonderful impression of the trade possibilities. They base their ideas on the fact that the population of China is about 400,000,000. Imagine selling, for instance, one pair of shoes to each inhabitant.

That would give the impression that 400,000,000 Chinese are just waiting for America to step in with goods. Such is not the case, however.

However, if but a small percentage of the population continued to buy an increasing amount of American goods, it would put hundreds of millions of dollars in American pockets.

Right now there is a bill, commonly known as the China act, before the senate, which if put into effect, would place the American business man on a par with business men of Britain, Japan and other foreign countries, in trade dealings with China. It would do away with income and excess profits taxes on business done by Americans in China.

Time will come when the Far East, after machinery orders are filled, will buy mostly the higher grade and more expensive articles from outside. The higher the grade, the bigger the profit.

Trade in the Far East is open right

now. And it is going to get better right along. When the Chinese railroad situation is straightened out, a boom in that section is bound to come. And with the general return to normal conditions, in all Far East countries, foreign trade is on the general pick-up.

The Chinese merchant feels very friendly toward the American merchant. He stands ready to welcome trade with America, but is a shrewd buyer, and will look to the best and cheapest market.

The American merchant will do well to get in strongly in the swing of trade with the Far East.

And it is well to remember that the more business—the more money—the more jobs. That's why trade with all foreign countries closely concerns every American.

Butterflies BRIGHT SPOTS DECEPTIVE

By EDWARD F. BIGELOW

The wings of butterflies are worthy of careful study.

The main framework is composed of chitinous tubes which are in reality double, the inner tube filled with air and the outer tube with blood, and what corresponds with blood, and which circulates most freely during the time that the butterfly is changing from chrysalis to imago; that is, from the time when it comes out of the pupal stage until it is the full winged insect.

After the wings are well formed the circulation of blood in the tubes is largely, if not altogether, suspended.

These tubes, like the meshes of a net, support membranes which are clothed on both sides with flattened, overlapping rows like shingles on a roof.

Butterflies at rest generally hold their wings rigid with their upper surface in proximity, the surfaces alone displaying the color pattern to the eye. There are few exceptions to this general rule, whereas on the contrary moths nearly always keep their wings widely spread.

Spots on the wings of some butterflies are their defense. For example, the eye spot of the cecropia has been thought by some persons to be one of two eyes with which the moth might frighten a bird tempted to capture it.

In South America there is a butterfly that goes so far as to alight upside down, when the big wing spots make it look remarkably like an owl.

Woe be to the adventuresome bird that would dare stick it, so the insect must think, secure in its natural camouflage.

Canada is discussing the possibilities of the musk ox as a source of wool. In the Arctic region, east of the Mackenzie river, millions of these animals are to be found foraging and thriving on a pasturage which no other animal but the reindeer could live on.

"The women of today must obtain a firm grip on the old-fashioned virtues of loyalty and helpfulness," says Miss Lincoln, who glimpsed these ideals for a few fleeting seconds during the war; then the American women wrote a chapter of service worthy to stand beside the record of the women of the Revolutionary and Civil wars."

About 12,500,000 acres of the new Czechoslovak republic are given over to forest cultivation. This is approximately 30 per cent. of the republic's whole area.

LABOR REVIEW

Davis Tells Aim of the Labor Department

In response to many requests for a definite statement of his attitude toward important industrial problems with which the federal department of labor is expected to deal, Secretary James J. Davis gives out a prepared statement which says:

"It is a time of perplexity for us all, a time of denial, of irritation. It calls for the utmost patience and forbearance on the part of every good citizen."

"Under such conditions, and with every variety of problem laid before it, the department will lay down no fixed policy. Its policy must remain flexible, readily subject to changing conditions."

"The only policy it is possible to announce for the present is not a policy, but an aim. Our aim is toward conciliation."

"I am out to preach the doctrine of good will and fraternalism, the spirit

Less Strife This May

The first week of May developed less labor strife than any similar week in previous peace years.

May Day itself, usually a time of demonstration, passed quietly everywhere.

Besides the usual grist of minor strikes and lockouts, there were three major disputes of national interest, involving shipping, building trades and job printers.

The shipping strike, more important than most landlubbers realize, grows out of fundamental differences over conditions, although brought to a climax by wage reductions.

The building disputes in many cities are not generally as startling in their effect of work stoppage as in other years, because of slack construction.

New York and Chicago job printers and unions have signed up on a 44-hour week basis. In other cities the strike gives evidence of being short-lived, with the same termination in view of the unions.

Labor Far and Near

Unemployment shows a very slight increase. Mass meetings, outdoors, held in New York by unemployed.

Paper mills generally shut down, and production tied up, by strikes due to wage cuts.

Contractors, material men and union leaders, numbering 110, indicted in Chicago for price-fixing and combinations in restraint of trade.

War department responds decision of war labor board and Secretary Baker, awarding $800,000 back wages, during war period, ordered paid to employees of Minneapolis Steel & Machinery Company, who continued production without strike during long-drawn-out hearings. Senator Kellogg's intervention on behalf of the company is credited with causing reconsideration.

California assembly passes law forbidding use by employers of "labor spies" and "spotters" in trade unions. Penalty, $250 fine or three months in jail, or both.

Department of labor reports wage cuts in many industries, particularly among unskilled and unorganized workers.

MAY STEAL THE RAINBOW

For Day Wear, Milord, But
Black and White for Dress

BY RUTH AGNES ABELING
He smiled—ah, such a sphinx-like smile, this expert on the manly style—when queried as to the direction men's modes take to reach perfection.

Follow women," thus quoth he, surely most engagingly.

Which brought forth visions rare, astounding, of men their lissome heights, surrounding, in rúgles, organ-dies and bows, in Meyenage and Spanish clothes; the 1810 decollete, the fanciful directorate; ribbons, parasols and sashes; uneven hems, tassels, slashes.

Men always follow the feminine mode as to line and color, in so far as they dare. Thus the season will be much given to greys and browns.

Gray is the color especially approved for the business and the semi-sport suit. The smartest of the latter are herringbone tweed and have the belted back only.

For the man who expects to golf during his week-end out of town, but would "travel light," there is the semi-sport of herringbone tweed with huge patch pockets, a belted back and trousers as well as knicker. Thus with a change of one garment he may step from the links to the office and be quite correct.

Top coats, like women's dresses, are lengthening their lines. They are loose box affairs hanging from the shoulders. Homespuns and tweeds are approved materials.

Black and white for dress with gray introduced for semi-dress, is the rule. For dress the stiff white pique bosom is correct with the white pique tie and either the poke or wing collar. The former collar is, of course, the most formal. Gloves worn for dress should be white with self backs. Links are white pearls.

With the Tweed man can vent a little more of his fondness for tone. His links may be smoked pearl and may sport an edge of platinum. The tie should be black. The shirt should be plaid pique and the collar of the low turn down variety.

However quiet he milord in his evening apparel, in daytime he may flirt with the rainbow. His ties, in their striped gaiety, may shriek at his wife across the breakfast table, and yet be perfectly correct.

Plin stripes of color have appeared in the handkerchief of the smartly dressed man and shirts have taken a fancy to figures, departing from the stripes and checks.

FOR BABY

There are possibilities in the barrel hoop. Let the male member of the family cut it in one place for you, then wind it with ribbon of a desired tint, snap it across baby's crib or buggy and tie his toys on. While you are busy you will not be interrupted to pick up the things he has thrown down.

DINNER WITH JACK

BY RUTH AGNES ABELING
It is terrifying in prospect—that first dinner at the hotel with Jack. There are so many things which, according to their doing or not doing, make or mar the girl. With a man, it's quite different. He is forgiven for his blunders, sometimes even liked for them, because they are attributable to his masterful disregard of things in general.

But a girl—never! She must be on to all of the little niceties—especially when she is dining with Jack! In the first place, when the supercilious personage, who stands so correctly in the dining room door, directs you to the waiter (to follow to your table, don't rush ahead of Jack! Remember that you have the evening before you, and in the graceful fashion of the French woman, walk beside him or just a trifle ahead of him.

If you were dining with a woman, since you are walking a trifle ahead just as you reach the table, you would take the farther chair which the attendant pulls out. But since you are with Jack take the nearest and this gives him the opportunity of easily helping you with your wraps—even though the waiter is there to assist you, Jack should show you that attention.

Ordering

As for napkins—as long as you don't tuck it under your chin—there will be no harm done! However, the absolutely correct thing for the dinner size, is to leave it in the double fold, that facilitates using it to dry your lips before drinking and thus eliminate the soiled-edged glass.

In ordering—if Jack is quite on to what he should do—he will consult your wishes on the principal foods and then order. If he leaves it very much to yourself, order moderately. The well-bred girl will not order extravagantly just because a man is paying for her meal.

Remember that when not in use, your knife should be entirely on your plate, don't let it trail from the edge of your plate to the tablecloth. And be sure that when you put your sherbet or ice cream spoon down, to eat your cake, that you put it on the plate under the cup or special service dish. A spoon should never be left in a stemmed dessert container or cup.

Perhaps the waiter will put the coffee urn with the two cups at your plate. If he does pour it for both and consult Jack as to sugar and cream. He may arrange it for Jack to serve, or may serve it himself. A ciga-ret with his coffee, if Jack wishes, is quite correct.

Leaving

For finger bowl service—put the tips of your fingers in the bowl, then dry them on the napkin. Then moisten the cleaned finger tips again, touch them to the napkin and pass it across your lips.

In leaving the table—give Jack an opportunity to assist you with your wraps, then either walk out beside him or slightly behind him.

There now! Your dinner is over luck it under your chin—there will be no harm done! However, the abso-

NEW PASTOR INSTALLED

Rev. W. B. Tuthill Formerly
Placed in Charge of Eliot
Union Church

In accordance with simple, time-honored Congregationalist usages, Rev. William B. Tuthill was formally inducted into the pastorate of the Eliot Union church last night. Previous to the installation service a meeting of delegates from 17 out of the 24 churches in the Andover Association of Congregationalist churches took part in a council at which Mr. Tuthill read a paper, "Fidelity and Knowing God," which contained a statement of his religious beliefs, and members of the council asked him many questions. At the meeting of the council Rev. Arthur Stanley Beale of the Highland church acted as moderator and Rev.

Arthur G. Lyon of the Pawtucket church served as scribe.

At the installation service in the evening, following Gounod's "Marche Romaine," played on the organ, Rev. Arthur G. Lyon of the Pawtucket church served as scribe.

At the installation service in the evening, following Gounod's "Marche Romaine," played on the organ, Rev. Arthur G. Lyon of the Pawtucket church served as scribe. The importance of personal religion was stressed in a sermon by Rev. Ashley Day Leavitt of the Harvard church of Brookline. The speaker said that it is the individual man that counts in the world and that God treats men individually and not collectively. He urged his hearers not to forget their personal religion in giving support to great movements.

Following the singing of "Eye Hath Not Seen" by Miss Hazel F. Tuthill, the installation prayer was offered by Rev. John F. Lovell of Chelmsford. Rev. Frederick A. Wilson delivered a welcome and charge to the pastor and Rev. William A. Bartlett gave the charge to the people. The closing prayer was offered by Rev. Herbert G. Mark and, following the singing of "For All the Saints Who From Their Labors Rest," the benediction was pronounced by the new pastor.

LOWELL Y. M. C. A. MEN GUESTS IN BOSTON

Mayor Leander F. Conley of the Red Triangle Village of the Lowell Y.M.C.A. and Membership Secretary N. R. Farnum were the guests last evening of the Red Triangle Village of the Boston Y.M.C.A. at a banquet held at the Boston Y.M.C.A. The banquet was the first annual one held by the Red Triangle Villages of Greater Boston, including Lynn, Lowell, Beverly, and Boston. The dormitories of these various Y.M.C.A.s have been put on a self-governing basis with a mayor and board of councilmen in charge. Mayor John Schriever of the Boston Red Triangle Village presided at the banquet last evening, following which there was a musical program and a general good time. Mayor Conley brought the greetings of the Lowell Villagers to the occasion.

Ben Turpin can't look his wife straight in the face when he tries to tell her why he comes home late. When he takes friends for a spin in his car only Ben knows where they're going, because Ben looks two ways at once.

Ben's eyes became permanently crossed when he forced them into that condition 10 times a day while he was acting the part of Happy Hooligan on the stage.

Ben isn't sensitive about his eyes. He made such a hit in Sennett comedies that he has been made a star. He was featured in "A Small Town Idol." His first starring vehicle will be "Love's Outcast."

As long as Ben can star and collect a star's salary on his affliction he intends to steer clear of surgeons and their knives.

"Some day when I am ready to retire and live like other people do, I'll have my eyes made like other people's," says Ben. Then I'll look the world square in the face and go straight.

Colored Photography

A. W. Peck has developed a colored photography process that seems to have been perfected that a company has been incorporated to produce pictures with the process.

Peck claims to have eliminated the fringe of intense color that appears around a moving object in pictures employing two or more colors.

He also claims that his process has eliminated parallax, the failure of backgrounds to remain in color-focus. If Peck's process eliminates these two things it is indeed near perfection, for these are the main faults of colored pictures now current on the screen.

275 BRITISH WARSHIPS HAVE DISAPPEARED

LONDON, May 13.—Some 200 destroyers, 25 battleships, and 50 light cruisers have disappeared from the British navy during recent months. The Admiralty has issued an explanatory announcement saying the vessels were all sold to British firms for breaking up.

This statement was the result of reports circulated in America that Great Britain was making extensive sales of war craft to South American governments for eventual transfer to Japan.

The only ships disposed of to foreign governments since the armistice, the statement said, "are the battleship Canada and two other vessels, all of which were sold to the Chilean government, for which they were originally built; one sloop to Denmark, two sloops to Portugal, and one sloop to Belgium."

FARRELL AS CHAIRMAN OF SHIPPING BOARD

WASHINGTON, May 13.—James A. Farrell, president of the United States Steel corporation, it was authoritatively stated last night, has agreed to accept temporarily the post of chairman of the shipping board and his nomination will be sent to the senate today or Saturday, together with the nominations of six other commissioners.

The acceptance, it is said, has been handed to the president with the distinct understanding that Mr. Farrell has simply been loaned to the government by the steel corporation for the purpose of reorganizing the shipping board along business lines and that when this is accomplished he will resume the office of president of the corporation.

Mr. Farrell is known to have been offered the post several times by President Harding, but has refused on the plea that he could not leave his personal affairs. Several others have been asked by President Harding to serve, but each has declared that their personal business responsibilities were of such a character that they could not be settled in time to be of any use.

Carmel Thompson of Cleveland, O., declined the post yesterday.

WOULD STOP SENDING MONEY TO SINN FEIN

LONDON, May 13 (by the Associated Press).—The British government is considering the possibility of introducing legislation to prohibit the receipt of foreign money in the United Kingdom intended to promote a revolutionary movement or to sustain revolutionary propaganda.

Edward Shortt, secretary for home affairs, made this announcement in the house of commons yesterday in answer to a question.

The move is supposed to be against so-called Sinn Fein funds sent from the United States.

"THE NINE HUNTING CONTEST" CLOSED

More than 400 entries had been received in "The Nine Hunting Contest" conducted by The Sun in co-operation with the Merrimack Square theatre, when the closing hour of the contest came at 9 o'clock last evening. The judges immediately began their work of elimination and it is expected that the winners will be known tomorrow.

Another feature of anniversary week at the Merrimack Square last evening was the awarding of a huge anniversary cake to the holder of the lucky coupon. Mrs. John McAllister of 452 Wilder street was adjudged the winner, holding coupon No. 4. The coupon was selected by a little boy in the audience. So large was the cake that the services of two waiters had to be called to bring it from Page's window and then the Merrimack Square management called a taxi to bring Mrs. McAllister and her bulky prize home.

BOLSHEVIKI VICTORIOUS IN BRITISH COURT

LONDON, May 13.—The initial judicial decision on a case arising out of the British government's last recognition as the de facto government of Russia was given yesterday afternoon when the court of appeal reversed a previous finding of the high court in the disputed ownership of a quantity of goods shipped from Russia.

The goods were confiscated by the soviet government in 1919 and sold to a firm of British importers last August.

The court of appeal found that since the soviet government had been recognized as the de facto government of Russia, it was not within the jurisdiction of the British courts to consider the justice or morality of the confiscatory order.

FIRING RESUMED IN W. VIRGINIA

Sheriff Hall Rushes to Battle
Zone With Big Supply of Ammunition

Gov. Morgan Appeals for Federal Troops to Quell
Disorders in Mine District

Calls For Federal Troops

WILLIAMSON, W. Va., May 13.—The people of the upper Tug river valley where a battle raged yesterday between the forces of the state and riotous hidden in the mountains awaited today some news concerning the request of Governor Morgan that federal troops be sent into the district.

Reports from the vicinity of Sprigg on the Kentucky side of the river, where the fighting continued intermittently until late in the night, but there was no information that the list of casualties, one known dead and two wounded, had been increased. A report from Sprigg that one of the attacking party there had been killed was not confirmed.

David Phillips and J. C. McCoy, who were arrested at Sprigg by the state police in connection with the shooting of Harry C. Staten, a state prohibition officer, soon after the firing started, it is expected, will be arraigned today.

The attack on the mining towns is declared to be an outgrowth of the disturbed conditions which have prevailed along the Upper Tug river with varying intensity, since last May 15, when a party of private detectives sent to evict miners from company houses at Matewan became involved in a conflict with the people of that town. Several detectives and three of the town's residents were killed. A strike of miners in this section was called in July and has since been in progress. On two other occasions federal troops have been called into Mingo county to restore order.

GERMAN FORCES ALONG ODER REINFORCED

OPPELN, Silesia, May 13. (By the Associated Press).—German forces on the left bank of the Oder are being reinforced by the arrival of former-German soldiers from Breslau and a number of known are coming from Germany. Several hundred security police from Hamburg and Berlin and a few from other German cities have reached Brieg, 20 miles northwest of here, and are authoritatively reported to have placed themselves at the disposal of German authorities.

The Poles, in the meantime, are known to be strengthening their positions with artillery, although they are not advancing. French sources declare that Adolphe Berthelot, leader of the Polish insurgents, has "needed" General Lorrain's instruction for the first time, and suspended his offensive. It is believed, cannot be prevented, unless the Poles evacuate their positions, the impression prevailing among German leaders that if the Poles are permitted to hold territory they have occupied, the Germans would have similar rights should they succeed in driving out the invaders and occupying the same region themselves.

EXERCISES IN PAIGE STREET ANNEX

The exercises which the boys of the high school regiment and the boys of the freshman class were to have held on the South common this noon in preparation for field day, were held in the Paige street annex, owing to the inclement weather. The members of the girls' battalions also held their exercises indoors.

MOVIE CENSORSHIP BILL PASSED

BOSTON, May 13.—The bill for censorship of motion picture films passed its last debatable stage in the senate today by a vote of 19 to 13. It had previously passed the house. After enactment in both branches it will go to Governor Cox for signature.

Gen. Pershing Named

said, General Pershing will direct training of the regular army and organized reserves which he will command in the event of active field operations before his retirement. He will retain the duties recently assigned to him as chief of the war staff now being organized. General Harbord, as assistant chief of staff, will take over all of the administrative details heretofore handled by the chief of staff. Mr. Weeks announced, leaving General Pershing free to direct the organization and training of the army of the United States as a whole, including the national guard and the organized reserves.

In time of war the plan contemplates that General Pershing would immediately assume command of the entire army and General Harbord automatically become chief of staff. In this way General Pershing would pass to the head of the field staff, already in process of organization, and General Harbord would take charge of the war department general staff and be entirely familiar with all the duties of the post, having performed them in time of peace.

SMITH COLLEGE HONORS HARVEY'S FIRST CALL ON MME. MARIE CURIE

NORTHAMPTON, May 13.—The honorary degree of doctor of science was conferred on Mme. Marie Curie, the noted French scientist, at Smith college here this afternoon by President William Allan Nelson. Mme. Curie and her two daughters arrived at the home of President Nelson at 2 o'clock, where the party was entertained at luncheon. Over 500 people attended the reception exercises in John M. Greene Hall, including delegations from the faculties of Amherst, Mount Holyoke, M.A.C., and other colleges.

Prof. Albert Schinz of Smith college delivered an address of welcome in French and Prof. H. Edward Walls of the chemistry department paid high tribute to the invaluable contributions made to science by Mme. Curie. In a section reserved for distinguished guests, Mrs. Calvin Coolidge, her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Goodhue of Burlington, Vt., and Mme. Curie's daughters. Among the trustees attending the exercises were George B. McCallum, treasurer of the college, ex-Governor Samuel W. McCall, Mrs. Charles Davenport of Boston, Mrs. Elizabeth Culler Morrow and Mrs. Edgerly Parsons of New York, Paul J. Sachs of Cambridge, and Frederick M. Jones of Springfield.

DECISION RESERVED IN SHAW CASE

BOSTON, May 13.—"We cannot pick those who are to be brought here on violations and personal sensitiveness cannot be considered in prosecutions," declared Assistant United States Attorney Joseph W. Keith, in argument in the alleged moonshine case against Louis Agassiz Shaw, of 6 Marlboro street before Commissioner Hayes yesterday afternoon.

Attorney Lawrence Ford, counsel for Shaw, had referred at considerable length to the "notoriety" brought upon Shaw, which he stated "could remain with him as long as he lives" through the entrance effected by Prohibition Agents Kelley and Sullivan with an alleged illegal search warrant.

"Publicity is not the fault of the court, but is due to the defendant's prominence and that of his family," retorted the federal prosecutor in his turn later.

POPPIES DAY IN LOWELL

Arrangement of the campaign as it will relate to Lowell and to secure permission to conduct a sale of poppies throughout the city on May 28.

As is already known, the American Legion at its Cleveland convention adopted the poppy as the national emblem of the Legion. The G.A.R., the Service Star Legion, Daughters of Veterans, Sons of Veterans, Women's Relief Corps and other patriotic societies have passed resolutions at their recent conventions, "to recognize the poppy as the national memorial flower to be worn on Decoration day."

The American-France Children's league has as its purpose the aid of children of French war heroes and in order to obtain the widest possible distribution of poppies for Memorial day, the league is seeking the co-operation of at least one of the patriotic societies or women's clubs as its representative in each community. In Lowell, Mr. Walsh will head the work and appoint his committees, both active and honorary, as well as handle the details for the sale of the flowers on the 28th.

The league feels that while, perhaps, members of patriotic societies have a prior right to wear the Flanders poppy, every loyal American will want to wear the flower on Memorial day first, in memory of the boys who lie in Flanders fields, and second, as a reminder that we shall never forget the cause for which they lay down their lives.

Motion pictures showing criminals in action have been barred in Chicago.

MADISON, Wis., May 13.—John F. Dietz, who attracted nation-wide attention more than a decade ago as the defender of Cameron Dam in northern Wisconsin, was pardoned today by Gov. Blaine. Dietz was convicted and sentenced to life imprisonment for the killing of Oscar Harp, a deputy sheriff, on Oct. 8, 1910, but the sentence was later reduced to 20 years.

Gov. Blaine in a statement said Dietz had an exemplary prison record and as a result had but another year to serve. The fact that he is now 60 years old and in poor health, were determining factors in the governor's decision, he said.

BOY SCOUTS FIND SUICIDE'S BODY

NASHUA, N. H., May 13.—As a result of the police calling out the Boy Scouts by the ringing of the fire alarm yesterday afternoon to search for Edward Jarvis, 33, of 314 Lake street, who had been missing since Monday, the body was found last night on the Cummings farm on the West Dunstable road. He had shot himself blowing his head off with a shotgun he had borrowed just before he left on a bicycle. He started for a hunting trip. He had been sick for some time.

LOWELL MECHANIC PHALANX

The next regular meeting of Lowell Mechanic phalanx, Old Co. 6th regiment, will be held at the camp of the organization in Tyngsboro, next Sunday. The camp is located at Johnson's camp on the Merrimack river, and commands a beautiful view of the river in either direction, while a large pine grove in the rear acts as a setting for the camp itself, making it a most desirable spot during the summer months. Quite a few improvements have been planned for the camp and members are requested to arrive as early as possible, as working details will be the order of the day. Transportation will be provided for all members who will meet at the armory in Westford street, Sunday morning at 9 o'clock. Dinner will be served at noon, after which the regular meeting will be held. The rest of the day will be occupied by general sports.

RAILROAD INVESTIGATION

Table Showing Expenses
and Taxes From 1917 to
1920 Submitted

WASHINGTON, May 13.—A table showing what sums had been expended for railway operating expenses and taxes from 1917 to 1920, inclusive, was submitted to the senate interstate commerce committee today by Julius Kruttschnitt, chairman of the board of Southern Pacific, who appeared for conclusion of his cross-examination in connection with the committee's inquiry into the railroad situation.

The total of operating expenses and taxes for the railroads, according to the table, rose from $4,442,000,000 in 1917 to $6,047,000,000 in 1920. Salaries of general officers of the railroads in 1920 totaled $17,119,463 as against $2,603,555,516 for labor.

The exhibit also showed that in 1917 four of every dollar expended for operation and taxes $3 cents went for wages of employees, and this had increased in 1920 to 53 cents. Salaries of general officers decreased from 1.15 cents to 0.74 cents out of each dollar. The

NEW HAVEN, May 13.—Three thousand people yesterday called to see the first set of quadruplets born in this city in 20 years. The little folks lay at the home of their parents, Michael Skelso and Mrs. Michael Skelso, of 9 Olive street, while throngs of interested people called to make their acquaintance. They are ideal babies and, one woman said, "They do nothing but sleep and laugh."

COAL GAS TOMORROW

A number of new valves in the gas-making apparatus at the School street plant of the Lowell Gas Light Co. are being installed and General Manager C. R. Peckard hopes to have coal gas running through the pipes to grow on Sunday. He said today, "The gas is being put in the pipes to grow on Sunday and last Saturday, continue to maintain their peaceful picketing around the plant."

Receiver for J. S. Orler & Co.

BOSTON, May 13.—Patrick A. Duane, formerly United States marshal, was appointed receiver for the investment banking firm of J. S. Orler & Co., today. The action was taken by Federal Judge Morison on petition of three creditors. Jordan S. Orler, head of the firm, John D. Beyer, a former employee, and Mrs. Jane Putland, were arrested yesterday charged with larceny of securities valued at $115,992, from Mrs. Walter K. Martin, a widow.

U. S. May Have to Come to R. R. Rescue

WASHINGTON, May 13.—Unless some way is found to increase revenues and reduce expenses, the railroad deficit will have to be met from the national treasury, Chairman Cummins of the senate interstate commerce committee declared today at hearings on the general railroad situation.

Declines to Become Ambassador to Japan

WASHINGTON, May 13.—Dr. David Jayne Hill of New York is understood to have definitely declined to be considered for ambassador to Japan and it is believed he is foremost among those now under consideration for ambassador to Germany when diplomatic relations with that country are resumed.

Samuel Gompers Sounds Warning To the Enemies of Unionism

By H. N. RICKET

WASHINGTON, May 13.—"I know something of the struggles of the toiling masses of our country. I have lived to see industrial depressions and panics, so-called. I have seen the pendulum swing both ways—to industrial revivals and activity as well and I say in all earnestness that it won't do, it bodes no good for the enemies of the rational labor movement at this critical juncture in the affairs of the nation, to drive the bargain too hard."

The speaker was Samuel Gompers, president of the American Federation of Labor. For 40 years Gompers, now 71, has been one of the leaders of the organized labor movement in America. For 31 years he has been its undisputed leader as president of the federation.

As the one man qualified by position and experience to present labor's side of the present drive to reduce wages and to establish the "open shop," I arranged an interview with him.

The foregoing was his answer to my first question and then he continued: "Every reduction of wages is a reduction in the consuming power of the wage earners and a direct blow at the future prosperity and well-being of the country."

"Organized labor is not only insisting upon maintaining the present standards of wages and working conditions, but proposes to continue its struggle to further improve those standards."

"It is astounding but true that even after so great a lapse of time since the ending of the war, there is, so far as the average family is concerned, practically no reduction in the high cost of living. I will admit freely that in some commodities there has been a reduction of price in the wholesale markets, but there has been no commensurate reduction in the retail prices at which the working people must make their purchases."

"Labor has time after time indicted the commercial interests of the country for wanton profiteering. The government continues to be impotent in the face of the criminal operations of the profiteers."

"Going hand in hand with profiteering there has been and is a shameful and unduly unjustified over-capitalization of industrial and commercial projects, compelling the consuming public to pay, interest in the form of inflated prices on vast sums of money, back of which there is no foundation of intrinsic value or productive capacity."

"In the face of these incontrovertible facts the workers of the country, who compose the great mass of the producers and consumers, protest against the attempt to reduce the wage level."

"Leaving the subject of wages and the cost of living, Gompers took up the subject of the fight against organized labor in general and the drive for the 'open shop' in particular. He said:

"The 'open shop' and 'closed shop' are both misnomers. Employers hostile to trade unionism long ago gave to the union shop the name 'closed shop.' They also coined the term 'open shop' to describe the kind of a shop which it was their aim to create in opposition to the union shop."

"There is such a thing as an open shop, but it is not the kind of shop that most employers mean when they say 'open shop.' Least of all, it is not the kind of a shop that is meant by enemies of labor."

"The union shop is a shop in which there is a definite agreement between the employer and the workers as an organized unit. In union shops non-union workers sometimes are employed but only when union men cannot be had."

"The non-union shop is a shop in which union men are not employed, in which there is no organization of the workers and in which the workers, as a consequence, have no voice in determining the questions which affect them."

"The anti-union shop—and that is generally the 'open shop'—is a shop in which the employer pursues a militant policy in opposition to organization. It is the shop of the crusading employer, bent upon maintaining industrial autocracy."

"The kind of shop which certain employers' associations today are endeavoring to establish under the name 'open shop' is in reality the anti-union shop."

"The 'open shop' crusade is not what its name implies. It is a crusade against unionism. It is a crusade to break down the organized labor movement and to restore industrial oligarchy."

"There is no such thing as an 'open shop' campaign in America. Every person who has the opportunity to speak or to write, or to counsel his fellows should expose the fraud."

"What there is in America is a campaign on the part of autocratic employers to kill trade unionism."

"Then, after a few minutes' reflection, the leader of the labor movement continued: 'Suppose the organized labor movement could be wiped out of existence tomorrow, can anyone imagine what such a condition would mean with all the centralization of wealth, with all the centralization of industry in the hands of a few? What would be the condition of the working people be?'"

"I firmly believe that if it were possible to crush the organized labor movement, which it is not, that the possessions of the man of wealth and power would be a curse to him and anarchy would reign supreme."

"And in conclusion I want to say that now is one of the times that tries men's souls. With a vast number of unemployed, with the attempts to destroy the labor movement, and with the cutting of wages but still profiteering, the pirates in finance and business have much to answer for."

AMUSEMENT NOTES

By Theatres' Own Press Agents

OPERA HOUSE

Of the many laugh-producing scenes in the great comedy, "Billy," which is being given this week by the Lowell Players at the Opera House, are the efforts of (toothless) Billy himself endeavoring to hide his shortcomings when his teeth are shown and are lost. He's terribly sensitive about it and of course he falls into all kinds of trouble. Miss Priscilla Knowles, is also seen in a room that is productive of much humor, and the rest help materially.

Next week, the closing week of the season, the Players will appear in the merry musical comedy, "The Circus Girl." The management promises some surprises.

THE STRAND

Bert Lytell, one of the most sterling American screen actors, who is appearing in an adaptation of the great stage success of recent years, "A Message From Mars," is seen in one of his most interesting characterizations. You should not miss it. The other feature will be Edith Roberts in "The Fire Cat," a picture filled to the brim with action and interesting characterizations. The rest of the bill will have a comedy and Weekly. Good musical numbers also.

MERRIMACK SQUARE THEATRE

The dancers that confront a girl possessed of exceptional physical beauty form the central theme of "Prisoners of Love," the feature production at the Merrimack Square theatre for the week-end. Such a girl is "Blanche Davis," played by Betty Compson, late star of "The Miracle Man." Her irresistible charm attracts to her many over-ardent admirers. Her experience in meeting these various admirers form a most interesting and powerful story. The other big feature for the week-end, "One Man in a Million," stars George Beban, said to be the greatest interpreter of foreign characters on the American screen today. A comedy and the International News Round out the bill.

B. F. KEITH'S THEATRE

The speediest bill for many months, headed by Bayonne Whipple and Walter Huston, in "Shoes," is underlined at the B. F. Keith theatre for the current week. This little comedy, with a dash of philosophy to it, is quite the most distinctive of its kind yet seen here. Tom Patricola and Irene Deiro are able seconds in the week's lineup, while Jack Kenney and Emily Barry make a wholly likeable pair of entertainers, after the style of musical comedy. The word "class" is written all over them. Vincent O'Donnell, who is known as "The Kid McCormack," is another performer on this bill who has bundles of talent, and the dancing act of Cooper & Lacey is a lively, well-given one. Other acts on the bill are Gutter & Della in a slam-bang bicycle turn, and Sankur and Zilver in delightful acrobatics.

RIALTO THEATRE

Lionel Barrymore, star of the screen, endears himself once more in the leading role of "Jim the Penman," showing at the Rialto theatre for the rest of this week. It is his best picture taken under the distribution of the Associated First National Pictures. The program also carries Babe Daniels in a smart picture "She Couldn't Help It," also an Educational comedy, an episode of "Fighting Fate," and the Fox News. Don't fail to see it.

More people are killed and injured by tripping, slipping, and falling than any other cause of accidents.

What difference does it make to you how EVANS' TRIPLE PHOSPHATES puts good, solid, red-blooded, healthy flesh on your bones as long as it does it and makes you feel 100 per cent better at the same time?

Evans' Triple Phosphates is something new and something that really does what is claimed for it. Start taking it today, in tea, food, and in your days you'll know that you are growing more robust and feel stronger and more active. Continue with the treatment faithfully for 15 days more and note with satisfaction that your nerves are growing more responsive; that your ambition does not lag behind; that you are really putting on solid, stay-where flesh and gain weight—ADV.

wishes, that a touch of color is appearing in your cheeks and that your occupation ceases to become a task and is a pleasure. Notice that never before in your whole life have you enjoyed living as you do today. Weigh yourself at the end of one month and let our scales tell the story.

Fred Howard and all good druggists have agreed to supply this, run-down, under-developed persons with the understanding that if one month's treatment doesn't give most gratifying results your money is waiting for you. But don't take it even though it accomplishes wonders in nervous digestive troubles and as a general nerve tonic, unless you really want to put on solid, stay-where flesh and gain weight—ADV.

BIG FIRE IN LAWRENCE

Wheel Plant, Barns and Coal

Pocket Burned—Loss Estimated at $300,000

LAWRENCE, May 13.—Fire, which may have been of incendiary origin, swept through the "seasoning" department of the Archibald Wheel Company on West street last night, spread to adjoining buildings and for a time threatened to get beyond all control and eat its way through the heart of the tenement district.

It is estimated that damage of more than $300,000 was done before the flames were checked by the efforts of the entire Lawrence fire department and additional engines from Andover, North Andover and Methuen.

12 Horses Rescued

During the height of the fire the sky was illuminated for miles around, and thousands of persons were attracted to the scene. They jammed into the big vacant lot just south of the wheel plant, which was once occupied by Cuddy's arena, and the police had trouble keeping many from being injured.

The flames leaped to the barn of William J. Carroll's Sons, contractors, and the screams of imprisoned horses could be heard above the crackling of the flames. Lieutenant Edward Strolis led a detail of firemen into the blazing building and rescued 12 horses and a number of pigs before the roof fell.

Nothing seemed to stop the progress of the flames, which leaped to the concrete coal pocket of the Gage Company and set afire 1200 tons of anthracite coal. A number of firemen were painfully injured when one side of the Carroll stable fell in and one man, Edward Bolton of Engine Company 9, was taken to the hospital.

The heaviest loss was felt by the wheel company. Seven storehouses were burned up and with them went 100,000 oak wheel spokes and as many hubs and rims. Most of the material had been manufactured during the war for use by the government on artillery and had never been delivered.

Tenements in Danger

Silverman's junk shop was swept into oblivion by the flames and a dwelling house on the Gage property was also damaged. The flames worked frantically to keep the flames from spreading to the northward, where row upon row of tenements reach all the way to Manchester street and the power house of the Arlington mills partially blocks the way. They were successful in this because of the absence of a strong breeze.

Anthony Shinkonis, a watchman employed by the wheel company, declared that the flames started in a portion of the plant where it would have been absolutely impossible for them to have originated unless someone had deliberately started the blaze. Officials of the company know of no reason why anyone should have attempted to burn down the plant.

Just before the blaze was declared under control the storehouse of John Shea, a grain dealer adjoining the plant, caught fire and the firemen had another job on their hands.

Lurid Flames

Lurid gleams in the eastern sky called the attention of Lowell people to the blaze in Lawrence that destroyed a quarter of a million dollars worth of property and threatened to wipe out the centre of the business section about 9 o'clock last night. Preceding the big illumination there had been a glow on the horizon from a woods fire in Dracut. This faded into insignificance as the great body of red-hot smoke rolled up into the air from the Lawrence blaze. The Lowell firemen were in readiness to make quick time to the scene of the fire if their assistance had been called for.

LOWELL MOOSE HOLD CONCERT AND DANCE

The tenth anniversary of Lowell lodge, 518, Loyal Order of Moose, was observed last evening with a concert and dancing party, the affair being held in Associate hall. There was a large attendance and all thoroughly enjoyed the program given. In the early part of the evening concert numbers were rendered by the orchestra and later general dancing was started and continued till a seasonable hour.

The officers of the evening were as follows: Ernest P. Parsons, general manager; Edward St. Leger, assistant; Dr. Raymond J. Gendreau, floor director; Dr. Fred Donahue, assistant; Hector Jodin, chief aid; George P. Ellis, Charles W. Richards, William Booth, James Brady, Henry R. Gelineau, Patrick R. Monahan, A. P. The committee chairmen were chosen as follows: Membership, James Taylor; social, Joseph Hollingsworth; publicity, H. C. Gordon; religious, Rev. George B. Marston.

Tobacco Least Harmful of "Four Poisons"

LONDON, May 13.—Tobacco is the least harmful of the "four social poisons"—tea, coffee, tobacco and alcohol—according to Sir James Cantlie, the eminent surgeon, speaking here recently. "Smoke the same amount of tobacco every day," said Sir James, "and the heart will become accustomed to a certain amount. If one smokes less one day than another, he feels the effect as much as if he had smoked more." He said three days' abstinence from smoking would entirely free the system from nicotine. He condemned the cigaret.

GENERAL GUINEY COUNCIL MEETING

General Guiney council of the A.A. R.I.R. held a well attended meeting in St. Michael's guild hall last evening with President James Mullin in the chair. Thomas Delehanty reported the result of his interviews with several representatives and senators on the subject of recognition of the Irish republic. Mrs. Daniel Sullivan asked that all who plan to contribute to the cake sale to be held by the council in Gannon's store next Wednesday leave their contributions in the Guild hall between 2 and 6 next Tuesday afternoon. The following entertainment committee was appointed: James Mullin, Mrs. Daniel Sullivan, Dennis Brassill, Mrs. Richard Campbell, Mrs. James Farrell, Mrs. Mahoney, Mrs. Dominic Molloy, Hugh Leonard, John Flannery and Miss Delehanty. Patrick Moran, John Flannery, Thomas Delehanty and Mr. Conlon spoke on the good of the order, and entertainment numbers were provided by Dennis Brassill, Dominic Molloy, Miss Nora Duddy and Miss Sullivan.

Kilbane Tells Who Should Referee and Why

JOHN KILBANE
The task of selecting a referee for the Dempsey-Carpanza fight, in my opinion, is going to be a difficult one if the New Jersey officials insist that a Jerseyman be chosen.

If, on the other hand, the principals are given free rein, no better man than Bob Edgren, the stakeholder and general arbiter of conditions surrounding the articles could be found. Edgren has been a student of boxing for years, has a cool head, a good eye and keen judgment, and with it the ability of a trained athlete to get around the ring. Eddie Graney of California, probably as finished a referee as ever, is a pair of fighters to break and who can tell off the seconds with the accuracy of a split-second watch, is another good man. The late Jack McGuigan of Philadelphia would have been another good "third man," as he knew every angle of the game.

Danger in Referees
The trouble with our referees of today is that they are chosen more as a favor than for their ability. Instead of being named because they are merely good fellows and stand well with the principals or the managers and the promoter, their knowledge of the duties of a referee and of the rules, as they are now interpreted, should be taken into consideration. The fact that a man has witnessed many fights, has hobnobbed with fighters, managers and promoters does not make a competent referee of him. What is needed is not a big fat fellow whose sole claim to fame is based upon the brand of rum that he may have sold before the country dried up and almost blew him away, but an active man with a ring brain. Edgren and Graney represent the highest type of the latter class.

Few Know How
Few referees of today know how to handle the boxers. They have no right to tell a boxer when and how to fight or to manhandle him in the clinch. If a boxer is deliberately running away from a fight the referee has the power to disqualify him, but if he is showing skill and generalship in warding off the attack of a dangerous opponent or playing around for an opening, the referee has no right to bring him in, say, "If you don't fight pretty soon I'll throw you out of the ring."

Graney Shone
If the boxers can be convinced that the referee means business, when he talks of disqualification there will be little holding. That is where Graney shone as a referee. He never went between the boxers. In fact, he rarely

Third Base Rookie Fills Groh's Shoes With Reds

Pat Moran has a knack of picking brilliant third basemen. In Sammy Bohne, Coast league recruit, he has unearthed another jewel. Getting a man who could fill the shoes of the great Heinie Groh seemed impossible. But the rookie Red has but the buck. He holds brilliantly. He is a dangerous hitter. His speed on the bases is helping the run column of the team. Coupled with these baseball essentials he possesses an ideal third base temperament. The score: Bohne 1, Groh 0.

How Dempsey Rode on Box Cars to Championship

By HAL COCHRAN
Chapter I

This might be the story of a champion peach picker, the history of a miner, or the tale of a hero.

But it just naturally leads into the rise to fame of one William Harrison Dempsey.

About 15 years after Hiram Dempsey, erstwhile school teacher of Logan, W. Va., moved to the San Luis valley of Colorado, the story paid a visit to the little Dempsey ranch, between Antonito and Manassa. Then it was June 21, 1892, that William Harrison first saw the light of day.

In the early years of his life William got bits of schooling here and there, and plenty of outdoors and fresh air. It was the latter that played a big part in his growing into the husky of the family.

Handy With Mitts
When the Dempsey tribe moved to Montrose, on the western slope of Colorado, dad and mother Dempsey had six boys. They were all handy with their mitts, sometimes at milking, sometimes at peach picking, but most of the time in an athletic way.

If there was a baseball game, a football mixer, a wrestling affair or a boxing go in the neighborhood, it was a safe bet that the six Dempseys would be on deck. William and Bernard, an older brother, usually came out on top.

Bernard leaned strongly to boxing encounters and finally dropped his own first name, professed that of the famous Jack Dempsey, "Xonpareil," and stepped out into the surrounding country to take on other fighters.

Bernard Hires Out
William watched Bernard in a lot of his battles, and he saw his older brother flake out as a prizefighter. In the meantime there was all sorts of cut, freestones to be picked, and cattle to be cared for on the Dempsey ranch. William was long on the peach end of it, but managed to slip away for an occasional fight with some kid in the town of Montrose.

He finally grew into the town champ. He had licked every one of the village scrapper except one. And this one and William were buddies and had never mixed in a fistie way.

Success finally prompted William to grab off the title of "Jack," dropped by his brother, and he forth to conquer amateur battlers in other towns. Jack had no money, so he took a "private car" to Delta, Colo.

Jack Runs on a Freight
"It was soft pickin'," as Jack now recalls it. "I simply hopped into an empty freight car when nobody was looking."

This ride, as after events will show, was the first of many that went to make up the hero, catch-as-catch-can adventure, portion of Dempsey's rough and tumble career.

Delta held Jack's interest for but a short time. He battled in a few bouts, picked up some odd change, picking peaches, and finally headed for Lakeview, Utah, where his family had moved in the meantime.

Jack had had visions of a real money bout for some time. He soon climbed another freight and landed in Montrose. In short time a go was arranged—his first real combat encounter.

(The next story finds Dempsey a matchmaker, promoter and principal in the first match he got any coin out of.)

A Cincinnati bank has installed a target range in the basement. Bandits will find the employees ready to resolve them should they decide to visit the bank.

HAYDEN WINS THE DAILY PRIZE IN TOURNAMENT

Hayden dropped into the Crescent alleys yesterday and registered in the handicap bowling tournament and proceeded to scatter the pins in all directions. In three consecutive innings he piled up a total of 287 and as a result won the daily prize. Dr. Newton with 281 remains out in front in the individual class for the week. He also maintains his lead in the weekly single and the weekly picked strings. The figures for the week, including those of last night, follow:
Individual, Dr. Newton 331, Hayden 320, Brown 251, Lutender 246, Harroil 326.
Two-men, Bray-Hayden 656, Bray-Lutender 594, Flynn-Schomborn 531, Bray-Dr. Horne 537.
Three-men, Dr. Horne-Bray-Perrin 1012, Hayden-Whitlock 990, Schomborn-Livian-Perrin-Schomborn 925, Curtin-Barnes-Dr. Newton 872.
Daily prize, Hayden 327; weekly high single, Dr. Newton 331; weekly three picked strings, Dr. Newton 409.

THE INSIDER

Stanislav Zhyszko won the mat title in his bare feet.

Clarence Rowland, manager of the Columbus team, will get a bonus if he makes a good showing. His bonus is to be stock in the club.

Bill Tilden, tennis champion, says that he has been beaten more often than any other player. That happened when he was a kid.

Whether left-handed pitchers are effective or not depends on the men to whom the left hands are attached.

Boxers, who hit hardest, get fewer challenges than the glove tappers.

Watchful waiting is the only way fans can hope the Babe Ruth-George Kelly home run race.

Yale takes the same stand against razzing opposing players that Tris speaker does. "Down with the fog-horns," they say.

It is costing Heinie Groh money to nurse his dignity. Heinie could be drawing a $12,000 salary from the Reds if he was thought skilled.

Scott Perry will not have another party until he wins a game for the lowly A's.

Willard couldn't understand why people bet on Dempsey, but he found out.

Dempsey boasts a "straight front." That's where he had it on Babe Ruth.

Pop Anson admits that Ruth and Kelly would have been classed as sluggers even in his day.

If fighters of the yesterday could see the Dempsey-Carpanza show they'd be sure to say that they could lick him with a single blow.

U. OF PENN. AND CORNELL TRACK MEET

ITHACA, N. Y., May 13.—Track teams of the University of Pennsylvania and Cornell will compete in their annual dual meet at Schuylkill Field Saturday afternoon and a close battle for supremacy is anticipated. The meet will bring together two of the representative teams of the eastern universities. It is favored by many students of the sport to win this year's championship at the I.C.A.A.A. games at Cambridge, Mass. Cornell has won more intercollegiate track championships in the past 16 years than all of the other eastern universities and colleges combined.

Penn. will bring to Ithaca some of America's fastest short and middle distance runners, including Earl Eby, Larry Brown, Maxam and Head, a fast sprinter in 100 and 200 yards, a clever hurdler in 120 yards, and a fast runner in 400 yards. The Cornell team, while not as strong as it will be two weeks from now when it competes in the intercollegiate, has none the less developed steadily since its participation in the Penn relays, and its supporters are confident that it will give a good account of itself against the Red and Blue. Among the lead runners who will be seen in action are C. G. Irish, T. C. McDermott, N. P. Brown, R. E. Brown and H. V. Bousart, all members of last year's champion grass country team, who will compete in the mile and two-mile run; Carl John, an intercollegiate place winner in the 440; H. H. Smith, another fast quarter miler; H. Ramsey, who has done better than six feet in the high jump; Garden, who has equalled that mark; Goulinck, a good pole vaulter; Davidson, B. Righter, sprinters; A. B. and A. H. Treman, Vermilye, Watt, and Archbold, hurdlers.

Matthew Halpin of the New York Athletic club, manager of the American Olympic team at Antwerp, will be judge of the finish. The rival coaches were also prominent figures at the Olympic, Jack Mackley, Cornell's head coach of the American team, Lawson Robertson of Pennsylvania as assistant coach of the same outfit.

As the baseball team will be out of town, the track meet will be the only big athletic event at Ithaca this weekend. The baseball team left last night for Easton, where it will play Lafayette tomorrow. On Saturday, Cornell will cross bats with Fordham in New York city.

WILL PLAY OPENING GAME TOMORROW

The opening game of the Abbot Worsted Co.'s baseball season will be played tomorrow afternoon at Abbot Worsted, where the team will play the Boston & Maine Y.M.C.A. team as the opponents. This team is now touring the New England states and Canada and is said to be an exceptionally fast semi-pro outfit. Many former league players together with a number of college men are in its lineup. Abbot Worsted is expected to perform much faster playing when the athletes get the kinks out of their whips and begin to perfect team work. The teams played for six innings as darkness fell, and the game was called off with the South Ends at the bat.

Mayor Throws First Ball
The usual opening formalities, characteristic of all leagues, were carried out, with the mayor pitching the first ball and Ernie Lombard, who has agreed to donate a cup to the winning team, receiving the chief executive's honors. Mr. Kimball acted as a "punch" hitter, as Sept. Kerran of the park department was scheduled to perform, but he was unable to be present. Messrs. Morgan and Grady were the officials in charge and they handled the game in a most satisfactory manner.

Bank Garrys on the mound
The South Ends and McNulty took the rubber for the Gillespies. Garrys showed good form in the early stages of the game, as his teammates gave him a good lead to work on, he was seldom in danger. In the sixth, however, the Gillespies began to solve his delivery and as a result of their activities they piled up three runs. McNulty performed well for Charley Bird's aggregation, but received little support. Jimmy Liston, B.C. star played right field for the South common entry, and while he had little to do in the outfield, he showed much class and speed on the bases. He hammered out a fine triple and scored three runs. "Black" Falls got two hits and played well in the infield. And

South Ends Win Opening Twilight League Game

JIMMY LISTON

Behind and Canney's South Ends defeated the Gillespies in the opening game of the Twilight League before a large crowd on the South common diamond last night by the score of 7 to 5.

While the game was rather loosely played, this was to be expected as the contest marked the first time for many of the players to have worked together and also the chilly breeze that swept across the diamond was not conducive to snappy work. At several stages of the game, however, real classy work was witnessed and indications point to much faster playing when the athletes get the kinks out of their whips and begin to perfect team work. The teams played for six innings as darkness fell, and the game was called off with the South Ends at the bat.

Mayor Throws First Ball
The usual opening formalities, characteristic of all leagues, were carried out, with the mayor pitching the first ball and Ernie Lombard, who has agreed to donate a cup to the winning team, receiving the chief executive's honors. He hammered out a fine triple and scored three runs. "Black" Falls got two hits and played well in the infield. And each club scored two runs in the first inning.

Knock Score Brace in First
McCaun, who was the first man to step into the batter's box, was given a ticket to first. He was thrown out at second on Phinney's grounder to Crowe. Phinney was forced at second when Brosnan slammed one at Brosnan. Brosnan's error gave Boudreau first, with Brosnan moving to second. Both scored on Phinney's two-bagger to left. The latter went out trying to stretch the hit into a triple.

Liston opened for the South Ends by working McNulty for a pass. He stole second and continued on to third on Murphy's overthrow. While also walked. Buckley hit to Brosnan and Liston scored. White was nailed trying to go to third. Falls and Brosnan followed with hits and Buckley scored.

Four for South Ends
In the second inning after the Gillespies had been retired without a score, the South Ends made four runs, and the team halted around. A pass to Crowe, a scratch hit by Dillon and an error by Phinney on Garrys out Crowe across the plate and left two with none out. White's bunt went for a hit and Dillon counted. Buckley hit to McNulty, who threw to Murphy for a relay to first for a double killing. Liston scored. White was nailed trying to go to third. Falls and Brosnan followed with hits and Buckley scored.

Notes of the Game
The second game is scheduled for tonight with the Centralville and the C.M.A.C. teams opponents.

The crowd was estimated at 5000.

In Liston, Falls and White the South Ends have an all-star outfield.

McNulty showed good stuff, despite a tendency to be wild at times.

Several new faces were seen in both lineups.

TO PREVENT BETTING ON HORSE RACES
LOUISVILLE, Ky., May 13.—Adoption of a resolution calling upon the state legislature to prevent legalized betting on horse racing, as unanimously accepted by the Kentucky Federation of Women's clubs in annual convention in Danville, Ky., yesterday, was said today to be the first victory in a determined fight to have the perennial betting machines abolished and put gambling on horse racing in the class, legally, with other gambling.

The campaign against the machines was launched by a number of ministers and laymen at a recent meeting here. Helm Bruce, a prominent attorney, heads the committee. Widely known ministers also are on the committee.

Prepared resolutions protesting against permitting the betting to be continued have been presented to the organizations with the request that they be adopted. An address to the people of Kentucky, protesting against the gambling is being prepared and will be published within a short time. Ministers throughout the state are being asked to devote one sermon to "the evils of race horse gambling."

Don't Hide Them With a Veil! Remove Them With Othine—Double Strength

This preparation for the removal of freckles is usually so successful in removing freckles and giving a clear, beautiful complexion that it is sold under guarantee to refund the money if it fails.

Don't hide your freckles under a veil; get an ounce of Othine and remove them. Even the first few applications should show a wonderful improvement, some of the lighter freckles vanishing entirely.

Be sure to ask the druggist for the double strength Othine; it is this that is sold on the money-back guarantee.

BOYS' WEEK

The average boy is a problem in himself. He requires careful training, guidance and restraint until he knows what he wants and how to get it by honorable means.

In Chicago, some three million people are observing "Boys' Week" as the initial step to do something really helpful for the boys of that city, said to have been generally neglected in the past.

We can imagine what the boy's idea of a week devoted to his entertainment is likely to be: ball games, a carnival in the great outdoors, movies, a big circus, cookies, hot dogs and ice cream without limit would not the bill. Do not imagine that "Boys' Week" contemplates such a surfeit of good things. The aim is entirely different. The Rotary Club of Chicago has made a survey of the boy life of the city and finds that of the 325,000 boys only one-sixth are reached by constructive or educational agencies specially designed for boys. The other five-sixths have to take their chances without the aid of such activities.

The utility of these agencies would seem to be placed in doubt by the fact that the Boys' club conducted by the Chicago Union League Foundation finds that juvenile delinquency has increased in the ward in which the club is located, about 71 per cent. in the last year.

That state of affairs has aroused the business men of Chicago to the necessity of doing something to interest and amuse the boys so as to turn them from the downward paths on which many of them have evidently made a decided start.

They intend to provide wholesome sport and development for boys in order to overcome the evil influences and associations of the congested districts.

Chicago in providing more playgrounds, more outdoor sports, and more opportunity for healthy development for boys, sets an example that other cities, including Lowell, might well follow.

The policy of developing the boy as a social asset to the community rather than paying for the criminal, the drifter and the loafer as community liabilities.

The problem of interesting boys to the extent of keeping them on the right path and offering them all the necessary opportunities for development, is one that is very generally neglected by many cities and hence we have a great deal more juvenile delinquency than we should have.

The Chicago experiment will be watched with interest.

A CHANGE OF POLICY

Even though it had to come at the eleventh hour, the action of the municipal council in exercising its legal function to formulate the policies of all departments of the city government, will be duly appreciated.

Since a beginning had to be made somewhere, it is perhaps just as well that the street department should have been taken in hand first for direction, since street construction just now is prominently before the public. There are other departments, though, that are equally in need of general supervision and perhaps their turn will come later.

It is unfortunate that this change of heart on the part of the council did not come until the commission form of government is facing the prospect of being wiped out of existence by the adoption of a r-w charter.

The present charter has its defects and they are very serious ones, but it is, nevertheless, unfortunate that the results obtained under it have been much worse than they might have been, because the councils elected under it have neglected to live up to some of its best provisions.

The framers of the present charter showed wisdom when they provided that all of the important activities of the city government should be under the control and general direction of the whole council. Policies arrived at after general consideration and debate by the five members might have had real value that would have insured something of continuity for them. Instead of carrying out the intent of the charter, the members preferred to let each commissioner run his own department in the way most likely to serve his political ambitions. The result has been that the system has been discredited and it seems quite clear that the voters are to say in the not distant future that they will have no more of it.

The present council, however, can relieve something of the unsatisfactory reputation that it has acquired. If it will seriously buckle down to the business of working as a unit to get the street department settled in an established path that will lead to its furnishing the city with cheaper and better highways.

TO MULCT THE MOTORISTS

Hon. John N. Cole, commissioner of the state department of public works, comes out in favor of a radical increase in the license and registration fees of motor vehicles as a means of improving the state highways. At the present time these highways are in fair condition and will soon require repairs and in many cases new construction; but there is no justification for any attempt to saddle the owners of motor vehicles with the expense of making all the improvements which he thinks necessary. He believes that $50,000,000 would be required to put our state highways in proper condition during the next ten years. The roads are for all classes and not for motorists in particular. Moreover, what the motorists are paying to the state at the present time should be sufficient to pay for all necessary repairs to the state highways and even for some new construction. Last year the total amount paid to the state by motorists was $4,006,854.74, while the total paid by the state for maintenance, improvement and construction of highways was but $3,562,152.52. It is further asserted that motorists paid $40,000,000 in local taxes on their machines, so that they are contributing liberally to the local expenditures for highway purposes.

Thus it appears that motorists are already contributing quite largely to highway construction and up-keep and today greater imposts upon them would, in our judgment, be unfair. In any re-arrangement of fees, it should be remembered that the big motor trucks carrying heavy loads and by far the most severe business are doing a regular freight business and should be required to pay accordingly. Pressure cars, although numerous, are not often injurious to roads properly surfaced. Good roads are desirable, but apparently Commissioner Cole has in mind a very unreasonable and unfair scheme of meeting the expenditure.

GERMANY YIELDS

Germany has finally accepted the terms of the allied ultimatum which requires the payment of thirty-two thousand million dollars. The alternative, of course, is the seizure of her important cities by the allied forces and the virtual administration of a considerable portion of the country by the allies until the money, or the greater part of it, shall have been paid. By her objections and protests against the size of the reparation bill at first demanded, Germany has succeeded in having it cut down by one-half, and it would appear that the best thing she can do is to make up her mind to pay the amount now fixed upon as best she can. It will never repair the damage done to France and the other nations. Germany is getting off easy compared to what France and the other nations have had to pay in the destruction of towns and cities and the loss of life which can never be restored.

It is worthy of note that Germany did not yield until after the United States, through Secretary Hughes, warned her to accept the allied indemnity terms. Thus the United States played an important part in ending the diplomatic conflict as she did in bringing hostilities to a close in 1918. Yet some of the allies are so foolishly vain they did it and that the victory would have been won even if the United States had taken no part in the war, an assertion which is contrary to the acknowledged facts and the logic of the situation.

TONIGHT'S HEARING

Tonight at city hall a public hearing will be given on the recommendation of the Lowell chamber of commerce in reference to having street paving done at a reasonable price. No such hearing is likely to reflect public sentiment exactly. All that can be expected is an intelligent presentation of the case. It is not advisable to call for a vote at such a hearing inasmuch as it is an easy matter for either side to pack the meeting. What is wanted at this hearing is the arguments for and against the proposition submitted so that the public can draw its own conclusions and so that the municipal council may have reliable data for its guidance in future action.

It should be understood that this city is face to face with an emergency in street work and that the pay-as-you-go method of the past few years cannot be relied upon either to give us better streets or to give us a fair return for the money expended. Under such circumstances it is time to formulate a new policy. If the street department cannot do it, then some other agency must be drafted for the purpose.

SWAT THE FLY

Now that we are nearing the warm weather, the usual injunction is sent out to "swat the fly." Swatting the fly may be a slow means of stamping out this pest. It is a much quicker and better method to remove the cause—the breeding places of flies. The automobile has done much in this respect by eliminating the horse. Manure heaps are less frequent now than formerly, but the garbage cans and the dumps remain. It is necessary to attend to these, so as to prevent their being made the breeding places of millions of flies. It is all very well to kill individual flies, but much more important to clear away the manure heaps and the cesspools where the pest is propagated. It is a health measure that should not be neglected.

Asked for his opinion as to the probable fate of the treaty of Versailles, Senator Lodge replied, "Things cannot be done in a minute." Is it possible the senator is trying to steal the deserved reputation of Mr. Harding for indefinite vagueness?

Someone placed the line "Noted Beauty Recovers From Sickness" over a newspaper cut of Judge Kenesaw Mountain Landis. Now, which will it be, a $30,000,000 fine, or life imprisonment, if the judge has a chance to pass sentence on the guilty party?

"Do you remember when you used to see $5 gold pieces in circulation?" asks the Lawrence Tribune. Yes, and when the street-car conductors insisted they were gilded half-dimes and declined to accept them at face value.

Would not life be dull, drab and colorless indeed without a J. Joseph Hennessy occasionally assuming the role of ringmaster and snapping the whip at the show under the big top at city hall?

From recent happenings at the West Sixth street station of the water department it would seem as though the city had paid $45,000 for a pump that has brought with it a high-grade bomb.

We expect the suggestion sooner or later that the psychopathic experts shall be subjected to a test to determine the degree of their imbecility as shown by the questions they have devised to show grades of mental development.

Whale of a Story

The fish and fish story season is open in Algebrine, France. Fishermen report the capture of three whales. One was 54 feet long and weighed 50 tons, they said.

Rolling the Landlord

And now they're jumping again on the generous, patient, kind-hearted and long-suffering landlord in Chicago. They tell him he has to furnish screens for the windows in the houses of his tenants. The department of health calls attention to the city ordinance providing for this in a public notice coming citizens to a dry fighting. Officials promise to enforce it. All sympathizers with the kind-hearted and long-suffering landlords please raise their right hands.

The Better Times

When folks speak of "good old times," their minds run back to the decade between 1890 and 1900. They were the best of times, yet in those years no one was especially worried about social and economic problems. Life ran in a fairly smooth groove. Eggs sold for about 15 cents a dozen and butter for a quarter a pound. Millionaires were few. It seemed easier to get along then than now. But if you look at the percentage in the number of high schools in the United States since 1890 means anything, it means that we are better off than that generation. The tremendous increase of high schools must be interpreted as indicating a wider distribution of prosperity and a consequent desire on the part of parents to make the lives of their children richer than theirs were. In the last generation the high school was largely the well-to-do family's luxury. Today it is the preparatory school of the worker's child and for his benefit the modern city high school has become a vocational training centre. In those days a workman could not afford high school for his children. Today a workman cannot afford not to send his children to high school. The school is no longer a place where a child can get old soft nineties gave us cheap butter and eggs, but the harder 20th century has sharpened our vision for self-improvement and advancement. The needs of the day are more and more complex. The simple needs of the past are no longer enough. These are the better times.

The Pilgrim Way

But once I pass this way,
And then no more.
But once, and then the Silent Door
Swings on its hinges—
Opens and closes—
And no more
I pass this way.
So while I may,
With all my might,
I will essay
Sweet comfort and delight
To all I meet upon the Pilgrim Way.
For no man travels twice
The same highway.
That climbs through Darkness up to Light—Through Night

MAN ABOUT TOWN

A correspondent sends The Sun a series of complaints relative to the condition of Broadway, School street and Walker street. He thinks there are several streets in Lowell worse than First street but they do not attract so much attention. The repair gangs once suggested by The Sun to do some work have never got around to do any work.

"Misfortunes never come single aples, but in battalions," wrote the Bard of Avon. Amen, yea verily, said I this morning. Night before last there was a wedding reception in the residence next door to the abode in which I hang up my hat when the day's toils are over. Everyone knows what the accompaniments of a modern civilized wedding reception are. Civilized, did I say? I recant—the proper word to use is heathen, pagan, pre-neolithic, pre-cambrian or something of the sort. Wild savages never behaved much worse in the days when the bridegroom went out and sought his bride with a stone hammer in his hand, and the whole tribe rejoiced with warwhoops, lion-ton beatings and exultations that rent the atmosphere. Perhaps some wedding receptions in these latter days are very orderly and subdued affairs. If so, I do not happen to be fortunately familiar with that kind. For several hours—in fact as the society reporters used to say until "the wee sma' hours"—I listened to such a riot of noise as made the welkin ring. Cowbells were rung, tin wash boilers were beaten, sirens were sounded, auto horns were honked, and the climax was capped with unremitting jazz music. Sleep that night? A cigar store Indian would develop insomnia in similar surroundings. Then last night. First came a small concert at the home of a friend (?) at which the soprano, who looked like a baton, was hardly convalescent from bronchitis, the basso was a fit subject for an operation for the removal of adenoids, and the piano gave evidence of having been tuned by a man with an acute ear for producing discords. As soon as was consistent with a decent regard for amenities, I sneaked with my tormented nerves from the hell of noise to my own domicile. A whole battalion of misfortunes were there awaiting me. In a room beneath my bachelor apartment some one had incarcerated seven small dogs of tender age. About midnight they lifted up their voices in one united wail of protest over something that did not suit their fancy. There was no way in which I could still the crescendo of equals short of battering down doors or breaking windows. I hope the recording angel had cotton batting in his ears and did not overhear what was said in my apartment that night. I fell asleep at 6 a. m. this morning with the cat's-heads still performing with undiminished vigor. I go to my downy couch tonight with a brick under my pillow and a bottle noise-producers in the neighborhood.

Bow Before King Cupid

SAN FRANCISCO, May 13.—Young King Cupid hardly ever misses a chance.

The young, the middle-aged, the old are all legitimate targets for his arrows.

To the Old People's Home of this city there came a year ago, Alphonse, a young 77 years young, yet in ill health, one of America's foremost sculptors in days long past.

Preceding him by three months had come Mrs. Madeline Templeman, of 70 summers.

The two met—Mrs. Templeman proceeded to nurse "the young" man back to health.

It was a happy road they traveled. A road which led to the Land of Love. The other day they were married. And today, despite their advanced years, no honeymooners fifty years their junior are as happy.

and the other two minutes late in leaving the square.

On the same day, he said, a check was taken on the cars running over the Lakeview avenue line and it was found that one car was two minutes late and another five minutes late, the delay being due to a slight accident.

On April 28 out of 120 trips on the Westford street line only 16 trips were off time. Most of the late cars come during the rush hours, he said, when the traffic is heavy. He said that the operators of the cars were not supposed to know that a check of their running time was being taken.

Messrs. Sullivan, Curdin and Durfee were present at yesterday's meeting, together with Manager Lees. The meeting began at 4:35 and adjourned at 5:10.

Philadelphia has established a separate car for dealing with bandits.

Standard of Living
"Mr. Secretary, in your judgment is it going to be possible to maintain the high American standards of living?" was my next question.

"Entirely possible," was the answer, "if we can secure equitable adjustments all along the line. But we must face the fact that if we are to hold

Chairman John E. Sullivan asked Mr. Lees what had been done relative to the placing of signs in Merrimack square telling in what direction cars for the various parts of the city left and also their leaving time. The suggestion to have the signs placed there had been made by Mr. Hobson at a previous meeting.

Manager Lees said that he had taken the matter up with a local sign painting concern. He explained that it would be out of the question to have on the signs the time of leaving of each car because of the tremendous amount of space that it would take up. He said that under the present plan four signs would be required, one in front of The Sun building, one in Bridge street near the corner of Merrimack; one in East Merrimack, near Bridge street; and one in the square, near Green's drug store. On each sign would be printed the directions: "Take cars for" whatever routes left that particular place.

Mr. Hobson said that he felt the leaving time of the cars should be placed on the signs, if possible. Manager Lees agreed to look into this phase of the matter further.

Manager Lees said that at a previous meeting there had been some discussion as to the promptness of service on the various lines. He said that checks are frequently taken of the leaving time of cars on a particular line and he had brought with him the results of a few of these recent checks. On May 5, he said, from 6:15 a. m. to 10:35 p. m., on the Varnum avenue line there were only two cars off time. One was three minutes late

Berton Braley

I'm told it is bourgeois and crude
And oftentimes fearfully rude
To mention nutrition
Of talk degeneration
Or hold conversation on food!

And yet, it is pleasant to hear
Description of things that appear
On pictures' tables;
Or read merry fables
Of boards that are groaning with cheer.

How can it be wholly ill-bred
To carol of steaks that are red,
Or glorious salads,
Quite worthy of ballads
Or chickens extremely well fed?

To talk about chops, if you please,
Or rave over coffee and cheese,
May fracture convention
But oh, my attention
Is captured by dishes like these!

Historical study reveals
A fact which distinctly appeals;
It seems that for ages
The warriors and sages
Have been pretty strong for their meals;

And so, though it seems to be true,
That talking of food is taboo,
I'm willing to err—
Or better—let's sit down and eat!

signs in the readjustment?" I asked.

"There are many," was the answer. "Many manufacturers and wholesalers are making cuts in their inventories that equal or exceed the increases when we were on the upgrade. They are passing their savings in raw material and labor on to the next step in distribution.

"Economically, the retailer is of necessity the last of the chain to make readjustment and in some localities and some lines he has been less responsive to the necessity of this readjustment than the situation calls for.

"The processes of competition work very sharply and promptly upon the manufacturer and wholesaler, because the buyers are few and very wise.

"They do not so react upon the retailer because the public at large is not so wise and too inert to do that shopping around for the best bargains which is necessary to set up the processes of competition.

"I believe labor is willing to face further reductions in wages, if its sacrifices can be demonstratively handed on in general reduction of final price levels, so that the cost of living travels in step."

"Our industrial system and our commerce is simply an implement for their comfort and happiness.

"When we deal with these great problems of economics let us deal with this one conception—that our object is to defend and increase the standards of living of all our people and upon this soil grow those moral and intellectual forces that make our nation great."

Standard of Living
"Mr. Secretary, in your judgment is it going to be possible to maintain the high American standards of living?" was my next question.

"Entirely possible," was the answer, "if we can secure equitable adjustments all along the line. But we must face the fact that if we are to hold

Chairman John E. Sullivan asked Mr. Lees what had been done relative to the placing of signs in Merrimack square telling in what direction cars for the various parts of the city left and also their leaving time. The suggestion to have the signs placed there had been made by Mr. Hobson at a previous meeting.

Manager Lees said that he had taken the matter up with a local sign painting concern. He explained that it would be out of the question to have on the signs the time of leaving of each car because of the tremendous amount of space that it would take up. He said that under the present plan four signs would be required, one in front of The Sun building, one in Bridge street near the corner of Merrimack; one in East Merrimack, near Bridge street; and one in the square, near Green's drug store. On each sign would be printed the directions: "Take cars for" whatever routes left that particular place.

Mr. Hobson said that he felt the leaving time of the cars should be placed on the signs, if possible. Manager Lees agreed to look into this phase of the matter further.

Manager Lees said that at a previous meeting there had been some discussion as to the promptness of service on the various lines. He said that checks are frequently taken of the leaving time of cars on a particular line and he had brought with him the results of a few of these recent checks. On May 5, he said, from 6:15 a. m. to 10:35 p. m., on the Varnum avenue line there were only two cars off time. One was three minutes late

Lowell Murder Case

Continued

"a brave officer, and a credit to the city of Lowell," but he added that he was not now to treat of Joseph Clark the police officer, but of Joseph Clark the witness. Mr. O'Neill made reference to the "famous statement" of Clark to the effect that when Tallen fell in his death throes, he was in his shirt-sleeves. He characterized this as "a wonderful recollection of what happened that night!"

Witness Cloutier's manner was termed "nervous," and he was spoken of as "twirling his cap, staring, afraid to look anyone in the eye."

The attorney took up Lieut. David Petrie's search for "the master mind," and that officer's tracing to Canada, according to testimony, of "Dubuque" and his family.

Speaking of the commonwealth's contention that the Thiberges entered into a conspiracy which resulted in Tallen's death, Mr. O'Neill called attention to the words: "We won't go through, because we haven't got anything."

He closed by appealing to the jury to put themselves in the defendant's place and to "do unto him as you would have him do unto you."

Atty. Donahue then arose and opened an impassioned appeal for his client and his brother.

He called attention to the fact that "until the jury says the final word," the defendants, in the eyes of the law, are innocent men. "You'll be told," said the attorney, "as I want you to be told, to render your decision without fear or favor."

"Why, gentlemen," continued the speaker, "you hold in the hollow of your hands three lives. These three defendants cannot go before their God unless you say so. If you make a mistake, no tears, regrets, or remonstrances can recall the lives gone hurriedly, and probably wrongfully. He drew a picture of the members of the jury, in future days, with their wives and children around them, having made a mistake, and having sent 'to an infamous death those lives in your care.'"

"You are going to decide this case on the evidence," said Mr. Donahue. "You're going to say to the government that it must satisfy you that these men committed a crime as stated in the indictment."

Of the district attorney's line of questioning relative to late hours being kept by the Thiberges, he said that the evidence indicates that they were home regularly every night save one. He made mention of the expert medical testimony, and remarked that, to judge from it, we all need have a care to be sure we are mentally all right.

He quoted the Thiberges as saying, when a hold-up was proposed: "Oh, no, nothing of the kind. I've got money of my own. I don't do anything like that," or words to that effect.

The search made by Lieut. Petrie for "the fourth man" was again called to the jury's attention, and it was pointed out that of course the defendant had not conducted this quest with his own funds, but with those of the government. Although Mr. Donahue was sent to get Dr. Marols, it was stated, apparently the securing of the fourth man was forgotten. Possibly, said Attorney Donahue, "they thought it easier to drag those two young men in here, and put them on trial for their lives."

He depicted for the jury the bringing in of the defendants before "seven or eight police officers. The chief was there, with his badge on, and clothed with authority. The statement of Lieut. Petrie was that he had spoken of the defendants planning to go out to get some money by any means necessary, and of being prepared to kill if resisted. There was, said Mr. Tufts, a conspiracy to rob, being armed, and this rendered the Thiberges liable.

He read the statement of Emile Thiberge as recorded in Mr. Goldman's notes, to the following effect: "We all said we wanted money, and would go and get it, wherever it might be. I told them I didn't want any money, but that I would stick by them. My brother said he would be in it. We were all in it."

Mr. Tufts said that indirectly he had been criticized in relation to the "fourth man" in the case.

"There was a fourth man with this gang," he said, "and they lied about him—every one of them lied about him."

If the fourth man is not in the dock, said Mr. Tufts, it is because the three defendants gave false information about him, naming him as Dubuque, when no such man exists. He described Lieutenant Petrie's visit to the East Cambridge jail with photographs which none of the prisoners identified as being the man with them on the night of January 25.

Picking up the revolver with which Tallen was killed, the district attorney declared that there was no evidence that it belonged to Fortier. He then recalled the testimony of Mr. Lull, of Lull & Harford's, to the effect that two men, one of them being Lionel Thiberge, purchased cartridges which they wished to be sure would fit a Harrington-Richardson, 38-calibre weapon, the same as the revolver which is an exhibit in the case. He showed the jurors the cartridge-box which is one of the exhibits, and spoke of Mr. Lull testifying that the cartridges sold to Lionel Thiberge and another man were in a box of this kind. The box which is in evidence, Mr. Tufts reminded the jury, was found in the dresser, or bureau, in the lodging-house room of the Thiberge brothers.

Closing with a paraphrase of Shakespeare, he asked that the jury "extenuate nothing, and set naught down in malice. This prisoner has done some service to the state." A recess was taken shortly before 5 o'clock.

District Attorney Opens

About 5:05 p. m. court reconvened, and the district attorney opened the argument for the prosecution. He laid emphasis upon the fact that the state does not seek a victim, but merely wishes to prevent, as far as possible, any recurrence of crime.

First, he said, the case of Lionel

Thiberge would be considered. He spoke of the defendants planning to go out to get some money by any means necessary, and of being prepared to kill if resisted. There was, said Mr. Tufts, a conspiracy to rob, being armed, and this rendered the Thiberges liable.

Court Took Recess

The court here took a recess to 7 o'clock, when Mr. Tufts resumed his argument. He called attention to Mr. Donahue's remark's about the production of Dr. Marols, and his comparison with the non-production of "Dubuque." He pointed out that there is no evidence that Lieutenant Petrie or himself knows where this fourth man is, if there is such a party connected with the case. He also declared that Dr. Marols, being a voluntary witness, could be brought here, whereas to bring a defendant from Canada would necessitate extradition papers.

The district attorney charged that Fortier fired the second shot "to make sure," knowing that Tallen was the only face-to-face witness of the robbery, and feeling that he must be slain. The prisoner was not being grappled when this shot was discharged into the storekeeper's body, according to the testimony, said Mr. Tufts.

Mr. Tierney spent a long time, declared the district attorney, in seeking to show that the police maltreated and abused the prisoner. He contended that, handcuffed and hurried into the police machine as the defendant was, he seemed in all reason to have been injured by falling, as the officers testified.

He questioned whether the officers in the district attorney stigmatized as charge of Fortier's outfit overseas

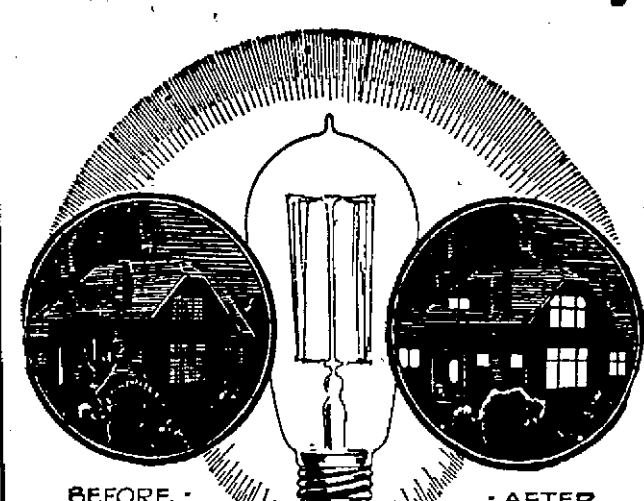

"absolutely worthless" the Binet test, unless the patient is "bona fide," and he told the jury that every expert, for either side has agreed to this on the stand.

Aside from the Binet test, said Mr. Tufts, on what does the defence rest its argument of insanity or imbecility? First, he stated, the testimony of Fortier's mother. "I didn't have the heart to cross-examine her," he said, but added that he didn't think all she said was "quite so," that he thought she was doing what any mother would do. He instanced her statement that her sister was at an asylum in Quebec, and was not in her right mind. Dr. Marols, he recalled to the minds of the jurors, said that this sister was not mentally affected, had been suffering merely from rickets, a disease of the feet, and was kept by the Grey Nuns because physically incapacitated from working.

would have allowed him to remain in the battery, in charge of horses, if he were an imbecile.

Asking whether Fortier, with his associations, and having drawn the wages he has drawn, would not know a fifty-cent piece, would not be able to count to five, would not be able to give the days of the week, the district attorney queried:

"Are you men going to swallow that stuff?"

He characterized the defendants as "three gangsters, ready to kill if necessary."

"If the line has come when men can go out with guns in their pockets to rob and steal, he said, and can get away with it, let's know now."

The defendants were asked, at the conclusion of the district attorney's argument, whether they desired to address the jury personally. Judge Cox explained to them that they were privileged to do this in accordance with an old custom. After considerable hesitation, Fortier replied "No" twice, in an almost inaudible voice which was practically a whisper. Emile answered "No," also after a pause.

NATIONAL CONVENTION OF CORNELL GRADUATES

CLEVELAND, May 13.—Cornell university graduates from many cities gathered here today to talk over school memories, boost the interests of their college and discuss educational topics. It is said to be the first national convention of alumni ever held away from the seat of the alma mater. The slogan of the convention is "Don't just get educated—keep educated."

"There has been much criticism of college curriculums on the ground that college men specialize too much," J. P. Harris, president of the Associated alumni of Cornell said. "Many educators feel that proper safeguarding of the best in American education calls for more attention to culture. The subject will be threshed out at the convention."

Prof. Paul Shorey of the University of Chicago and Dr. James Parker Hall, dean of law at the same university, were on the morning program for addresses on "Cultural versus materialistic education." Acting President Albert W. Smith of Cornell university, is scheduled to speak on "Cornell."

Homecoming, graduate manager of athletics, will preside at a banquet tonight.

Five hundred members of Cornell clubs are expected. Special cars bringing the college men from New York, Chicago, Buffalo, Pittsburgh, Detroit and Akron were met by Cleveland graduates.

Tao-Ke Alfred See, Chinese minister to the United States, who was graduated from Cornell in 1901, will arrive tomorrow. He will address the convention on "International Influence of American Education."

The convention will continue through tomorrow.

BUSINESS PROBLEMS TO BE DISCUSSED

The most profitable ways of advertising will be discussed in a lecture in Memorial hall tonight, under the direction of the chamber of commerce, by G. W. Sully of Dayton, Ohio. Mr. Sully is a recognized expert and organizer. In his talk he will attempt to show how proper advertising can change a non-paying into a paying business and how newspaper advertising is the most satisfactory of all forms of publicity.

The speaker will also show how cooperation and organization make for a better community or city. He will show practical improvement in service and store organization that please the general public and draw trade. He will tell how system enables a merchant to know at all times about the conditions of his business instead of guessing. Six thousand feet of moving picture film will accompany Mr. Sully's lecture. There will be no charge for admission.

G. W. SULLY

DEATHS

Heavy rain today halted for the time being the work of gathering funds in the Salvation Army drive, but did not dampen the enthusiasm of the workers, who, it is stated, are to keep at their task until the full amount that they have set out to raise is in hand.

Tomorrow at noon all of the workers are to gather in the chamber of commerce rooms for a luncheon and general discussion of plans.

Within the past five years no less than 527 young girls from 48 cities and towns in New England were given refuge at the Evangeline Booth home and maternity hospital conducted by the Salvation Army in Boston, according to figures made public today by the New England provincial headquarters of the army.

The cost of operating this home is about $30,000 each year and of this sum, only a very small amount is received in fees from the girls who are accommodated there.

No girl, regardless of race or creed, is ever denied admittance, provided there is accommodation and if the girl is without funds or friends no charge is made. The Evangeline Booth home is one of 26 similar homes which the Salvation Army conducts in the United States.

POLICE SEEK HUSBAND OF WOMAN FOUND DEAD IN BED IN CHEEVER STREET HOUSE

Five-year-old Son of Mr. and Mrs. John Michalakos Tells Medical Examiner He Saw His Father Strike Mother With Strap on Night She Died

Further evidence tending to indicate that Mrs. John Michalakos, alias Kalliotharakos, whose body was found in a bruised condition in a tenement at 57 Cheever street, Tuesday evening, met her death as the result of ill-treatment, was unearthed by the police and Medical Examiner Thomas B. Smith today. Medical Examiner Smith interviewed Michael Michalakos, five-year-old son of the dead woman, and from him learned that Mrs. Michalakos had been struck her with a strap on the night that she died. The boy, it was learned this morning, was in bed with a strap and apparently he is not yet aware of his mother's death, because he told Dr. Smith this morning that she would return soon. He is now living with his uncle, George Michalakos, in Cheever street.

The husband of the dead woman has not yet been located by the police. He disappeared a few hours before her body was discovered Tuesday evening. A dragnet has been laid all over New England and particular efforts are being made to locate him in the Greek centres.

Mr. and Mrs. Michalakos were married in Greece about 6 years ago and a few months later Mr. Michalakos, who also went under the name of Kalliotharakos, came to this country, locating in Lowell. A couple of months ago he sent money to his wife requesting her to join him with the boy in this city and the mother and son, arrived in Lowell about six weeks ago at which time they hired a four-room tenement in the rear of 57 Cheever street. One of the rooms was used as a kitchen, a box and a board being put together and utilized as a table. There is no kitchen range, but in a corner of the room is located a very small oil stove, while on the "table" lay food and two large lamps. The room in which the body was found contains but an old iron bed with a few pieces of clothing, while the other rooms are unfurnished.

COAL GAS TOMORROW

A number of new valves in the gas-making apparatus at the School street plant of the Lowell Gas Light Co. are being installed and General Manager C. R. ## COUNSEL ASKS FOR RULING

Fortier Shows Little if Any Interest in Today's Court Proceedings

Judge Says No Significance Must Attach to Defendants Not Testifying

All Through Defendants Are Equally Guilty if Conspiracy is Shown

The cases of Albert Fortier, Emilio and Lionel Theberge, charged with the murder of David N. Tallen, a Middlesex street haberdasher, on the night of Jan. 26, went to the jury this forenoon.

It was nearly 10 o'clock when Judge Cox began his charge to the jury. He closed at 11:27, whereupon there were requests for ruling by counsel. After explaining certain points as asked by attorneys, the jury retired from the court room at 11:46 o'clock and a few minutes later had entered the jury room where the exhibits in the case were brought to them.

During the judge's charge to the jury Fortier preserved his attitude of indifference or lack of comprehension of the proceedings, sitting with downcast head for the most part. The Theberges, on the contrary, appeared to follow intently the words of the judge, especially Lionel.

In his charge the judge reminded the jury of their oath as to being without bias and he instructed them that they must remain with open mind up to the moment that they reach their decision. They must be ready to listen to the arguments of their fellow jurors, he said. He told of the law which allows an accused man to refrain from testifying and he said that no significance must be attached to such actions on the part of the defendants. Failure to testify must not be used against a defendant. The judge spoke of the presumption that a man is innocent until

Seamen Who Refused to Strike Attacked While Asleep in Bunks

BOSTON, May 13.—The steamer Munalbro, tied up at South Boston, was raided during the night by men who assaulted members of the crew. Three of the Munalbro's men were taken to a hospital with scalp wounds. The assailants, who were armed with clubs and revolvers, boarded the ship while all but one of the crew were asleep. They attacked the men in their bunks and the latter gave fight. Police were called but before they arrived, the intruders had fled. Those taken to the hospital were not severely hurt. The men aboard the Munalbro had refused to join the seamen's strike, although importuned to do so several times, but the police today had no evidence connecting the assault with the walkout.

SECRETARY OF COMMERCE HOOVER SAYS INDUSTRY IS ON THE UP GRADE

A PEN PERSONALITY STUDY OF HOOVER

Although We Have Turned the Corner, There Are Many Loose Ends to Pick Up—High American Standards of Living Can Be Maintained

BY H. N. RICKEY
WASHINGTON, May 13.—"I am convinced that we have fundamentally turned the corner."

This was the answer of Secretary of Commerce, Hoover, to my question: "Are things going to be better or worse industrially in America?" Because of his knowledge of European conditions, as well as the intimate touch with American business which his position gives him, Hoover is probably as well informed as any man in America in or out of office to discuss present conditions and future possibilities.

Continuing, Hoover said: "It would be foolish not to acknowledge frankly that we are in the midst of great economic difficulties. But it is infinitely more foolish for anyone to think we will not grow out of them.

"In some ways the situation is more difficult than that following the Civil war, because today our economic machinery is more intricate and less easy to adjust. Also we are dealing with a world situation and not a domestic situation alone.

"Great as our difficulties have been and are, we have much upon which to congratulate ourselves. For the first time in our history we have passed safely through a commodity crisis without monetary panic. For this we may thank the federal reserve system, which made this possible.

"Although we seem to have turned the corner, there are many readjustments to complete. Part of the bitterness of the situation arises from the inequalities in the progress of these readjustments in different walks of life and different branches of industry.

"Much of this readjustment can be accomplished only with time and patience. Economics of hard times produce savings and great endeavor. Shrinkage in values yields more free capital. These savings in time fertilize the soil for upward progress.

"What are the chief impediments to smooth movement of readjustments?" I asked Hoover.

"There are many impediments," was the answer, "and everyone will set a different value and importance upon each of them.

"Among these daily enumerated are badly adjusted railway rates, excessive and badly adjusted taxes, insufficient tariff, high wages, high profits, high interest, restriction on effort by labor and a dozen others, while our domestic recuperation is sadly interlocked with the recovery of Europe.

Parity of Levels

"It is necessary that we approach a parity of levels in profits, prices and wages in different industries. Some groups are able to put up stronger resistance to reduction of economic levels than others.

"For instance, this resistance against lower levels in the services and commodities that the farmer must buy in the face of his very much lower returns is digging a grave of unemployment for the other industries."

"Isn't there a great lesson to be drawn from this situation?" I asked.

"There is," was the emphatic answer. "No greater lesson can be brought home to our people than that we must not only get but give good pro in service."

"No particular economic fraction of our population can long continue securing over-advantage without disaster to itself and the community.

"Our whole economic and moral problem, indeed our safety, our satisfaction and our happiness are balanced upon our practice of this basic fundamental in business dealings."

Signs of Readjustment
"What are some of the encouraging signs?" I asked.

TELLS OF MAKING A "CITY BEAUTIFUL"

Various phases of civic welfare work were treated upon in an illustrated lecture given by G. W. Bailey of Dayton, Ohio, in Colonial hall late night. He told of a large manufacturing concern taking up the welfare work as a means of protection against the damage done to its property by mischievous boys, by directing their energies into other lines, and said that it had proved profitable from a financial standpoint. Children's gardening was one of the early features of the work, and this later developed, it was stated, into a movement that had resulted in the general beautifying of the city. Uprightly buildings, yards and streets had been made attractive, the speaker said, at the expense of only a few cents paid out for seeds. Particularly interesting were pictures showing a city bridge made beautiful by the placing of flower boxes along the side that are cared for by members of a Rotary club.

SUPERVISORS FOR LOCAL PLAYGROUNDS

The Lowell park commission will be allowed to select the playground supervisors for the coming summer without regard to civil service standing as a result of a conference which Sup. John W. Kernan of the park department has had with Mayor Dana, commissioner of civil service.

Unless some such arrangement is allowed, Lowell will be without a sufficient number of playground supervisors this summer as only nine Lowell people have been certified as eligible of the 100 or more who took the civil service test last winter. One of those who failed last year, says a friend, Miss Hester Lawler, does not wish the position.

Statistics of women's colleges show that for a period covering sixty years the average college girl of today is an inch taller than the college girl of 1860. Statistics also prove the modern girl is about seven pounds heavier.

MILITARY MASS ON THE SOUTH COMMON

At the military mass which is to be celebrated on the South common on the morning of Memorial day, Rev. William Farrell, former chaplain of the 103d Field Artillery, who has been decorated with the French war cross for heroism in action, will deliver the sermon.

The open air mass will probably be attended by 20,000 people. It is estimated, and it promises to be a unique feature of the memorial exercises in this city.

Invitations have been sent to the following military and semi-military organizations: Post 42, Post 120, Post 185, G.A.R.; Battery 15, 2nd F. A. Co., Adelbert Ames camp, S.W.V., Admiral Farragut camp, Sons of Veterans, Garde Sacre Coeur, Garde Frontenac, Angel Guardian Cadets, O.M.I. Cadets, Pulaski Hussars, Women's Auxiliary American Legion, 191st Women's Auxiliary, Veterans of Foreign Wars, Meagher Guards, Sheridan Guards, Fourth Degree Knights of Columbus, Memorial Auditorium commission, Tewksbury post, American Legion, Billerica post, American Legion, North Billerica post, American Legion, Chelmsford post, American Legion, Lawrence post, American Legion, Haverhill post, American Legion, Nashua post, American Legion, and others. Other military or semi-military organizations not appearing in this list are invited to attend in bodies without further notice.

The military mass is being run under the direction of Lowell post, American Legion, and Company M Associates. Rev. William Mahan, O.M.I., chaplain of the post, is chairman of the committee, and Capt. W. C. Maybray and Lieut. Robert Gintvan are serving with him in making the arrangements.

A platform and altar will be erected in the basin of the pond on the South common, from which the water will be drawn off. There will be reserved seats for the clergy, members of the G.A.R. and S.W.V. and other veteran organizations. The altar will be erected on the Thorndike street side of the selected area. On the right of the altar will be stationed the choir of 100, selected from the different churches throughout the city under the direction of Mr. Kelly. The U.S.C.C. military band, William Regan, director, will be located next to the choir.

On the side opposite the choir will be a reservation for the 100 gold star mothers and relatives of deceased veterans. Mrs. William H. Merritt of 202 Concord street has charge of these arrangements. It is her desire to have the altar decorated with flowers contributed by the mothers and wives of the war heroes, and also to have all the flags which were returned to the gold star mothers with the bodies of overseas soldiers used for decorating the altar. The relatives who have not been reached are requested to call Mrs. Merritt at 375-R to make the proper arrangements.

The mass will be celebrated at 10 o'clock. Reservations will be made for all organizations which attend, in a body if they will notify the committee of their plans. All colors of all organizations will be massed at the altar.

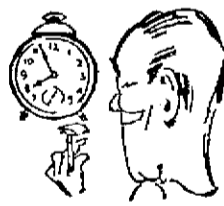

Rev. Daniel J. Kelcher, Ph.D., will celebrate the mass, assisted by two Lowell clergymen as deacon and sub-deacon. The augmented choir and the band will furnish music.

At the close of the mass, taps will be blown by Musicians L. F. Fox, T. J. McDermott, Frank Merritt, and Joseph Lamoureux. A salute of three guns will be fired by a section from Battery B, 2nd Field Artillery. This gun will be stationed on the upper section of the common near the Edison grammar school.

Battery B will perform guard duty on the common during the exercises. Former members of Company M will serve as ushers. The mass will be served by Sergt. L. F. Fox and Sergt. T. J. McDermott, former non-commissioned officers of Company M.

An invitation is extended to the public to attend this Memorial day service, and the sloping ground which surrounds the spot selected for the exercises will easily accommodate 20,000 people. Adequate police and military protection will be provided.

The war reduced the French population by 4,000,000.

Held in Connection With Judge's Death

TULSA, Okla., May 13.—A. P. Dickson, superintendent of a large oil refinery here, was arrested today and charges of murder had been filed against Mrs. Jesse James, nurse, and Goldie Gordon, her companion, in connection with the death of Judge John Devereaux, former supreme court commissioner, under mysterious circumstances. Police declared Judge Devereaux was found wounded and under the influence of poison Monday in Dickson's room at the hotel. The two women pleaded not guilty to the murder charge and were committed to jail without bond, pending a hearing Monday. An autopsy performed at the order of the county attorney disclosed that Judge Devereaux's death probably was due to a blood clot on the brain caused by a heavy blow, and to administration of drugs.

CHICAGO, May 13.—A $6000 tube of radium, lost in an elevated train in Chicago and reported found in Kansas City, is still missing, the local representative of the insurance company handling the adjustment announced today. A tube found by a Kansas City woman and believed to contain the missing radium, was found to be simply a cheap toy. Other mysterious disappearances of radium throughout the country at least one a day for the last 10 days, were reported by this company, which is said to insure the greater part of all the radium in the United States. Losses have been reported from such widely separated points as Portland, Ore., Oklahoma City, and Toledo, Ohio, aggregating $40,000.

MRS. BARRY FEELS 15 YEARS YOUNGER

Lowell Resident Says It is Simply Wonderful How Tanlac Has Restored Her

"Since Tanlac overcame my stomach trouble I feel 15 years younger," said Mrs. Margaret J. Barry, 52 Berkeley, N. H.

"Nobody knows how I suffered from indigestion which I was told was caused by gastritis. Some nights I suffered so terribly I thought I would never live to see the light of another day and often I have walked the floor all night long in unspeakable agony. My nerves were all upset, even the ringing of the door-bell would sometimes start me trembling like a leaf. I had awful headaches, too, they felt like an iron band was being drawn around my head."

"Tanlac has just made me feel like a different person. I have a splendid appetite and my digestion positively could not be improved upon. My nerves are normal, my headaches are all gone and I sleep all night like I used to do when I was a child. I am a well and happy woman and I owe it all to Tanlac. It's simply wonderful."

Tanlac is sold in Lowell by Green's drug store, under the personal direction of a special Tanlac representative, by Wright Drug Co., Billerica, Mass.; Shaw's Pharmacy, Concord, Mass., and by the leading druggist in every town.

HUMANE SOCIETY HOLDS ANIMAL CLINIC

The first animal clinic under the auspices of the Lowell Humane society was held yesterday afternoon at the office of the society in Central street. The affair was conducted under the direction of Agent Charles F. Richardson. While the attending veterinary surgeon was Dr. W. S. Eaton, who has an office adjoining that of the society in the old Boston & Maine depot. There were a weekly event.

CHARLES F. RICHARDSON

were not many who took advantage of the opportunity of receiving free advice or free treatment for their animal pets, but those who did attend the clinic were well satisfied with the result. So satisfactory was the clinic to Mr. Richardson that he announced he will do his utmost to have another clinic next week and will endeavor to make it a weekly event.

The clinic was advertised for four o'clock, but at 2:30 o'clock the first visitors put in their appearance. In the course of the few hours that followed eight dogs, three cats, four horses and one bird were taken to the clinic. One of the dogs suffered from a tumor of the eye and it was a matter of a few minutes for Dr. Eaton to remove the tumor. Another dog was troubled with a fractured humerus as a result of being run over by an automobile. This animal was also attended to and its owner was advised as to the best way of administering treatment.

A valuable English bulldog owned by a Nashua party, was taken to the police station in the early part of the afternoon for the purpose of being sent to the happy hunting grounds via the gas box. But the animal was later led to the clinic, where Dr. Eaton diagnosed its case as one of dropsy. The dog will be operated upon later. Sometime after 4 o'clock, a little black poodle was taken in by two boys, who said their father instructed them that if there was no cure for the animal, to take it to the gas box. Dr. Eaton examined the "little fellow" and said it was suffering from a chronic cough. The boys left with the dog and a few minutes later returned with tears in their eyes, saying gas had done the job. The owner of the other dogs were advised as to the proper treatment necessary for their pets.

A young man whose business is peddling a bay horse to the clinic and informed Dr. Eaton that the animal, although but eight years old, was suffering from some pain in the leg and at times was practically useless. After a careful examination of the horse's mouth the doctor said the animal was 15 years of age instead of eight. He looked the beast over carefully and diagnosed its case as one of ring bone for which there is no cure. The young man was advised to get rid of the horse. Another horse, a bay, was brought in and its owner was told what to do. The other two horses suffered from minor ailments. The cat's troubles consisted of fracture of the nasal bone, fracture of the frontal bone and internal injuries. One of the cats was sent to the electric box, while the others were given treatment.

There was but one bird at the clinic and that was a sparrow brought in by two small boys, who picked it up on the street. The little fellows wanted the doctor to do something for the little creature, but its condition was beyond treatment and a wing of the neck finished its career. The clinic was absolutely free to all who attended it and it is hoped that more people will avail themselves of the opportunity to have their pet animals treated free at future clinics.

DROP IN BUTTER AND SUGAR PRICES

BOSTON, May 13.—Again lower food prices prevail in the food market on many standard articles. Butter is among them, the price having dropped three or four cents a pound yesterday, making the best Vermont tub butter retail at 45 cents a pound, and affecting other grades and qualities in about the same ratio. Good western butter is 42 cents a pound, white prints range from 47 to 55 cents and the unsalted prints are 65 cents a pound.

Sugar Cheaper

Sugar is lower. It is obtainable in bulk and package at 5 cents generally, and in chain stores at 7 cents a pound. New mild cheese is 3 cents a pound cheaper and sells at 25 cents. Eggs are 40 cents a pound. Lobster meat is 15 cents a pound and crab meat is 11 cents.

Cod, flounders, halibut and other fish are 10 cents a pound. Lemon sole and turbot are 20 cents. Fresh shrimp are 30 cents and boiled ones 40 cents. Weakfish and butterfish are 35 cents, also eastern halibut. Jack shad is 40 cents, roe shad 55 cents, and bluefish 50 cents a pound.

Clams are 20 cents a quart, oysters are 30 cents, scallops are 15 cents and shad roe are $1.50 a pair. The cold weather has a tendency to increase vegetable prices, especially the better grades. Lettuce is 25 cents a head with thick heads 15 cents. Asparagus is higher too. Native grass in small bunches is 30 and 35 cents. Large double bunches are 65 cents and Jersey asparagus is 75 cents. Summer squash are 20 to 25 cents a quart, green peas are 15 and 20 cents a quart, cucumbers are 20 and 25 cents, scallions are 5 cents a bunch, radishes are 5 cents, silver skin onions are 10 cents a pound, bunch beets and carrots are 20 cents, spinach is 25 to 35 cents a peck, dandelions are 10 to 15 cents a peck and beet greens 50 to 60 cents.

Strike In Upper Silesia Called Off

BERLIN, May 13.—The general strike begun by the German workmen at Oppeln, Upper Silesia, in protest against the attitude of the inter-allied commission toward the Polish insurrection has been called off, according to advices from Oppeln today. Members of all the German parties including the German nationalists and the communists visited the headquarters of the commission yesterday and were assured by General Lerond, head of the commission that no negotiations with the Polish insurgents had taken place as had been reported. He said he had asked for military reinforcements and would be glad to see British and Italian troops sent to the district.

Mrs. Southard Held in Connection With Death of Her Fourth Husband

HONOLULU, May 13.—(By the Associated Press)—Mrs. Paul Vincent Southard was held here today in connection with the death of her fourth husband, Edward F. Meyer, who died in a hospital at Pocatello, Idaho, Aug. 20 last. An autopsy revealed traces of poison, according to the report of physicians, which was forwarded here. Mrs. Southard was held incommunicado, although she expressed a willingness to return to the mainland without extradition. Territorial officers said arrangements for her early extradition were being made. She is the wife of a chief petty officer in the navy. She is also known by the name of Mrs. Lydia Meyer. The Southards arrived in Honolulu from San Francisco, Jan. 12. They were married in Los Angeles last November. Mrs. William Stetser of Honolulu, who said she knew Mrs. Southard in San Francisco, said she was a "good, sweet woman." Both Mr. and Mrs. Southard are under 30 years of age. Southard denied the assertion attributed to him by the police that Mrs. Southard had sought to have him take out $10,000 worth of life insurance. He said he did not carry any life insurance and that his wife never had asked him to take out any.

Father Furnished Clue
TWIN FALLS, Idaho, May 13.—W. L. Trueblood, father of Mrs. Lydia Southard, arrested in Honolulu, charged with the murder of Edward F. Meyer, her fourth husband, furnished the clue that led to the discovery of her whereabouts. Prosecuting Attorney Frank L. Stephen said here today. Last January, the prosecutor said, the father, who had learned of the suspicions directed against his daughter, asked the prosecutor's advice concerning an accusation made against Mrs. Southard involving the theft of diamonds from Mrs. Fred James of Twin Falls, while on a trip to Los Angeles. According to the prosecutor, Mr. Trueblood inquired if any report had been received of the chemist's examination of the viscera of her fourth husband.

Mr. Stephen replied that the reports had not yet arrived, but he hoped the results would clear Mrs. Southard. "I'm afraid they will not," the father is said to have replied, tears running down his cheeks. Charges against Mrs. Southard on account of the alleged theft of the diamonds were never pressed, the county prosecutor said, but authorities made use of the information in tracing her to Los Angeles.

BRITISH MILITARY MISSION AT CHITA

RIGA, Latvia, May 13.—A British military mission has arrived at Chita, capital of the Far Eastern republic of Siberia, according to a Moscow despatch to the Latvian Telegraph Agency, which adds that recognition of the Chita government by the powers is imminent. In connection with the Far Eastern situation, a Reval despatch reports that the Prince of Oldenburg is organizing new forces in Siberia "to join General Semenov and Japan against the Bolsheviks." Prince Alexander of Oldenburg was one of the Russian princely and ducal group which early in the Revolution of 1917 supported the new provisional government, but later was driven into exile or imprisoned by the Bolsheviks. His name has not previously been associated with that of General Semenov, one of the chiefs of the anti-Bolshevik movements which have appeared from time to time in Eastern Siberia.

Railwaymen Support Striking Miners

LONDON, May 13.—(By the Associated Press)—The National Union of Railwaymen today stepped actively into the fight in support of the striking British miners, taking measures designed to prevent the transportation by rail of coal imported to replenish the nation's fuel supply, badly depleted because of the strike at the coal pits, now in its second month. The railwaymen's action took the form of a decision by the executive committee of the union that its members would not handle imported coal, no matter for what purpose it was intended. The committee further instructed the members of the union not to handle coal of any description loaded or previously handled by "blackleg" labor.

Plans Another Arctic Expedition

PASADENA, Cal., May 13.—Another expedition into the Arctic regions in two or three years is planned by Vilhjalmur Stefansson, the explorer, he announced here today. Despite the discovery of the North Pole, Stefansson said, there remains much room for exploration in the Arctic. "The center of the ice-bound regions of the north never has been reached by man," he said. "The North Pole region is 450 miles from the edge of the ice area, while the center is 800 miles from the edge. We are centering our interest on getting to the center and finding out what is there. I have no theories. It may be land or ice."

STATE CONSTABULARY

Bill Creating New State Police Force Ordered to Third Reading

(Special to The Sun.)
BOSTON, May 13.—Organized labor sustained another bitter defeat in the house yesterday afternoon, when the bill creating a new state police force of fifty men—generally called a state constabulary—was ordered to a third reading by a vote of 122 to 53. The vote followed a long debate in which Rep. Andrew P. Doyle of New Bedford, leading the fight for the labor men, reminded the members of the demands of Governor Cox for economy, while members of the ways and means committee, which reported the bill, ridiculed the claims of the labor representatives that a force of fifty men, scattered all over the commonwealth, could be a serious factor in labor disturbances. Rep. Doyle read from the governor's inaugural message, in which he insisted that the constantly increasing cost of state government must be checked. He pointed out that the pending bill does not in any way coincide with Governor Cox's recommendation on the subject, because the governor asked for a "small motor vehicle patrol of public works." The pending bill, he said, creates an entirely new police force.

Movie Censorship Bill
The senate, by a single vote, ordered the moving picture censorship bill to a third reading, the vote being 19 to 15. Several senators remained silent when their names were first called, but finally when all but one had responded to their names, the vote stood a tie, 15 to 15.

GIRLS! BLEACH SKIN WHITE WITH LEMON

Squeeze the juices of two lemons into a bottle containing three ounces of Orchard White, which any drug store will supply for a few cents, shake well, and you have a quarter pint of harmless and delightful lemon bleach. Famous stage beauties use this lotion to lotion to bleach and bring that soft, clear, rosy-white complexion, also as a freckle, sunburn, and tan bleach because it doesn't irritate.—Adv.

to 15. Then Senator Warren E. Tarbell of East Brookfield arose and announced that he would vote for the measure, making the vote stand as stated. The closeness of the vote, as well as the circumstances under which it was cast, leave the final fate of the measure very much in doubt. Senator Reed of Taunton offered in the senate yesterday an order requesting the opinion of the supreme court as to the constitutionality of the bill which passed the house early in the week, and which is known as the "Massachusetts Volstead act." Fifteen questions are propounded in the order for the consideration of the court with relation to the bill, the effect of which is practically to unhook all police officers in Massachusetts, both state and local, enforcers of the provisions of the federal Volstead act. This is accomplished by providing that whatever standard is adopted by congress as to alcoholic content of non-intoxicating beverages shall be considered as the Massachusetts standard, and in his order Senator Reed raises the question whether the legislature, by passing such a law, would not for all practical purposes be delegating to congress its right to make laws for the state of Massachusetts. The order was referred to the rules committee, and consideration of the bill was postponed until next Wednesday.

Romance Perishes When Its Wings Are Clipped

CONRAD NAGEL, HE'S ONE OF THE MOST POPULAR LEADING MEN OF THE SCREEN. HE HAS THE MALE LEAD IN "THE LOST ROMANCE."

By JAMES W. DEAN
Monotony kills romance. That's the moral of "The Lost Romance," just released.

The play is by Edward Knoblock. It points out that few humans have the disposition or temperament of plow horses. When love is taken for granted, romance dies. For romance demands change, excitement.

Sylvia (Lois Wilson) is loved by Mark, an explorer (Jack Holt), and Allen, a doctor (Conrad Nagel).

The doctor wins her. The explorer goes away—but he still loves Sylvia. Sylvia and Allen live like two doves in love. Their happiness is complete.

Then a son is born. Their feet tread the clasp of matrimony. Both consider themselves martyrs.

Mark returns from the jungle. Material duties are empty to him when Sylvia realizes that Mark still loves her.

She plans to divorce Allen and marry Mark. However, differences are patched up between Sylvia and Allen.

All would have gone well but Sylvia knows as Allen is about to kiss her, that disgusts him. The breach is widened.

Sylvia again lays plans for a divorce. Then the little son disappears. A common sorrow brings Allen and Sylvia together. Through the long, dark hours of night as they wait for the son's return they realize that they love each other as much as ever.

Mark realizes that Sylvia did not love him, because she turned to her husband in time of grief.

Denouncement: Sylvia's aunt had hidden the child to bring hubby and wife together.

End-on: Sylvia and Allen and little son with arms twined about each other.

Funeral of Private Thomas J. Quirk, War Hero, To Be Held Here

The body of Private Thomas J. Quirk, one of the first Lowell men to give up their lives in the world war, has arrived in this country from France and will be removed this evening to the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Quirk of 1548 Gorham street, by Undertakers M. H. McDonough Sons.

Private Quirk enlisted in Co. G of the 104th Infantry, formerly the old Sixth Regiment, in June, 1917, shortly after the outbreak of hostilities. He received his preliminary training at Framingham, Ayer and Westfield and went across in the summer of 1917 with the other members of the regiment. He saw active service until February, 1918, when he was stricken with pneumonia in Soissons, France, and died Feb. 17. He was only 17 years of age at the time of his death.

Private Quirk is survived by his parents, two sisters, Irene and Mary Quirk, and one brother, John Quirk.

Was Held Up and Robbed

Continued

Once one week from today on a charge of assault with intent to rob and of robbing Lyndon Felling of School street of a watch, watch chain and knife on the evening of April 24.

According to the story told by the police, Felling, accompanied by a young woman, was walking in First street, near the old car barn, on the evening in question when he was held up by Matson, Mack and Samuel L. Campbell, who is now in the house of correction. Revolvers were displayed, according to the police. Felling's watch was valued at $50 and the chain at $10. Mack and Matson were arrested last evening by Lieut. Martin Maher. Mack's home is said to be in Lawrence.

Matson is one of the young men who appeared in police court a day or two ago on a charge of entering the Paris Lunch in Middlesex street on the evening of April 30 and stealing a safe valued at $10 and $375 in cash. He and Campbell, who also figured in the safe removing episode, were at that time each held in $1000 for the grand jury. Campbell was unable to produce the $1000 and was sent to the house of correction pending action by the grand jury. Matson was out on $1000 bail.

Mack was also charged at this morning's session with being implicated in the Paris Lunch robbery and was held in $1000 on the charge. Both men will appear in police court one week from today. The continuance was asked by the prosecution.

FOR AFTERNOON WEAR

For the informal afternoon affair the gray chiffon which Miss Billie Wedgewood of the Lady Billy company wears, is just the thing. Artificial flowers at the waist line and a generous design in silver lace give it a festive touch. The hat is of lace and straw—and could you see its top, you'd find it flower trimmed.

of Coyt that they disperse and when a volley was fired over their heads, the despatches state they charged at the police, who leveled their guns at the crowd. The Catholics, some of whom were women, were dazed at the action of the police, and seeing their comrades lying dead in the streets fled in panic.

The wild rubber plant is now the subject of experiments in Southern Arizona. It is hoped the ultimate result will have a decided effect in reducing the market price of rubber.

HELD CHARACTER PARTY

Entertainment by Capt. Paul Kittredge Council, A. A. R. I. R. in Y. M. C. I. Hall

The character party held last evening in Y.M.C.I. hall, Stackpole street, under the auspices of the Capt. Paul Kittredge council of the American Association for the Recognition of the Irish Republic, was a most successful affair and a substantial addition to the local Irish relief fund will result. There was a large crowd on hand and the entertainment was the most enjoyable and successful yet held by the council.

The costumes displayed during the evening helped to conceal the identity of many of those present and judges of the grand march found difficulty in selecting the winners. Miss Rose Laverty won first prize for the best woman's costume and Miss McDermott, Mrs. Leo Tansey, Mrs. Paul Choquette and Miss Helen Crane were the other prize winners. The prize winners in the men's competition were J. J. Clowery, Joseph A. Preston, Joseph McLaughlin and John Payne. These gentlemen appeared in outfits that were not only comical but quite attractive. John Payne was arrayed in colonial style and his partner personified Miss Liberty. This couple led the grand march.

Earlier in the evening an excellent program of entertainment was carried out with the following taking part: Scotch dancing, Miss Bernadette Finnegan; piano selections, Lawrence Kane; fancy dancing, Alena Redmond and Little Peggy O'Leary; piano and violin selections, Charles T. Flood and David Connors; Irish folk dances, John J. Clowery, Mrs. O'Shaughnessy, Miss Barry, Mrs. Patrick McDermott and Mrs. Catherine McMahon; song, William Moss; song, Warren Kane. In the folk dancing contest Irish counties were represented and the rivalry excited much interest.

Mrs. Percival and Frank Redding were the accompanists for the occasion.

General dancing followed and continued until midnight with the following musicians kindly offering their services: Piano, Frank Redding; violin, George Halligan; cornet, Sumner Edwards; and drums, Charles Sullivan. The committee in charge of the affair included the following members of the council: Mrs. John J. Clowery, chairman; Mrs. Thomas McManara, Miss Nellie O'Hearn, Mrs. Helen Beatty, Mrs. E. Lyons, Mrs. Mary Curran, Mrs. Catherine McGinnis, Mrs. Michael Riecke, Mrs. O'Neill, Miss Celia Fallon, Miss Sadie Clark, Mrs. Patrick Kane, Miss Hannah Lennon, Mrs. Thomas Scullane, Mrs. Alexander Anderson, and Mrs. George Sharkey.

They were assisted by all the other members of the council as aids. The refreshment committee consisted of Mrs. Patrick Kane, chairman; Mrs. Thomas Scullane, Mrs. Alexander Anderson and Mrs. Geo. Sharkey. Patrick Kane was the interlocutor of the evening. John McGowan and Mr. Garvey were the door committees.

Lowell Murder Case

proven guilty. He referred to the "universal kindness of the law," and said that it holds that "every man does right until the contrary appears."

He said that the fact that the grand jury returned indictments against the prisoners must not be considered as having any weight. He defined the various necessary factors entering into murder in the first degree. He said that when there is a specific intent to take life or to do an unlawful act which naturally would cause the taking of life, there is malice aforethought. He said that it is immaterial to show that a man has any particular motive, but if a motive is shown it is evidence of intent. He told the jury that they are to find the degree of murder, if murder is found at all.

All Equally Guilty

He said that if all the prisoners or any of them conspired to rob the deceased and that in progress of a common design to rob the conspirators being present, all found guilty, are guilty in the first degree. He stated that the commonwealth is not required to show deliberate premeditation in a case in course of which robbery with assault or putting in fear, armed or unarmed, result in a murder. He said it was important for the jury to be satisfied that the Theberges were found with Fortier in a common undertaking. If they are to be considered guilty. He informed the jury that more flight by the Theberges would not save them from responsibility if they were actually members of a conspiracy and were there to aid.

Fortier, he said, according to his understanding, could not be found guilty of manslaughter, for if mentally sound and found guilty, it would be first or second degree.

The judge stated that it was for the jury to decide whether the alleged confessions were obtained by the police through violence or inducement. He said it was not necessary, according to law, to warn the prisoners of their rights to make a confession valid, except that it would bear on whether the confession was voluntary. He also stated that no prisoner can be bound by the statement of other prisoner even if he is present unless he assents.

Fortier's Mental Condition

The judge then took up the mental condition of Fortier. He said that if the prisoner knows that his act is against justice and right, and is wrong and criminal, he is responsible. Partial insanity does not exempt him if he is aware of his act. He pointed out that the evidence showed "want of mind" rather than insane delusions. His Honor spoke of the fate of the prisoner being on one hand and the fate of society on the other, and said that this made it most necessary for a correct conclusion by the jury.

He warned the jury that discussions by counsel were not evidence, although, he said, he made this statement with the thought of criticism a long distance from his mind. He instructed the jury in the manner of announcing their verdict and closed.

or second degree. The only other verdict in his case could be not guilty by reason of insanity. The Theberges' decision, however, could be first or second degree or manslaughter, or not guilty.

He pointed out to the jurors that the consequences of their decision are as for defendant, Lionel Theberge at the momentous to the community as to the prisoners and he admonished them not to be misled by appeals on one side or the other, but only by the evidence.

Arguments Made

Atty. O'Neill resumed his argument to secure the presence of Dr. Marols. He referred to Officer Joseph Clark as close of the noon recess yesterday. He asked why the district attorney's office hasn't sent Mr. Boudreau to Canada to trace the "fourth man" in the case, when he was despatched thither to secure the presence of Dr. Marols. He referred to Officer Joseph Clark as

MEXICO WILL NOT SIGN

Condition of Recognition
by United States

MEXICO CITY, May 13.—Mexico cannot and will not sign a formal protocol as a condition to recognition by the United States, President Obregon announced today in referring to Pres. Harding's policy, as outlined in despatches received here on Tuesday. He said he had received letters recently from friends in Washington, who assured him they were in President Harding, Secretary of State Hughes and Assistant Secretary of State Fletcher, three men with extremely cordial feelings toward Mexico, who apparently were inclined to establish relations between the two countries.

Although President Obregon has insisted that this government cannot sign a formal treaty, or protocol, it is known here that an informal exchange of communications between the two governments which would be tantamount to formal conferences, would not be rejected by the Mexican government. Friends of President Obregon assert that he is willing to give the United States any information it desires relative to conditions in Mexico. Assurances have been given as to safeguards and guarantees for foreign investments and various public declarations by President Obregon indicate he believes such assurances are ample and sufficient to prove the nation's stability and its right to recognition.

Referring to Great Britain's evident intention to withhold recognition until safeguards are given, the foreign office states that the Mexican government wishes at all times to return all confiscated property to its legitimate owners and to pay for damages suffered during revolutions.

"Not for one moment," the statement added, "does the Mexican government wish to abrogate its promises, much less to appropriate goods belonging to another, either a foreigner or a Mexican."

ACUTE LABOR SHORTAGE

Great Sugar, Pineapple and Coffee Plantations in
Hawaii Facing Extinction

HONOLULU, April 25. (Delayed.—By Associated Press.)—The great sugar, pineapple and coffee plantations of Hawaii are facing near-extinction as the result of the most acute labor shortage in the territory's history; the rice-growing industry of the islands has been wiped out by the same cause, and the business of Hawaii is fast slipping into the grip of the Japanese, the dominating race in the territory, according to Gov. Charles J. McCarthy and Albert Horner, territorial sugar expert.

Gov. McCarthy has asked the legislature to memorialize congress requesting the lifting of immigration bars so that labor, including orientals may be imported with the provision that such immigration shall be only for limited periods and shall not operate so that there will be within the territory at any time a total number of aliens of any one race more than 25 per cent. of the population of the territory.

This last provision would bar the importation of the Japanese, stopped since the "gentlemen's agreement" as made in 1907 since already the number of Japanese in Hawaii far exceeds 25 per cent. of the total.

So urgent is the governor and his advisers consider the situation that he has asked the legislature to authorize the creation of the Hawaiian emergency labor commission of three members to go to Washington and impress the territory's critical situation upon congress.

It has been for some time an open secret in sugar circles and in govern-

Continued
The files without the formality of debate or consideration. Mayor Perry D. Thompson was absent from the meeting and on his return he took his associates to task for their hasty action and offered a resolution at a council meeting ordering the paving of Chestnut street by contract. Commissioner Dennis A. Murphy offered an amendment which was approved, that a hearing should be given on the subject. Whether the hearing is to be confined to the question of contract work on the street named, or the whole subject of taking highway work out of the hands of the street department will be open for discussion is not known.

Fireworks or a Fizzle
Today the question was being discussed in circles in which there is interest in street construction work as to whether tonight's hearing was likely to result in a fizzle or the setting of an elaborate display of oratorical fireworks.

It is known that there is considerable opposition to the introduction of contract work on the streets. In laboring circles, especially, there is a disposition to object to having outsiders come in and do the work that heretofore has been under the direction of the street department. One of the questions that is being asked by the workers is whether or not outside contractors would agree to pay the same rate of wages as are now being paid by the city to its street men.

The recommendations of the chamber of commerce to the municipal council provide that a clause shall be inserted in any contracts that may be entered into for street work providing that only Lowell workers, if obtainable, shall be given employment and that first preference shall be given to persons whose names are on the civil service lists of the city.

No information was obtainable at the chamber of commerce rooms today regarding the rate of wages that would be paid by contractors who might be bid on street work.

"Current Rate of Wages"
It is generally understood that the contractors, if employed, would pay their men the "current rate of wages." This it is asserted by persons interested in ascertaining the effect of a change in methods of street construction on the workers' pay would mean that pay would be very much less than the amount now being received by the city's workers. A large part of the street department laborers now receive, it is understood, 45 or slightly less a day.

It was stated today by friends of the workers on the streets that a "current rate of wages" might be interpreted by contractors as meaning as little as $3 a day, and that if this wage was paid to men constructing streets for contractors the workers would have been entered for chopping down the pay of the men in the street department to a corresponding level. It was also asserted that it was probable that with men drawn from the civil service list working for contractors on highway construction far low pay and another body of men employed by the city on the streets at much higher wages, much dissatisfaction and discontent would result.

indicate the largest response ever made to a request for an expression of opinion in a chamber referendum. All votes to be counted must be received in the chamber's rooms not later than Monday afternoon.

Wells to Appear
Secretary-Manager George F. Wells is to appear at tonight's hearing before the municipal council in accordance with instructions formulated at a conference of the board of directors of the chamber of commerce, which provide that he shall set forth the chamber's attitude on contract street work as already shown in its communication to the council, but that he shall be without power to commit the chamber to any other course of action than that already outlined. It is understood that Mr. Wells will not respond to any attempts that may be made to "heckle" him by persons present at the meeting; and that he will refuse to enter into any argument of discussion.

It is understood that a decision by the municipal council to have paving work done on Chestnut street alone, or on a limited number of other streets will not halt the chamber's plans for invoking the initiative to force the council to adopt an order turning all work as already shown in its communication to the council, but that he shall

LOS ANGELES, May 12.—Divorce is in the air. They mature in the cabaret, the bridge club or the parlor of the "other woman"—But, like many another disease, the germ was already in the system.

For there is a "divorce germ," declares Mrs. N. A. Courtwright, now in charge of the city social service commission here, and she should know, for she has had the divorce disease under a microscope for many years.

And this germ, she declares, has no Latin name. It is simply this: Spoiled children. Spoiled husbands are grown-up spoiled boys, and spoiled wives are grown-up spoiled girls, and the two make divorce.

Her Conclusion

This is what she says: "The average boy and girl of today is not taught poise. Self-control is not in the category of child attributes. The great sin of modern mothers is their everlasting 'babbling' of children. Kissing, kissing, kissing their children when they are hurt, when they are hungry, when they are tired, when they are angry. Kissing is supposed to be the cure-all. It is not love, I contend. It is merely emotionalism, bad for the child, bad for the mother. The modern child is obsessed with a mother's sympathy. He never learns to depend on himself, even for the smallest things."

Mrs. N. A. Courtwright

"The consequence is evident in a variety of ways when that child grows to womanhood, or manhood, and weils. 'Neither husband nor wife has learned self-restraint nor poise nor self-sufficiency.'"

"I have had dozens of men, who were seeking divorce, say to me—'My wife is so unsympathetic. I could do wonderful things and accomplish something worth while if my wife would only sympathize with me and show an interest in what I am doing.'"

"Pooh! Pooh! There you have the over-sympathized-with child grown into a weakling of a man."

Makes Study

Mrs. Courtwright is making a careful study of child-life and its environment.

She is noting cases in which boys and girls are being allowed to follow their own sweet will.

She is tabulating results, as the children grow, under an analytical eye.

These children are of all ages. Some of them soon will be seeking the marriage license, clerk and building homes of their own.

It is her purpose to follow their destinies and to prove—at least in a few cases—the truth of her assertions.

BIG OPPORTUNITY FOR AMERICAN TRADE

J. W. Sanger, commissioner of the U. S. Department of Commerce, has just returned from China, where he made an investigation of the advertising method of that country, with an eye to the best way of advertising American goods. He had previously visited other countries of the Far East and his work, naturally, has put him in close touch with trade conditions. He has written this article on American trade with the Far East exclusively for The Sun.

By J. W. SANGER

Business economists have figured that the difference between good and bad conditions is 17 per cent. The Far East trade in the United States in 1920 was about 17 per cent. In other words, if America was at the peak of prosperity and foreign trade was suddenly cut off, the country would drop to the pit of depression.

Those facts speak for themselves and point directly to the importance of foreign trade.

It is no longer sensible to discuss whether we shall, or shall not, enter into foreign trade. America has been in for years. And the country is bound to stay in.

The real question is: how shall we go about building up this foreign trade?

The Far East plays an important part in the answer to this!

There are scores of things that the United States must get from foreign lands. And for them, we must pay in gold or goods, preferably goods.

The most profitable foreign trade is in manufactured goods, and that is what the Far East needs most. Where France, England and Italy have facilities for manufacturing, the Far East, generally, has not.

Right now there is an abundance of silk, tea and vegetable oil. That the United States can always make use of, in China. In return, China wants machinery, cotton goods and kerosene.

The main article Japan has, that America needs, is silk—the index to the prosperity of Japan. And, from this country, Japan wants machinery and raw cotton.

From the Philippines the United States can get agricultural products, and in return send finished products. Japan and the Philippines stand much higher in buying power, per capita, than China. Yet China offers wonderful opportunities to America, when you look into the future.

Right now the country is held in the background. In a trade way, because of the lack of transportation facilities. But that problem is bound to work out, in the future. The country is at work, at the present time, with the cooperation of foreign capital, on the construction of railroads.

As results come, trade possibilities are certain to improve. America can find a market, growing better all the time, in China.

Shanghai is the commercial metropolis, handling 40 per cent. of the entire total of foreign business. For the first time in the international history of China, the United States led. In 1920, in foreign trade, with that country.

Americans who have visited China return with a wonderful impression of the trade possibilities. They base their ideas on the fact that the population of China is about 400,000,000. Imagine selling, for instance, one pair of shoes to each inhabitant.

That would give the impression that for America to step in with goods. Such is not the case, however.

However, if but a small percentage of the population continued to buy an increasing amount of American goods, it would put hundreds of millions of dollars in American pockets.

Right now there is a bill, commonly known as the China act, before the senate, which if put into effect, would place the American business man on a par with business men of Britain, Japan and other foreign countries, in trade dealings with China. It would do away with income and excess profits taxes on business done by Americans in China.

Time will come when the Far East, after machinery orders are filled, will buy mostly the higher grade, and more expensive articles from outside. The higher the grade, the bigger the profit.

Trade in the Far East is open right

BUTTERFLIES BRIGHT SPOTS DECEPTIVE

By EDWARD F. BIGELOW

The wings of butterflies are worthy of careful study.

The main framework is composed of chitinous tubes which are in reality double, the inner tube filled with air and the outer tube with blood, or what corresponds with blood, and which circulates most freely during the time that the butterfly is changing from chrysalis to imago; that is, from the time when it comes out of the pupal stage until it is the full winged insect.

After the wings are well formed the circulation of blood in the outer tubes is largely, if not altogether suspended. These tubes, like the meshes of a net, support membranes which are clothed on both sides with flattened, peculiarly beautiful scales, arranged in overlapping rows like shingles on a roof.

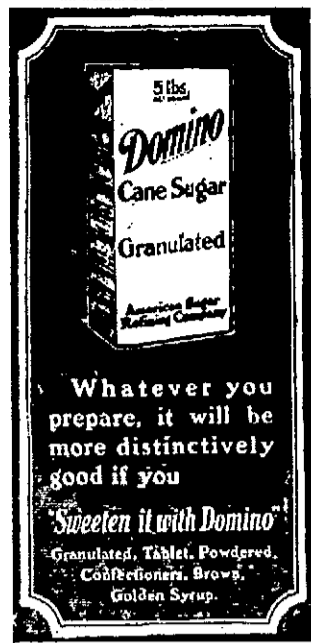

Butterflies at rest generally hold their wings rigid with their upper surface in proximity, that surface alone displaying the color pattern to the eye. There are few exceptions to this general rule, whereas on the contrary moths nearly always keep their wings widely spread.

Spots on the wings of some butterflies are their defense. For example, the eye spot of the cecropia has been thought by some persons to be one of two eyes with which the moth might frighten a bird tempted to capture it.

In South America there is a butterfly that goes so far as to alight upside down, when the big wing spots make it look remarkably like an owl.

Woe be to the adventuresome bird that would dare stick it, so the insect must think, secure in its natural camouflage.

Canada is discussing the possibilities of the musk ox as a source of wool. In the Arctic region, east of the Mackenzie river, millions of these animals are to be found foraging and thriving on a pasture which no other animal but the reindeer could live on.

Whatever you prepare, it will be more distinctively good if you

URGE WOMEN TO DIG UP OLD IDEALS

BY LORA KELLY

WASHINGTON, May 12.—"A nation of homes is a nation of strength." Thus says Miss Natalie Sumner Lincoln, editor of the Daughters of the American Revolution magazine, who is preaching—especially to women—the gospel of a former day.

"The women of today must obtain a firm grip on the old-fashioned virtues of loyalty and helpfulness," says Miss Lincoln. "We glimpsed those ideals for a few fleeting seconds during the war; then the American women wrote a chapter of service worthy to stand beside the record of the women of the Revolutionary and Civil wars."

About 12,500,000 acres of the new Czechoslovak republic are given over to forest cultivation. This is approximately 20 per cent. of the republic's whole area.

LABOR REVIEW

Davis Tells Aim of the Labor Department

In response to many requests for a definite statement of his attitude toward important industrial problems with which the federal department of labor is expected to deal, Secretary James J. Davis gives out a prepared statement which says:

"It is a time of complexity for us all, a time of denial of irritation. It calls for the utmost patience and forbearance on the part of every good citizen."

"Under such conditions, and with every variety of problem laid before it, the department will lay down no fixed policy. Its policy must remain flexible, readily subject to changing conditions."

"The only policy it is possible to announce for the present is not a policy, but an aim. Our aim is toward conciliation."

"I am out to preach the doctrine of good will and fraternalism, the spirit of conciliation, a willingness to compromise, in all our industry.

"Nothing is so necessary to a full return to prosperity as a willingness, on every side, to accept conditions for what they are and make the most of them. It is a pleasure to see this spirit catching on. Whatever I can do to promote its spread is policy enough for me."

Less Strife This May
The first week of May developed less labor strife than any similar week in previous years.

May Day itself, usually a time of demonstration, passed quietly everywhere.

Besides the usual grist of minor strikes and lockouts, there were three major disputes of national interest, involving shipping, building trades and job printers.

The shipping strike, more important than most landlubber realize, grows out of fundamental differences over conditions, although brought to a climax by wage reductions.

The building disputes in many cities are not generally as startling in their effect of work stoppage as in other years, because of slack construction.

New York and Chicago job printers and unions have signed up on a 41-hour week basis. In other cities the strike gives evidence of being short-lived, with the same termination in labor of the unions.

Labor Far and Near
Unemployment shows a very slight increase. Mass meetings, outdoors, held in New York by unemployed.

Paper mills generally shut down, and production tied up, by strikes due to wage cuts.

Contractors, material men and union leaders, numbering 110, indicted in Chicago for price-fixing and combinations in restraint of trade.

War department reopens decision of war labor board and Secretary Baker, awarding $300,000 back wages, during war period, ordered paid to employees of Minneapolis Steel & Machinery Company, who continued production without strike during long-drawn-out hearings. Senator Kellogg's intervention on behalf of the company is credited with causing reconsideration.

California assembly passes law forbidding use by employers of "labor spies" and "spotters" in trade unions. Penalty, $250 fine or three months in jail, or both.

Department of labor reports wage cuts in many industries, particularly among unskilled and unorganized workers.

MAY STEAL THE RAINBOW

For Day Wear, Milord, But
Black and White for Dress

BY RUTH AGNES ABELING
He smiled—ah, such a sphinx-like smile, this expert on the manly style—when queried as to the direction men's modes take to reach perfection.

"Follow women," thus quoth he, surely most engagingly.

Which brought forth visions rare, astounding, of men their lissome heights surrounding, in ruffles, organ-dies and bows, in Moyenage and Spanish clothes; the 1840 decollete, the fanciful directoire; ribbons, parasols and gashes, unvoiced hints, tassels, slashes.

Men always follow the feminine mode as to line and color, in so far as they dare. Thus the season will be much given to grays and browns.

Gray is the color especially approved for the business and the semi-sport suit. The smartest of the latter are herringbone tweed and have the belted back only.

For the man who expects to golf during his week-end out of town, but would "travel light," there is the semi-sport of herringbone tweed busy you will not be interrupted to and trousers as well as knicker. Thus pick up the things he has thrown down.

step from the links to the office and be quite correct.

Top coats, like women's dresses, are lengthening their lines. They are loose box affairs hanging from the shoulders. Homespuns and tweeds are approved materials.

Black and white for dress with gray introduced for semi-dress, is the rule. For dress the stiff white pique bosom is correct with the white pique tie and either the pique or wing collar. The former collar is, of course, the most formal. Gloves worn for dress should be white with self backs. Links are white pearl.

With the Tuxedo man can vent a little more of his fondness for tone. His links may be knickered pearl and may sport an edge of platinum. The tie should be black. The shirt should be low turn down variety.

However quiet be inlaid in his evening apparel, in daytime he may flirt with the rainbow. His ties, in their striped gaiety, may shriek at his wife across the breakfast table, and yet be perfectly correct.

In stripes of color have appeared in the handkerchief of the smartly dressed man and shirts have taken a fancy to figures, departing from the stripes and checks.

FOR BABY

There are possibilities in the barrel hoop. Let the male member of the family cut it in one place for you, then wind it with ribbon of a desired tint, wrap it across baby's crib or buggy and tie his toys on. While you are with huge patch pockets, a belted back and trousers as well as knicker. Thus pick up the things he has thrown down.

DINNER WITH JACK

Easy Thing is Usually the Correct Thing

BY RUTH AGNES ABELING
It is terrifying in prospect—that first dinner at the hotel with Jack. There are so many things which, according to their doing or not doing, make or mar the girl. With a man, it's quite different. He is forgiven for his blunders, sometimes even liked for them, because they are attributable to his masterful disregard of things in general.

But a girl—never! She must be on to all of the little niceties—especially when she is dining with Jack! In the first place, when the supercilious personage, who stands so correctly in the dining room door, directs you to the waiter to follow to your table, don't rush ahead of Jack! Remember that you have the evening before you, and in the graceful fashion of the French woman, walk beside him or just a trifle ahead of him.

If you were dining with a woman, since you are walking a trifle ahead just as you reach the table, you would take the farther chair, which the attendant pulls out. But since you are with Jack take the nearest and thus give him the opportunity of easily helping you with your wraps—even though the waiter is there to assist you, Jack should show you that attention.

Ordering
As for napkins—as long as you don't tuck it under your chin—there will be no harm done! However, the absolute correct thing for the dinner size, is to leave it in the double fold, that facilitates using it to dry your lips before drinking and thus eliminate the soiled-edged glass.

In ordering—if Jack is quite on to what he should do—he will consult your wishes on the principal foods and then order. If he leaves it very much to yourself, order moderately. The well-bred girl will not order extravagantly just because a man is paying for her meal.

Remember that when not in use, your knife should be entirely on your plate, don't let it trail from the edge of your plate to the tablecloth. And be sure that when you put your short-bread or ice cream spoon down, to eat your cake, that you put it on the plate under the cup or special service dish. A spoon should never be left in a stemmed dessert container or cup.

Perhaps the waiter will put the coffee urn with the two cups at your plate. If he does pour it for both and consult Jack as to sugar and cream. He may arrange it for Jack to serve, or may serve it himself. A waiter, with his coffee, if Jack wishes, is quite correct.

For finger bowl service—put the tips of your fingers in the bowl, then dry them on the napkin. Then moisten the cleaned finger tips again, touch them to the napkin and pass it across your lips.

In leaving the table—give Jack an opportunity to assist you with your wraps, then either walk out beside him or slightly behind him.

There now! Your dinner is over and without any blighting tragedies of omission or commission.

NEW PASTOR INSTALLED

Rev. W. B. Tutthill Formally
Placed in Charge of Eliot
Union Church

In accordance with simple, time-honored Congregationalist usages, Rev. William B. Tutthill was formally inducted into the pastorate of the Eliot Union church last night. Previous to the installation service a meeting of delegates from 17 out of the 24 churches in the Andover Association of Congregationalist churches took part in a council at which Mr. Tutthill read a paper, "Finding and Knowing God," which contained a statement of his religious beliefs, and members of the council asked him many questions. At the meeting of the council Rev. Arthur Stanley Beale of the Highland church acted as moderator and Rev.

Arthur G. Lyon of the Pawtucket church served as scribe.

At the installation service in the evening, following Gounod's "Marche Romaine," played on the organ, Rev. Arthur G. Lyon of the Pawtucket church served as scribe.

At the installation service in the evening, following Gounod's "Marche Romaine," played on the organ, Rev. Arthur G. Lyon of the Pawtucket church served as scribe. The importance of personal religion was stressed in a sermon by Rev. Ashley Day Leavitt of the Harvard church of Brookline. The speaker said that it is the individual man that counts in the world and that God treats men individually and not collectively. He urged his hearers not to forget their personal religion in giving support to great movements.

Following the singing of "Ere I Lay Not Seen" by Miss Hazel P. Tutthill, the installation prayer was offered by Rev. John G. Lovell of Chelmsford. Rev. Frederick A. Wilson delivered a welcome and charge to the pastor and Rev. William A. Bartlett, gave the charge to the people. The closing prayer was offered by Rev. Herbert G. Mank and, following the singing of "For All the Saints Who From Their labors Rest," the benediction was pronounced by the new pastor.

LOWELL Y. M. C. A. MEN GUESTS IN BOSTON

Mayor Leander F. Conley of the Red Triangle Village of the Lowell Y.M.C.A. and Membership Secretary N. R. Hart were the guests last evening of the Red Triangle Village of the Boston Y.M.C.A. at a banquet held at the Boston Y.M.C.A. The banquet was the first annual one held by the Red Triangle Villages of Greater Boston, including Lynn, Lowell, Beverly and Boston. The dormitories of these various Y.M.C.A.'s have been put on a self-governing basis with a mayor and board of councilmen in charge. Mayor John Schreiber of the Boston Red Triangle Village presided at the banquet last evening, following which there was a musical program and a general good-time. Mayor Conley brought the greetings of the Lowell Villagers to the occasion.

BEN TURPIN. HE DOESN'T MIND LOOKING TWO WAYS AT ONCE AS LONG AS HE CAN LOOK AT A STAR'S CONTRACT AND A FAT BANK ROLL SQUARE IN THE FACE.

BY JAMES W. DEAN
Ben Turpin can't look his wife straight in the face when he tries to tell her why he comes home late. When he takes friends for a spin in his car only Ben knows where they're going, because Ben looks two ways at once.

Ben's eyes became permanently crossed when he forced them into that condition 10 times a day while he was acting the part of Happy Hootigan on the stage.

Ben isn't sensitive about his eyes. He made such a hit in Sennett comedies that he has been made a star. He was featured in "A Small Town Idol." His first starring vehicle will be "Love's Outcast."

As long as Ben can star and collect a star's salary on his affliction he intends to steer clear of surgeons and their knives.

"Some day when I am ready to retire and live like other people do, I'll have my eyes made like other people's," says Ben. Then I'll look the world square in the face and be straight.

Colored Photography
A. W. Peck has developed a colored photography process that seems so near perfection that a company has been incorporated to produce pictures with the process.

Peck claims to have eliminated the fringe of intense color that appears around a moving object in pictures employing two or more colors.

He also claims that his process has eliminated parallax, the failure of backgrounds to remain in color-focus.

If Peck's process eliminates these two things it is indeed near perfection, for these are the main faults of colored pictures now current on the screen.

275 BRITISH WARSHIPS HAVE DISAPPEARED

LONDON, May 13.—Some 201 destroyers, 25 battleships, and 59 light cruisers have disappeared from the British navy during recent months. The Admiralty has issued an explanation, announcing that the vessels were all sold to British firms for breaking up.

This statement was the result of reports circulated in America that Great Britain was making extensive sales of war craft to South American governments for eventual transfer to Japan.

"The only ships disposed of to foreign governments since the armistice," the statement said, "are the battleship Canada and two other vessels, all of which were sold to the Chilean government, for which they were originally built; one sloop to Denmark, two sloops to Portugal, and one sloop to Belgium."

FARRELL AS CHAIRMAN OF SHIPPING BOARD

WASHINGTON, May 13.—James A. Farrell, president of the United States Steel corporation, it was authoritatively stated last night, has agreed to accept temporarily the post of chairman of the shipping board and his nomination will be sent to the senate today or Saturday, together with the nominations of six other commissioners.

The acceptance, it is said, has been handed to the president with the distinct understanding that Mr. Farrell has simply been loaned to the government by the steel corporation for the purpose of reorganizing the shipping board along business lines and that when this is accomplished he will resume the office of president of the corporation.

Mr. Farrell is known to have been offered the post several times by President Harding, but has refused on the plea that he could not leave his personal affairs. Several others have been asked by President Harding to serve, but each has declared that their personal business responsibilities were of such a character that they could not be settled in time to be of any use.

Carmi Thompson of Cleveland, O., declined the post yesterday.

The move is supposed to be an attempt to bring about a settlement of the long-standing dispute between the United States and Great Britain regarding the shipping board.

FIRING RESUMED IN W. VIRGINIA

Zone With Big Supply of Ammunition

Gov. Morgan Appeals for
Disorders in Mine District

WILLIAMSON, W. Va., May 12.—Chief Deputy Sheriff John Hall left Williamson today with supplies of ammunition for the detachment of state police stationed at Sprigg, one of the towns in yesterday's battle zone. Reports from Sprigg a few minutes earlier indicated that firing from the mountains had been resumed soon after daybreak. There were no details.

Call for Federal Troops
WILLIAMSON, W. Va., May 13.—The people of the upper Tug river valley where a battle raged yesterday between the forces of the state and riflemen hidden in the mountains awaited today some news concerning the request of Governor Morgan that federal troops be sent into the district.

Captain Brockus, commanding the little force of state troopers who held the towns of Merrimack, Sprigg and Albion had so disposed his forces late last night as to hold in check the attacking forces in the mountains. Reports from the vicinity of McCarr on the Kentucky side of the river, were that the firing continued intermittently until late in the night but there was no information that the list of casualties, one known dead and two wounded, had been increased. A report from McCarr that one of the attacking party there had been killed was not confirmed.

David Phillips and J. C. McCoy, who were arrested at Sprigg by the state police in connection with the shooting of Harry C. Stalen, a state prohibition officer, soon after the firing started, it is expected, will be arraigned today. The attack on the mining town is declared to be an outgrowth of the disturbed conditions which have prevailed along the Upper Tug river with varying intensity, since last May 19, when a party of private detectives sent to evict miners from company houses at Matewan became involved in a conflict with the people of that town. Seven detectives and three of the town's residents were killed. A strike of miners in this section was called in July and has since been in progress. On two other occasions federal troops have been called into Mingo county to restore order.

Ninety-seven per cent of Americans die without making a will. The territory of Hawaii will produce enough motor fuel for its own needs within two years. They would also be able to supply the requirements of the army and navy forces there, should their bases of supply be cut off. Commercial manufacture of fuel alcohol from sugar molasses has been made practicable on a large scale on the island of Maui.

dorsement of the campaign as it will relate to Lowell and to secure permission to conduct a sale of poppies throughout the city on May 28. As is already known, the American Legion at its Cleveland convention adopted the poppy as the national memorial flower. Auxiliaries of the Legion, the G.A.R., the Service Star Legion, Daughters of Veterans, Sons of Veterans, Women's Relief Corps and other patriotic societies have passed resolutions at their recent conventions, "to recognize the poppy as the national memorial flower to be worn on Decoration day."

The American-France Children's league has as its purpose the aid of children of French war heroes and in order to obtain the widest possible distribution of poppies for Memorial day, the league is seeking the co-operation of at least one of the patriotic societies or women's clubs as its representative in each community. In Lowell, Mr. Walsh will head the work and appoint his committees, both active and honorary, as well as handle the details for the sale of the flowers on the 28th. "The league feels that while, perhaps, members of patriotic societies have a prior right to wear the Flanders poppy, every loyal American will want to wear the flower on Memorial day; first, in memory of the boys who lie in Flanders fields, and second, as a reminder that we shall never forget the cause for which they laid down their lives."

Sergeants eligible for the examination for a lieutenant are Patrick J. Crowley, Hugh Maguire, Thomas McCloy, George B. Palmer, Philip Dwyer, Peter P. McManmon and Samuel J. Bigelow.

Inasmuch as there is standing an eligible list of patrolmen for promotion to sergeant, no examination will be held for this class.

Mayor Thompson requested that the civil service commission expedite the matter of examination dates as much as possible.

LOWELL, MECHANIC PHALANX

The next regular meeting of Lowell Mechanic Phalanx, an old Co. C, 6th regiment, will be held at the camp of the organization in Tyngsboro, next Sunday. The camp is located at Johnson's corner on the Merrimack river, and commands a beautiful view of the river in either direction, while a large pine grove in the rear acts as a setting for the camp itself, making it a most desirable spot during the summer months. Quite a few improvements have been planned for the camp and members are requested to arrive as early as possible, as working details will be the order of the day. Transportation will be provided for all members who will meet at the armory in Westford street, Sunday morning at 9 o'clock. Dinner will be served at noon, after which the regular meeting will be held. The rest of the day will be occupied by general sports.

IN POLICE COURT

William L. Ewyer, 17 years old, was charged in police court this morning with being a stubborn child and after his mother had testified that he had not worked since Jan. 1 and that he needed his support as her husband was working only three or four days a week, the court ordered a suspended sentence to the state reformatory. The case of Anthony Medina, charged with threatening and non-support of wife and minor child, consumed a large part of the session and of one month. In the meantime, it is expected that a settlement will be brought about.

RAILROAD INVESTIGATION

Table Showing Expenses
and Taxes From 1917 to 1920 Submitted

WASHINGTON, May 13.—A table showing what sums had been expended for railway operating expenses and taxes from 1917 to 1920, inclusive, was submitted to the Senate Interstate Commerce committee today by Julius Kruttschnitt, chairman of the board of Southern Pacific, who appeared for conclusion of his cross-examination in connection with the committee's inquiry into the railroad situation.

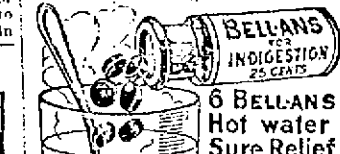

The total of operating expenses and taxes for the railroads, according to the table, rose from $3,043,050,000 in 1917 to $6,047,000,000 in 1920. Salaries of general officers of the railroads in 1920 totaled $47,119,465 as against $3,595,755,516 for labor.

The exhibit also showed that in 1917 out of every dollar expended for operation and taxes 55 cents went for wages of employees, and this had increased in 1920 to 52 cents. Salaries of general officers decreased from 1.15 cents to 0.78 cents out of each dollar. The salaries of division officers remained practically stationary.

Samuel Gompers Sounds Warning To the Enemies of Unionism

By H. N. RICKEY

WASHINGTON, May 12.—"I know something of the struggles of the tolling masses of our country. I have lived to see industrial depressions and panics, so-called. I have seen the pendulum swing both ways—to industrial revivals and activity as well, and I say in all earnestness, that it won't do, it bodes no good for the enemies of the rational labor movement at this critical juncture in the affairs of the nation, to drive the bargain too hard."

The speaker was Samuel Gompers, president of the American Federation of Labor. For 40 years Gompers, now 71, has been one of the leaders of the organized labor movement in America. For 31 years he has been its undisputed leader as president of the federation.

As the one man qualified by position and experience to present labor's side of the present drive to reduce wages and to establish the "open shop," I arranged an interview with him.

The foregoing was his answer to my first question and then he continued: "Every reduction of wages is a reduction in the consuming power of the wage earners and a direct blow at the future prosperity and wellbeing of the country."

"Organized labor is not only insisting upon maintaining the present standards of wages and working conditions, but, proposes to continue its struggle to further improve those standards."

"It is astounding but true that even after a great lapse of time since the ending of the war, there is, so far as the average family is concerned, practically no reduction in the high cost of living. I will admit freely that in some commodities there has been a reduction of prices in the wholesale markets, but there has been no commensurate reduction in the retail prices at which the working people must make their purchases."

"Labor has time after time indicted the commercial interests of the country for wanton profiteering. The government continues to be 'impotent' in the face of the criminal operations of the profiteers."

"Going hand in hand with profiteering there has been and is a shameful and undoubtedly unjustified over-capitalization of industrial and commercial projects, compelling the consuming public to pay interest in the form of inflated prices on vast sums of money, back of which there is no foundation of intrinsic value or productive capacity."

"In the face of these incontrovertible facts the workers of the country, who compose the great mass of the producers and consumers, protest against the attempt to reduce the wage level."

"Leaving the subject of wages and the cost of living, Gompers took up the subject of the fight against organized labor in general and the drive for the 'open shop' in particular. He said:

"The titles 'open shop' and 'closed shop' are both misnomers. Employers hostile to trade unionism long ago gave to the union shop the name 'closed shop.' They also coined the term 'open shop' to describe the kind of a shop which it was their aim to operate in opposition to the union shop."

"There is such a thing as an open shop, but it is not the kind of shop that most employers mean when they say 'open shop.' Least of all, it is not the kind of a shop that is meant by enemies of labor."

"The union shop is a shop in which there is a definite agreement between the employer and the workers as an organized unit. In union shops non-union workers sometimes are employed but only when union men cannot be had.

"The non-union shop is a shop in which union men are not employed. In which there is no organization of the workers and in which the workers, as a consequence, have no voice in determining the questions which affect them."

"The anti-union shop—and that is generally the 'open shop'—is a shop in which the employer pursues a militant policy in opposition to organization. It is the shop of the crusading employer, bent upon maintaining industrial autocracy."

"The kind of shop which certain employers' associations today are endeavoring to establish under the name 'open shop' is in reality the anti-union shop."

"The 'open shop' crusade is not what its name implies. It is a crusade against unionism. It is a crusade to break down the organized labor movement and to restore industrial oligarchy."

"There is no such thing as an 'open shop' campaign in America. Every person who has the opportunity to speak or to write, or to counsel his fellows should expose the fraud."

"What there is in America is a campaign on the part of autocratic employers to kill trade unionism."

"Then, after a few minutes reflection, the leader of the labor movement continued: 'Suppose the organized labor movement could be wiped out of existence tomorrow, can anyone imagine what such a condition would mean with all the centralization of wealth, with all the centralization of industry in the hands of a few? What would be the condition of the working people be?'"

"I firmly believe that if it were possible to crush the organized labor movement, which it is not, that the possessions of the man of wealth and power would be a curse to them and anarchy would reign supreme."

"And in conclusion I want to say that now is one of the times that tries men's souls. With a vast number of unemployed, with the attempts to destroy the labor movement, and with the cutting of wages but still profiteering, the pirates in finance and business have much to answer for."

form a most interesting and powerful story. The other big feature for the week-end, "One Man in a Million," stars George Beban, said to be the greatest interpreter of foreign character actors on the American screen today. A comedy and the International News round out the bill.

B. F. KEITH'S THEATRE

The speediest bill for many months, headed by Bayonne Whipple and Walter Huston, in "Shoes," is underlined at the B. F. Keith theatre for the current week. This little comedy, with a dash of philosophy to it, is quite the most distinctive of its kind yet seen here. Tom Patricola and Irene Delany are able seconds in the week's lineup, while Jack Kenny and Emily Barry make a wholly likeable pair of entertainers, after the style of musical comedy. The word "class" is written all over them. Vincent O'Donnell, who is known as "the kid McCormack," is another performer on this bill who has a bundle of talent, and the dancing act of Cooper & Lacey is a "lively" well given one. Other acts on the bill are: Sutter & Dell, in a slam-bang bicycle turn, and Sankur and Sylvie in delightful acrobatics.

RIALTO THEATRE

Lionel Barrymore, star of the screen, endears himself once more in the leading role of "Jim the Penman," showing at the Rialto theatre for the rest of this week. It is his best picture taken under the distribution of the Associated First National Pictures. The program also carries Bebe Daniels in a smart picture "She Couldn't Help It," also an Educational comedy, an episode of "Fighting Fate" and the Fox News. Don't fail to see it.

More people are killed and injured by tripping, slipping, and falling than any other cause of accidents.

AMUSEMENT NOTES

By Theatre's Own Press Agents

OPERA HOUSE

Of the many laugh-producing scenes in the great comedy, "Dilly," which is being given this week by the Lowell Players at the Opera House, are the efforts of toothless Billy himself, endeavoring to hide his shortcomings when his false-teeth drop out and are lost. He's terribly sensitive about it and of course he falls into all kinds of trouble. Miss Prichard, who is also seen in a room that is productive of much humor, and the rest help materially.

Next week, the closing week of the season, the Players will appear in the merry musical comedy, "The Circus Girl." The management promises some surprises.

THE STRAND

Bert Lytell, one of the most sterling American screen actors, who is appearing in an adaptation of the great stage success of recent years, "A Message From Mars," is seen in one of his most interesting characterizations. You should not miss it. The other feature will be Edith Roberts in "The Fire Call," a picture filled to the brim with action and interesting characterizations. The rest of the bill will have a comedy and Weekly. Good musical numbers also.

MERRIMACK SQUARE THEATRE

The dangers that confront a girl possessed of exceptional physical beauty form the central theme of "Prisoners of Love," the feature production at the Merrimack Square theatre for the week-end. Such a girl is "Blanche Davis," played by Betty Compson, late star of "The Mole Men." Her irresistible charm attracts to her many over ardent admirers. Her experiences in meeting these various admirers

How to Increase Weight and Put On Solid Stay-There Flesh

What difference does it make to you how EVANS' TRIPLE PHOSPHATE puts good, solid, red-blooded, healthy flesh on your bones as long as it does it and makes you feel 100 per cent. better at the same time?

Evans' Triple Phosphate is something new and something that really goes to the heart of the matter. Start to take it today with each meal, and in four days you'll know that you are growing more robust and feel stronger and more active. Continue with the treatment faithfully for 10 days more and note with satisfaction that your nerves are growing more responsive; that your ambition does not lag but is cheerfully obedient to your wishes; that a touch of color is appearing in your cheeks and that your occupation ceases to become a task and is a pleasure. Notice that never before in your whole life have you enjoyed living as you do today. Weigh yourself at the end of one month and let the scales tell the story. Fred Howard and all good druggists have agreed to supply this, run-down, under-developed persons with the understanding that if one month's treatment doesn't give most gratifying results your money is waiting for you. But don't take it even though it accomplishes wonders in nervous digestive troubles and as a general nerve tonic, unless you really want to put on flesh and gain weight.—Adv.

BIG FIRE IN LAWRENCE

Wheel Plant, Barns and Coal

Pocket Burned—Loss Estimated at $300,000

LAWRENCE, May 13.—Fire, which may have been of incendiary origin, swept through the "seasoning" department of the Archibald Wheel Company on West street last night, spread to adjoining buildings and for a time threatened to get beyond all control and eat its way through the heart of the tenement district.

It is estimated that damage of more than $300,000 was done before the flames were checked by the efforts of the entire Lawrence fire department and additional engines from Andover, North Andover and Methuen.

12 Horses Rescued

During the height of the fire the sky was illuminated for miles around, and thousands of persons were attracted to the scene. They jammed into the big vacant lot just south of the wheel plant, which was once occupied by Cuddy's arena, and the police had trouble keeping many from being injured.

The flames leaped to the barn of William J. Carroll's Sons, contractors, and the screams of imprisoned horses could be heard above the crackling of the flames. Lieutenant Edward Siros led a detail of firemen into the blazing building and rescued 12 horses and a number of pigs before the roof fell.

Nothing seemed to stop the progress of the flames, which leaped to the concrete coal pocket of the Gage Company and set afire 1200 tons of anthracite coal. A number of firemen were painfully injured when one side of the Carroll stable fell in and one man, Edward Bolton of Engine Company 9, was taken to the hospital.

The heaviest loss was felt by the wheel company. Seven storehouses were burned up and with them went 100,000 oak wheel spokes and as many hubs and rims. Most of the material had been manufactured during the war for use by the government on artillery and had never been delivered.

Tenements in Danger

Silverman's junk shop was swept into oblivion by the flames and a dwelling house on the Gage property was also damaged. The firemen worked frantically to keep the flames from spreading to the northward, where row upon row of tenements reach all the way to Manchester street and the power house of the Arlington mills partially blocks the way. They were successful in this because of the absence of a strong breeze.

Anthony Shinkonis, a watchman employed by the wheel company, declared that the flames started in a portion of the plant where it would have been absolutely impossible for them to have originated unless someone had deliberately started the blaze. Officials of the company know of no reason why anyone should have attempted to burn down the plant.

Just before the blaze was declared under control the storehouse of John Shea, a grain dealer, adjoining the plant, caught fire and the firemen had another job on their hands.

Lurid Flames

Lurid gleams in the eastern sky called the attention of Lowell people to the blaze in Lawrence that destroyed a quarter of a million dollars worth of property and threatened to wipe out the centre of the business section about 5 o'clock last night. Preceding the big illumination there had been a glow on the horizon from a woods fire in Draeut. In this noted, into insignificance as the great body of reddened smoke rolled up into the air from the Lawrence blaze. The Lowell firemen were in readiness to make quick time to the scene of the fire if their assistance had been called for.

The tenth anniversary of Lowell Lodge, 518, Loyal Order of Moose, was observed last evening with a concert and dancing party, the affair being held in Associate hall. There was a large attendance and all thoroughly enjoyed the program given. In the early part of the evening concert numbers were rendered by the orchestra and later general dancing was started and continued till a seasonable hour.

The officers of last evening were as follows: Ernest P. Parsons, general manager; Edward St. Leger, assistant; Dr. Raymond J. Gendreau, floor director; Dr. Fred Donahue, assistant; Hector Jodoin, chief aid; George P. Ellis, Charles W. Richards, William Booth, James Brady, Henry R. Gelineau, Patrick R. Monahan, A. P. Gingras, Frank A. Goss, Elmer G. Willey, Edward Goodson, David A. Hartnett, Thomas M. Keegan and John M. Hogan, aids.

FIFTH STREET CHURCH

The election of officers for the Men of the Fifth Street Baptist church, which took place at the monthly meeting, which was held recently, resulted as follows: H. C. Gordon, president; Ernest Waring, vice president; Dan Kline, secretary; Joseph Hollingsworth, treasurer. The committee chairmen were chosen as follows: Membership, James Taylor; social, Joseph Hollingsworth; publicity, H. C. Gordon; religious, Rev. George B. Marston.

Tobacco Least Harmful of "Four Poisons"

LONDON, May 13.—Tobacco is the least harmful of the "four social poisons"—tea, coffee, tobacco and alcohol—according to Sir James Cantlie, the eminent surgeon, speaking here recently. "Smoke the same amount of tobacco every day," said Sir James, "and the heart will become accustomed to a certain amount. If one smokes less one day than another, he feels the effect as much as if he had smoked more." He said three days' abstinence from smoking would entirely free the system from nicotine. He condemned the cigaret.

GENERAL GUINEY COUNCIL MEETING

General Guiney council of the A.A. R.R. held a well attended meeting in St. Michael's guild hall last evening with President James Mullin in the chair. Thomas Delahanty reported the result of his interviews with several representatives and senators on the subject of recognition of the Irish republic. Mrs. Daniel Sullivan asked that all who plan to contribute to the cake sale to be held by the council in Gagnon's store next Wednesday leave their contributions in the Guild hall between 2 and 6 next Tuesday afternoon. The following entertainment committee was appointed: James Mullin, Mrs. Daniel Sullivan, Dennis Bransell, Mrs. Richard Campbell, Mrs. James Farrell, Mrs. Mahoney, Mrs. Dominic Molloy, Hugh Leonard, John Flannery and Miss Delahanty. Patrick Moran, John Flannery, Thomas Delahanty and Mr. Conlon spoke on the good of the order, and entertainment numbers were provided by Dennis Bransell, Dominic Molloy, Miss Nora Duddy and Miss Sullivan.

Kilbane Tells Who Should Referee and Why

By JOHNNY KILBANE

The task of selecting a referee for the Dempsey-Carpenter fight, in my opinion, is going to be a difficult one. If the New Jersey officials insist that a Jerseyman be chosen.

If, on the other hand, the principals are given free rein, no better man than Bob Edgar, the stockholder and general arbiter of conditions surrounding the articles could be found. Edgar has been a student of boxing for years, has a cool head, a good eye and keen judgment, and with it the ability of a trained athlete to get around the ring.

Edgar, of California, probably as finished a referee as ever ordered a pair of fighters to break and who can tell of the seconds with the accuracy of a split-second watch, is another good man. The late Jack McGulgan of Philadelphia would have been another good "third man," as he knew every angle of the game.

Danger in Referees

The trouble with our referees of today is that they are chosen more as a favor than for their ability. Instead of being named because they are merely good fellows and stand well with the principals or the managers and the promoter, their knowledge of the duties of a referee and of the rules, as they are now interpreted, should be taken into consideration. The fact that a man has witnessed many fights, has bobnobbed with fighters, managers and promoters does not make a competent referee of him.

What is needed is not a big fat fellow whose sole claim to fame is based upon the brand of rum that he may have sold before the country dried up, and almost blew him away, but an active man with a ring brain. Edgar and Graney represent the highest type of the latter class.

How to Referee

Few referees of today know how to handle the boxers. They have no right to tell a boxer when and how to fight or to manhandle him in the clinches. If a boxer is deliberately running away from a fight the referee has the power to disqualify him, but if he is showing skill and generalship in warding off the attack of a dangerous opponent or playing around for an opening, the referee has no right to hector him.

"Say, kid, if you don't fight pretty soon I'll throw you out of the ring."

Nor has the referee the right, when one man is holding with both hands and the other is fighting with one free arm to grab each by an arm and tear a couple of sheets of sticky flypaper. The man holding with both hands can be warned and if he continues to offend he can be disqualified, but there is no need of grabbing both men and hurling them to different sides of the ring, or by chance of turning one man as to leave him in position to receive a possible knockout punch from his opponent.

Graney Shone

If the boxers can be convinced that the referee means business when he talks of disqualification there will be little holding. That is where Graney shone as a referee. He never went between the boxers. In fact, he rarely took his hands from behind his back. If they were locked he would say quietly and suavely, "Now, break like gentlemen, boys."

What is needed is not a big fat fellow whose sole claim to fame is based upon the brand of rum that he may have sold before the country dried up, and almost blew him away, but an active man with a ring brain. Edgar and Graney represent the highest type of the latter class.

Another great fault of the present day referee is his proneness to play to the gallery. He prefers to satisfy the house rather than to give the boxers a right deal. If a couple of boxers go in and slug their heads off two or three rounds and then are forced by exhaustion to take rest, the bloodthirsty and unfeeling immediately jump to the conclusion that they are faking and begin to howl for more blood. The referee, in too many cases, unmindful of the condition of the boxers, but wishing to win favor with the yelpers, backs at the box, lung and arm-wavy boys. "Garn air fight or outcha go."

Only a few referees, one who does not know and who does not care for the sport for sport's sake, will do that, but unfortunately there are many of that brand.

Would Train 'Em

If I were left to me, I would compel every man who aspired to become a referee, to go through a thorough course of mental and physical training—mental training to give him judgment and knowledge of the rules and physical training to make it possible for him to get out of his own way when the going is fast and to be able to step around the ring at all times in order that all of the spectators may see what is going on within the ropes.

Third Base Rookie Fills Groh's Shoes With Reds

SAMMY BOHNE, WHO IS CROWDING HEINIE GROH OUT OF THE PICTURE

Groh is still a holdout. He has declared he'll never play in Cincinnati again.

Even should he rejoin the team he would not find the third base job open for him.

Moran had planned to use Groh on second this year to get him away from close contact to third base fans, who were riding the high spirited star.

So Groh is fading still further out of the big league picture as his substitute gathers the plaudits.

But the rookie Red has cut the back. He hit brilliantly. He is a dangerous hitter. His speed on the bases is helping the run column of the team. Copied with these baseball essentials he possesses an ideal third base temperament.

Mohr is 25. He had a brief trial with the White Sox in 1915. In 1916 he was with the Cincinnati Reds. Since then he has been stepping around in American association and Coast league companies.

He hit .332 with Seattle in 1920 and stole 42 bases.

In 19 games with the Reds he has hit .257 and stole six bases. His leadership in the league in the base stealing department.

Breen's grounder. This ended the scoring.

Italy By Gillespies

Liston's triple, followed by a passed ball, gave the South Ends their seventh and last run. In the third there was no further scoring until the sixth when the Gillespies got to fourth and sent three across the plate. The South Ends' pitcher's shots were hit to all corners of the common. Singles by Brosnan and Boudreau and doubles by McNulty and McNulty, the latter one of the longest hits of the game, brought the runs. In the second half of the sixth Liston was the only man to go to bat. He walked, but at this point the game was called off on account of darkness. The score:

How Dempsey Rode on Box Cars to Championship

SKETCH, MADE FROM A PHOTOGRAPH OF JACK DEMPSEY'S FIGHTING FACE

This story of Jack Dempsey's career has been written for The Sun by Hal Cochran on information much of which was furnished by Dempsey himself. The rest was obtained from Dempsey's close acquaintances and official records.

By HAL COCHRAN

Chapter I

This might be the story of a champion peach picker, the history of a miner, or the tale of a hero.

But it just naturally leads into the rise to fame of one William Harrison Dempsey.

About 15 years ago Hiram Dempsey, erstwhile school teacher of Lorain, W. Va., moved to the San Luis valley of Colorado, the stock paid a visit to the little Dempsey ranch, between Antonito and Mancos. There it was—June 21, 1894—that William Harrison first saw the light of day.

In the early years of his life William got bits of schooling here and there, and plenty of outdoors and fresh air. It was the latter that played a big part in his growing into the husky of the family.

Handy With Mitts

When the Dempsey tribe moved to Hesperus, in the western state of Colorado, dad and mother Dempsey had six boys. They were all hands with their mitts, sometimes at sparring, sometimes at peach picking, but most of all, they were an athletic way.

If there was a baseball game, a football game, a wrestling affair, or a boxing bout, the Dempsey boys would be on deck. William and Bernard, an older brother, usually came out on top. Bernard found strongly to fight encounters and finally dropped his own first name, professed to be the famous Jack Dempsey. "Bernard," he said, and stepped out into the surrounding country to take in other fighters.

Bernard Takes Out

William watched Bernard in a lot of his battles, and he saw his older brother fight out as a prizefighter.

In the meantime there was talk to be cut, freecosts to be picked, and cattle to be cared for on the Dempsey ranch. William was long on the peach end of it, but managed to slip away for an occasional fight with some kid in the town of Montrose.

He finally grew into the town champ. He had licked every one of the village scoundrels except one. And this one, and William were buddies and had never mixed in a fight way.

Success finally prompted William to grab off the title of "Jack," dropped by his brother, and his faith to conquer amateur battles in other towns. Jack had no money, so he took a "private car" to Delta, Colo.

Jack Runs on a Freight

"It was not pretty," as Jack now recalls it. "I simply hopped into an empty freight car when nobody was looking."

This ride, as after events will show, was the first of many that went to make up the lingo, catch-as-catch-can adventure, portion of Dempsey's rough and tumble career.

Delta held Jack's interest for but a short time. He battled in a few bouts, picked up some odd change, picked peaches, and finally headed for Lakeview, Utah, where his family had moved in the meantime.

Jack had had visions of a real money bout for some time. He soon climbed another freight and landed in Montrose. In short notice a go was arranged, his first real coin encounter.

(The next story finds Dempsey a matchmaker, promoter and principal in the first match he got any coin out of.)

A Cincinnati bank has installed a target range in the basement. Bandits will find the employees ready to receive them should they decide to attack the bank.

U. OF PENN. AND CORNELL TRACK MEET

ITHACA, N. Y., May 13.—Track teams of the University of Pennsylvania and Cornell will compete in their annual dual meet at Schuylkill field Saturday afternoon and a close battle for supremacy is anticipated.

The meet will bring together two of the representative teams of the east. Pennsylvania is favored by many students of the sport to win this year's championship at the I.C.A.A.A. games at Cambridge. Cornell has won more intercollegiate track championships in the past 16 years than all of the other eastern universities and colleges combined.

Penn will bring to Ithaca some of America's fastest short and middle distance runners, including Earl Eby, Larry Brown, Maxam and Head, a fast sprinter in Lever and a clever hurdler in Smalley. The Cornell team, while not as strong as it will be two weeks from now when it competes in the intercollegiate, has none the less developed steadily since its participation in the Penn relays, and its supporters are confident that it will bring a good account of itself against the Red and Blue.

Among the fled runners who will be seen in action are C. E. Fisher, Cornell's N. Y. Brown, R. E. Brown and H. V. Bousal, all members of last year's champion cross country team, who will compete in the mile and two mile runs. Cornell, an intercollegiate place winner in the 100, H. H. Smith, another fast quarter miler; H. J. Ramsay, who has done better than his feet in the high jump; Garden, who has equalled that mark; Gouinlock, a good pole vaulter; Davidson and Richter, sprinters; A. B. and A. H. Tremam, Vermilye, Watt and Archbold, hurdlers.

Matthew Halpin of the New York Athletic club, manager of the American Olympic team at Antwerp, will be judge of the final. The rival coaches were also prominent figures at the Olympics. Jack Moakley of Cornell as head coach of the American team, Lawson Robertson of Pennsylvania as assistant coach of the same outfit.

As the baseball team will be out of town, this track meet will be the only big athletic event at Ithaca this week, but the baseball team left last night for Easton, where it will play Lafayette tomorrow. On Saturday, Cornell will cross bats with Fordham in New York city.

WILL PLAY OPENING GAME TOMORROW

The opening game of the Abbot Worsted Co's baseball season will be played tomorrow afternoon at Abbot park, Graniteville, with the fast Boston and Maine V.I.C.A. team as the opponents. This team is now touring the New England states and Canada and is said to be an exceptionally fast semi-pro outfit.

Major League players, including players from Boston, New York, Philadelphia and other ball teams comprising the lineup. The Abbot Worsted Co. band under the direction of James P. Larkin will furnish music.

South Ends Win Opening Twilight League Game

"HANK" GARRITY
JIMMY LISTON

Holland and Canney's South Ends defeated the Gillespies in the opening game of the Twilight League before a large crowd on the South common diamond last night by the score of 7 to 3.

While the game was rather loosely played, this was to be expected as the contest marked the first time for many of the players to have worked together and also the chilly breeze that swept across the diamond was not conducive to shapely work. At several stages of the game, however, real classy work was witnessed and indications point to much better play when the athletes get the kinks out of their limbs and begin to perfect team work. The teams played but six innings as darkness came upon the scene and the game was called off with the South Ends at the bat.

Major Throws First Ball

The usual opening formalities characteristic of all leagues, were carried out with the major catching the first ball and Ernest Kimball, who has agreed to donate a cup to the winning team, receiving the chief executive's shots. Mr. Kimball acted as a "pitcher" as Capt. Kernan of the park department was scheduled to pitch, but he was unable to be present. Messrs. Morgan and Grady were the officials in charge and they landed the game in a most satisfactory manner.

Hank Garrity was on the mound for the South Ends and McNulty took the rubber for the Gillespies. Garrity showed good form in the early stages of the game, as his teammates gave him a good back to work on, he was sold on in danger. In the sixth, however, the Gillespies began to solve his delivery and as a result of their activities they piled up three runs. McNulty performed well for Charley Bird's aggregation, but received rather poor support. Jimmy Liston, B.C. star, played right field for the South common entry, and while he had little to do in the outfield, he showed much cleverness on the bases. He hampered out a six triple and scored three runs. "Bing" Falls got two hits and played well in the outfield.

Each team made six hits. Garrity issued but two passes, while McNulty gave four runs on balls in play. Each club also made four errors, all misplays being made in the infield. And each club scored two runs in the first inning.

Snare Brace in First

McNulty, who was the first man to step into the batter's box, was given a ticket to first. He was thrown out at second on Phinney's grounder to Crowe. Phinney was forced at second when Brosnan slammed out at third. Condon's error gave Boudreau first, with Brosnan moving to second. Both scored on Phinney's two-bagger to left. The latter went out trying to stretch the hit into a triple.

Liston opened up the South Ends by working McNulty for a pass. He stole second and continued on to third on Murphy's overthrow. While also walked, Buckley hit to Brosnan and Liston scored. White was asked to go to third. Falls and Brosnan followed with hits and Buckley scored.

Four For South Ends

In the second inning after the Gillespies had been retired without a score, the South Ends made four runs, and the team latted around a pass to Crowe, a scratch hit by Dillon and an error by Phinney on Garrity's hit to Crowe across the plate and left two on with none out. White's lung went for a hit and Liston counted. McNulty hit to McNulty, who threw to Murphy for a relay to first for a double killing. Fall singled and Liston scored. White came home on Brosnan's error on a hit.

Notes of the Game

The crowd was estimated at 5000.

In Liston, Falls and White the South Ends have an all-star outfield.

McNulty showed good stuff, despite a tendency to be wild at times.

Several new faces were seen in both lineups.

TO PREVENT BETTING ON HORSE RACES

LOUISVILLE, Ky., May 12.—Adoption of a resolution calling upon the state legislature to prevent legalized betting on horse racing, as unanimously accepted by the Kentucky Federation of Women's clubs, in annual convention in Danville, Ky., yesterday, was said today to be the first victory in a determined fight to have the parliament betting machines abolished and put gambling on horse racing in the class, legally, with other gambling.

The campaign against the machines was launched by a number of ministers and laymen at a recent meeting here. Holm Bruce, a prominent attorney, heads the committee. Widely known ministers also are on the campaign.

Prepared resolutions protesting against permitting the betting to be continued have been presented to the organizations with the request that they be adopted. "An address to the people of Kentucky," protesting against the gambling is being prepared and will be published within a short time. Ministers throughout the state are being asked to devote one sermon to "the evils of race horse gambling."

BOYS' WEEK

The average boy is a problem in himself. He requires careful training, guidance and restraint until he knows what he wants and how to get it by honorable means.

In Chicago, some three million people are observing "Boys' Week," the initial step to do something really helpful for the boys of that city, said to have been generally neglected in the past.

We can imagine what the boy's idea of a week devoted to his entertainment is likely to be: ball games, and a carnival in the great outdoors, movies, a big circus, cookies, hot dogs and ice cream without limit would fill the bill. Do not imagine that "Boys' Week" contemplates such a surfeit of good things. The aim is entirely different. The Rotary Club of Chicago has made a survey of the boy life of the city and finds that of the 325,000 boys only one-sixth are reached by constructive or educational agencies specially designed for boys. The other five-sixths are left to their own devices.

The utility of these agencies would seem to be placed in doubt by the fact that the Boys' club conducted by the Chicago Union League Foundation finds that juvenile delinquency has increased in the ward in which the club is located, about 71 per cent. in the last year.

That state of affairs has aroused the business men of Chicago to the necessity of doing something to interest and amuse the boys so as to lure them from the downward paths on which many of them have evidently made a decided start.

They intend to provide wholesome sport and development for boys in order to overcome the evil influences and associations of the congested districts.

Chicago in providing more playgrounds, more outdoor sports, and more opportunities for healthy development for boys, sets an example that other cities, including Lowell, might well follow.

The policy of developing the boy as a social asset is a wiser economy than paying for the criminal, the delinquent and the loafer as community liabilities. The problem of interesting boys to the extent of keeping them on the right path and offering them all the necessary opportunities for development, is one that is very generally neglected by many cities and hence we have a great deal more juvenile delinquency than we should have.

The Chicago experiment will be watched with interest.

A CHANGE OF POLICY

Even though it had to come at the eleventh hour, the action of the municipal council in exercising its legal function to formulate the policies of all departments of the city government, will be duly appreciated.

Since a beginning had to be made somewhere, it is perhaps just as well that the street department should have been taken in hand first for direction, since street construction just now is prominently before the public. There are other departments, though, that are equally in need of general supervision and perhaps their turn will come later.

It is unfortunate that this change of heart on the part of the council did not come until the commission form of government is facing the prospect of being wiped out of existence by the adoption of a r-w charter.

The present charter has its defects and they are very serious ones, but it is, nevertheless, unfortunate that the results obtained under it have been much worse than they might have been, because the council elected under it have neglected to live up to some of its best provisions.

The framers of the present charter showed wisdom when they provided that all of the important activities of the city government should be under the control and general direction of the whole council. Policies arrived at after general consideration and debate by the five members, might have had real value that would have insured something of continuity for them. Instead of carrying out the intent of the charter, the members preferred to let each commissioner run his own department in the way most likely to serve his political ambitions. The result has been that the system has been discredited and it seems quite clear that the voters are to say in the not distant future that they will have no more of it.

The present council, however, can retrieve something of the unsatisfactory reputation that it has acquired, if it will seriously buckle down to the business of working as a unit to get the street department settled in an established path that will lead to its furnishing the city with cheaper and better highways.

TO MULCT THE MOTORISTS

Hon. John N. Cole, commissioner of the state department of public works comes out in favor of a radical increase in the license and registration fees of motor vehicles as a means of improving the state highways. At the present time these highways are in fair condition and will soon require repairs and in many cases new construction; but there is no justification for any attempt to saddle the owners of motor vehicles with the expense of making all the improvements which he thinks necessary. He believes that $40,000,000 would be required to put our state highways in proper condition during the next ten years. The roads are for all classes and not for motorists in particular. Moreover, what the motorists are paying to the state at the present time should be sufficient to pay for all necessary repairs to the state highways and even for some new construction. Last year the total amount paid to the state by motorists was $4,096,554.74, while the total paid by the state for maintenance, improvement and construction of highways was but $3,962,152.32. It is further asserted that motorists paid through local taxes on their machines, so that they are contributing liberally to the local expenditures for highway purposes.

Thus it appears that motorists are already contributing quite heavily to highway construction and up-keep and today greater imposts upon them would, in our judgment, be unfair.

But in any re-arrangement of fees, it should be remembered that the big motor trucks carrying heavy loads and doing a regular freight business are by far the most severe on roads and should be required to pay accordingly. Pleasure cars, although numerous, are not often injurious to roads properly surfaced. Good roads are desirable, but apparently Commissioner Cole has in mind a very unreasonable and unfeeling scheme of meeting the expenditure.

GERMANY YIELDS

Germany has finally accepted the terms of the allied ultimatum which requires the payment of thirty-two thousand million dollars. The satisfaction, of course, is the securing of important cities by the allied forces and the virtual administration of a considerable portion of the country by the allies until the money, or the greater part of it, shall have been paid. By her objections and protests against the size of the reparation bill at first demanded, Germany has succeeded in having it cut down by one-half; and it would appear that the best thing she can do is to make up her mind to pay the amount now fixed upon as best she can. It will never repair the damage done to France and the other nations. Germany is getting off easy compared to what France and the other nations have had to pay in the destruction of towns and cities and the loss of life which can never be restored.

It is worthy of note that Germany did not yield until after the United States, through Secretary Hughes, warned her to accept the allied indemnity terms. Thus the United States played an important part in ending the diplomatic conflict as she did in bringing hostilities to a close in 1918. Yet some of the allied powers boastfully claim they did it, and that the victory would have been won even if the United States had taken no part in the war, an assertion which is contrary to the acknowledged facts and the logic of the situation.

TONIGHT'S HEARING

Tonight at city hall a public hearing will be given on the recommendation of the Lowell chamber of commerce in reference to having street paving done at a reasonable price. No such hearing is likely to reflect public sentiment exactly. All that can be expected is an intelligent presentation of the case. It is not advisable to call for a vote at such a hearing inasmuch as it is an easy matter for either side to pack the meeting. What is wanted at this hearing is the arguments for and against the proposition submitted so that the public can draw its own conclusions and so that the municipal council may have reliable data for its guidance in future action.

It should be understood that this city is face to face with an emergency in street work and that the go-as-you-please method of the past few years cannot be relied upon to give us better streets or to give us a fair return for the money expended. Under such circumstances it is time to formulate a new policy. If the street department cannot do it, then some other agency must be drafted for the purpose.

SWAT THE FLY

Now that we are nearing the warm weather, the usual injunction is sent out to "swat the fly." Swatting the fly may be a slow means of stamping out this pest. It is a much quicker and better method to remove the cause—the breeding places of flies. The automobile has done much in this respect by eliminating the horse. Manure heaps are less frequent now than formerly, but the garbage cans and the dumps remain. It is necessary to attend to these, so as to prevent their being made the breeding places of millions of flies. It is all very well to kill individual flies, but much more important to clear away the manure heaps and the cesspools where the pest is propagated. It is a health measure that should not be neglected.

"Do you remember when you used to see $2 gold pieces in circulation?" asks the Lawrence Tribune. Yes, and when the street-car conductors insisted they were entitled half-dimes and declined to accept them at face value.

Would not life be dull, dull and colorless without a dash of Joseph Hennessey occasionally assuming the role of policeman and stopping the flow of rum-running and stopping the flow of the state under the big top at city hall?

From recent headlines at the West Sixth street station of the water department it would seem as though the city had paid $15,000 for a pump that has brought with it a high-grade boiler.

We expect the suggestion sooner or later that the taxpayers' expense shall be subjected to a test in order to make the degree of their indignation shown by the questioners have decided to show readers of mental development.

Rolling the Landlord

And now they're jumping again on the generous, patient, kind-hearted and long-suffering landlord in Chicago. They tell him he has to furnish screens for the windows in the houses of his tenants. The department of health calls attention to the city ordinance providing for this in a public notice urging citizens to aid by lighting. Officials promise to enforce it. All sympathizers of kind-hearted and long-suffering landlords please raise their right hands.

The Better Times

When folks speak of "good old times," their mind runs back to the decade between 1870 and 1890. They were the last years of the old America. In those years no one was especially worried about social and economic problems. Life ran in a fairly smooth groove. Eggs sold for about 12 cents a dozen and butter for a quarter a pound. It seemed easier to get along then than now. But if the increase of 450 per cent in the number of high schools in the United States since 1890 means anything, it means that we are better off than that generation. The tremendous increase of high schools must be interpreted as meaning a better distribution of prosperity and a consequent desire on the part of parents to make the lives of their children richer than theirs were. In the last generation the high school was largely the well-to-do family's luxury. Today it is the preparatory school of the working child and for his lot in the modern city high school has become a vocational training center. In these days a workman could not afford high school for his child and for his lot in the modern city high school has become a vocational training center. In these days a workman could not afford high school for his child and for his lot in the modern city high school has become a vocational training center.

MAN ABOUT TOWN

A correspondent sends The Sun a series of complaints relative to the condition of Broadway, School street and Walker street. He thinks there are several streets in Lowell worse than First street but they do not attract so much attention. The repair gangs once suggested by The Sun to not seem to have been authorized or if so, they have never got around to do any work.

"Misfortunes never come single spies, but in battalions," wrote John Barley of Avon. Amen, very truly said. This morning, Night before last there was a wedding reception in the residence next door to the abode in which I hang up my hat when the day's toils are over. Everyone knows what the accompaniments of a modern civilized wedding reception are. Civilization did I say? I repeat—the proper word to use is heathen, pagan, prehistoric, pre-cambrian or something of the sort. Wild savages never behaved much worse in the days when the bridegroom went out and sought his bride with a stone hammer in his hand, and the whole tribe rejoiced with warwhoops, tom-tom beatings and exultations that rent the atmosphere. Perhaps some wedding reception in three latter days are very orderly and subdued affairs. If so, I do not happen to be fortunately familiar with that kind. For several hours—in fact as the society reporters used to say until "the wee sma' hours"—I listened to such a riot of noise as made the walking ring. Cowbells were rung, tin wash boilers were beaten, rattles were rattled, and horns were blown, and the climax was capped with increasing jazz music. Sleep that night? A czar stone Indian would develop insomnia in similar surroundings. Then last night. First came a small concert at the home of a friend (C) at which the soprano squawked, the baritone was hardly concentrated from beer, the tenor was a fit subject for a coronation for the removal of adenoids, and the piano gave evidence of having been used by a man with an acute case of producing disorders. As soon as was consistent with a decent regard for amenities, I snatched with my bare hand a piece of the hellum of noise to pay my own debts. A whole host of misfortunes were there, waiting for me. In a room beneath my bachelor apartment some one had decorated seven small dogs of tender age. About midnight they lifted up their voices in one united wall of protest over something that did not suit their fancy. There was no way in which I could still the creatures of generals short of halting down doors or breaking windows. I hope the recording angel had cottoned to this in the case and did not overlook what was said in my apartment that night. I fell asleep at 6 a. m. this morning with the canine chorus still performing with undiminished vigor. I was awakened each night with a brick under my pillow and was badly shocked in the neighborhood.

Sweet 70 and Bonnie 78 Bow Before King Cupid

SAN FRANCISCO, May 12.—Young King Cupid hardly ever misses a chance.

The young, the middle-aged, the old are all legitimate targets for his arrow. To the Old People's Home of this city there came a year ago, Alphonse Le Jeune, 77 years young, yet in ill health, one of America's foremost sculptors in days long past.

And the other two minutes late in leaving the square.

On the same day, he said, a check was taken on the cars running over the Lakeview avenue line and it was found that one car was two minutes late and another five minutes late, the delay being due to a slight accident.

On April 26 out of 120 trips on the Westford street line only 16 trips were off time. Most of the late cars come during the rush hours, he said, when the traffic is heavy. He said that the operators of the cars were not supposed to know that a check of their running time was being taken.

Messrs. Sullivan, Curtin and Durfee were present at yesterday's meeting, together with Manager Lees. The meeting began at 4:35 and adjourned at 5:10.

Philadelphia has established a separate court for dealing with handlids.

Secretary Curtin, in making his motion characterized Lakeview as "the poor man's beach" and said that all people should have the appreciation of the reduction in fare last year.

The committee also voted to meet only once a month during June, July and August, instead of twice a month as at present. The committee will meet on the final Thursday of each of these months.

Chairman John E. Sullivan asked Mr. Lees what had been done relative to the placing of signs in Merrimack square telling in what direction cars for the various parts of the city left and also their leaving time. The suggestion to have the signs placed there had been made by Mr. Hobson at a previous meeting.

Manager Lees said that he had taken the matter up with a local sign painting concern. He explained that it would be out of the question to have on the signs the time of leaving of each car because of the tremendous amount of space that it would take up. He said that under the present plan four signs would be required, one in front of The Sun building, one in Bridge street near the corner of Merrimack, one in East Merrimack, near Bridge street, and one in the square, near Green's drug store. On each sign would be printed the directions: "Take cars for" whatever routes left that particular place.

Mr. Hobson said that he felt the leaving time of the cars should be placed on the signs, if possible. Manager Lees agreed to look into this phase of the matter further.

Manager Lees said that at a previous meeting there had been some discussion as to the promptness of service on the various lines. He said that checks are frequently taken of the leaving time of cars on a particular line and he had brought with him the results of a few of these recent checks. On May 8, he said, from 6:15 a. m. to 6:55 p. m. on the Varnum avenue line there were only two cars off time. One was three minutes late.

signs in the readjustment?" I asked.

"There are many," was the answer.

"Many manufacturers and wholesalers are making cuts in their inventories that equal or exceed the increases when we were on the upgrade. They are passing their savings in raw material and labor on to the next step in distribution."

"Economically, the retailer is of necessity the last of the chain to make readjustment and in some localities and some lines he has been less responsive to the necessity of this readjustment than the situation calls for."

"The processes of competition work very sharply and promptly upon the manufacturer and wholesaler, because the buyers are few and very wise."

"They do not so react upon the retailer because the public at large is not so wise and too inert to do that shopping around for the best bargains, which is necessary to set up the processes of competition."

"I believe labor is willing to face further reductions in wages, if its sacrifices can be demonstratively handled in general reduction of final price levels, so that the cost of living travels in step."

Standard of Living

"Mr. Secretary, in your judgment is it going to be possible to maintain the high American standards of living?" was my next question.

"Entirely possible," was the answer, "if we can secure equitable adjustments all along the line. But we must face the fact that if we are to hold our higher standards of living and to maintain employment of our people against the competition of the living standards of Europe, lowered for a whole generation, we must do it with greater efficiency and by harder work."

"I take it that on the whole you are not pessimistic?" I suggested.

"Not at all. I would regret indeed if the recitation of problems for which we must find a solution should carry an air of pessimism."

Need of Energy

"With the intelligence, productive power and resourcefulness of the American people, we will emerge through all this, but the rapidity with which we recover will depend upon the promptness with which we grasp and well understand the nature of our difficulties and upon the unity and energy of our action."

"While our recovery may be slower than some may expect, nothing can prevent the prosperity of a country where the people have enlightenment, wish to work, wish to produce and wish to do right by their neighbor."

"We need, remember at all times that we are not a nation of machines, and horses, factories and railways. We are a nation of men, women and children."

"Our industrial system and our commerce is simply an implement for their comfort and happiness."

"When we deal with these great problems of economics let us deal with this one conception: that our object is to defend and increase the standards of living of all our people and upon this toll grow those moral and intellectual forces that make our nation great."

Lowell Murder Case

"a brave officer, and a credit to the city of Lowell," but he added that he was not now to treat of Joseph Clark the police officer, but of Joseph Clark the witness. Mr. O'Neill made reference to the "famous statement" of Clark to the effect that when Tallen fell in his death-throes, he was in his shirt-sleeves. He characterized this as "a wonderful recollection of what happened that night!"

Witness Cloutier's manner was termed "nervous" and he was spoken of as "twirling his cap, start-puzzled, afraid to look anyone in the eye."

The attorney took up Lieut. David Petrie's search for "the master mind," and that officer's tracing to Canada, according to testimony, of "Dubuque" and his family.

Speaking of the commonwealth's contention that the Thiberges entered into a conspiracy which resulted in Tallen's death, Mr. O'Neill called attention to the words: "We won't go through, because we haven't got anything."

He closed by appealing to the jury to put themselves in the defendant's place and to do unto him as you would have him do unto you.

Atty. Donahue then arose and opened an impassioned appeal for his client and his brother.

He called attention to the fact that "until the jury says the final word," the defendants, in the eyes of the law, are innocent men. "You'll be told," said the attorney, "as I want you to be told, to render your decision without fear or favor."

"Why, gentlemen," continued the speaker, "you hold in the hollow of your hands three lives. These three defendants cannot go before their God unless you say so. If you make a mistake, no tears, regrets, or recriminations can recall the lives gone hurriedly, and probably wrongfully." He drew a picture of the members of the jury, in future days, with their wives and children around them, having made a mistake, and saying, "We've got money of my own. I don't do anything like that," or words to that effect.

The search made by Lieut. Petrie for "the fourth man" again called to the jury's attention, and it was pointed out that of course the lieutenant had not conducted this quest with his own funds, but with those of the government. Although Mr. Bosworth was not in the pocket, the fact was stated, apparently the securing of the "fourth man" was forgotten. Possibly, said Attorney Donahue, "they thought it easier to drag these two young men in here, and put them on trial for their lives."

He deplored to the jury the bringing in of the defendants before "a court of eight police officers. The chief was there, with his badge on, and clothed I call his authority. The statement of the defendants planning to go out to get some money by any means necessary, and of being prepared to kill if resisted. There was, said Mr. Tufts, a conspiracy to rob, being armed, and this rendered the Thiberges liable.

He read the statement of Emilie Thiberge as recorded in Mr. Goldman's notes, to the following effect: "We all said we wanted money, and would go and get it, wherever it might be. I told them I didn't want any money, but that I would stick by them. My brother said he would be in it. We were all in it."

Mr. Tufts said that indirectly he had been criticized in relation to the "fourth man" in the case.

"There was a fourth man with his gang," he said, "and they lied about him—every one of them lied about him."

If the fourth man is not in the dock, said Mr. Tufts, it is because the three defendants gave false information about him, naming him as Dubuque, when no such man exists. He described Lieutenant Petrie's visit to the East Cambridge jail with photographs which none of the prisoners identified as being the man with them on the night of January 25.

Picking up the revolver with which Tallen was killed, the district attorney declared that there was no evidence that it belonged to Fortier. He then recalled the testimony of Mr. Tufts, of Lull & Hartford's, to the effect that two men, one of them being Lionel Thiberge, purchased cartridges which they wished to be sure would fit a Harrington-Richardson, 38-calibre weapon, the same as the revolver which is an exhibit in the case. He showed the jurors the cartridge-box which is one of the exhibits, and spoke of Mr. Tufts testifying that the cartridges sold to Lionel Thiberge and another man were in a box of this kind. The box which is in evidence, Mr. Tufts reminded the jury, was found in the dresser, or bureau, in the lodging-house room of the Thiberges brothers.

District Attorney Opens

About 5:30 p. m. court reconvened, and the district attorney opened the argument for the prosecution. He laid emphasis upon the fact that the state does not seek a victim, but merely wishes to prevent, as far as possible, any recurrence of crime.

First, he said, the case of Lionel

Thiberge would be considered. He spoke of the defendants planning to go out to get some money by any means necessary, and of being prepared to kill if resisted. There was, said Mr. Tufts, a conspiracy to rob, being armed, and this rendered the Thiberges liable.

no evidence that Lieutenant Petrie or himself knows where this fourth man is. If there be such a party connected with the case. He also declared that Dr. Marois, being a voluntary witness, could be brought here, whereas to bring a defendant from Canada would necessitate extradition papers.

The district attorney charged that Fortier fired the second shot "to make sure," knowing that Tallen was the only face-to-face witness of the robbery, and feeling that he must be slain. The prisoner was not being charged when this shot was discharged into the storekeeper's body, according to the testimony, said Mr. Tufts.

Mr. Tierney spent a long time, declared the district attorney, in seeking to show that the police maltreated and abused the prisoner. He contended that, handcuffed and hurried into the police machine, the defendant was, he seemed in all reason to have been injured by falling, as the officers testified.

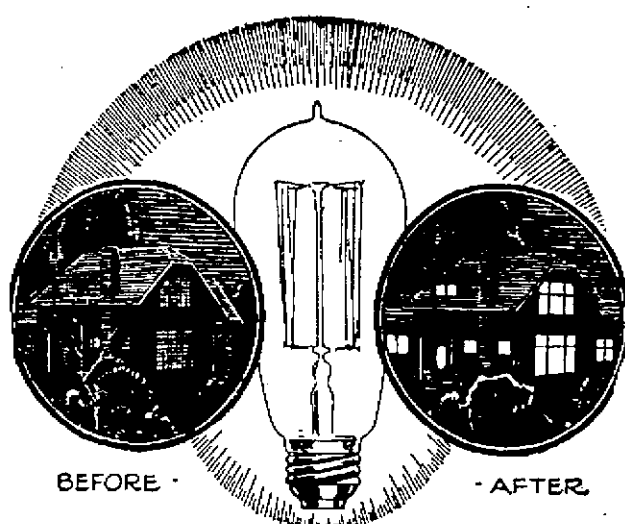

The district attorney stigmatized as charge of Fortier's outfit overseas

"absolutely worthless" the Binet test, unless the patient is "bona fide," and he told the jury that every expert, for either side has agreed to this on the stand.

Aside from the Binet test, said Mr. Tufts, on what does the defence rest its argument of insanity or imbecility. First, he stated, the testimony of Fortier's mother. "I didn't have the heart to cross-examine her," he said, but added that he didn't think all she said was "quite so." "But he thought she was doing what any mother would do. He instanced her statement that her sister was at an asylum in Quebec, and was not in her right mind. Dr. Marois, he recalled to the minds of the jurors, said that this sister was not mentally affected, had been suffering merely from rickets, a disease of the feet, and was kept by the Grey Nuns because physically incapacitated from working."

He questioned whether the officers in the district attorney's outfit overseas

The title of this play is suggestive of its barbaric and powerful tale. A tale of the sea, in which a good woman's love conquers brutality. This picture alone is worth many times the price of admission. Lavishly produced in 8 acts.

Episode 13 of "THE PURPLE RIDERS;" Episode 6 of "THE AVENGING ARROW" with RUTH ROLAND; JIMMY AUBREY in "HIS JONAH DAY," a comedy, and a short western feature with a well-known star.

Asking whether Fortier, with his associations, and having drawn the wages he has drawn, would not know a fifty-cent piece, would not be able to count to five, would not be able to give the days of the week, the district attorney queried:

"Are you men going to swallow that stuff?"

He characterized the defendants as "three gangsters, ready to kill if necessary."

"If the time has come when men can go out with guns in their pockets to rob and steal, he said, and can get away with it, let's know now."

The defendants were asked, at the conclusion of the district attorney's argument, whether they desired to address the jury personally. Judge Cox explained to them that they were privileged to do this in accordance with an old custom. After considerable hesitation, Fortier replied "No" twice, in an almost inaudible voice which was practically a whisper. Emilie answered "No" also after a pause.

SENATE PROBE OF RAILROADS

Increase in Freight Rates Did Not Bring Drop in R. R.
Freight Business

Julius Kruttschnitt Cross-examined by Senators at Hearing

WASHINGTON, May 12.—Under cross-examination today before the senate investigating committee, Julius Kruttschnitt, chairman of the board of the Southern Pacific Co., insisted that the recent increase in freight rates had not operated to bring about a drop in railroad freight business. The only trouble is, he said, that the increase in rates came simultaneously with the depression in general business.

Remarking that the rates (unpublished) transportation, Senator Townsend, republican, Michigan, said there was doubt that anything justified an over-charge by the railroads.

"I don't believe there is any over-charge by the railroads in rates," said Mr. Kruttschnitt. "There is a limit below which you cannot go. The 15 years the roads have been running down hill under the policy of rate reduction."

"Don't put it into the record as a matter of fact, would have been in a better position to do so, but I have been asked to do so, and I have not."

state commerce commission and reductions brought about.

"All these claims for reduction bear the earmarks of a well planned propaganda on the present rate structure. The fact is that commodities for which the producers now receive very little are taxed so very greatly by middle-men and retailers that consumers must pay altogether disproportionate prices, while the transportation charges are very small parts of the increases."

Senator Pomeroy said he had no doubt that the retailers' profit and the constant statements of labor leaders that there should be no reduction in war wages had most to do with the situation.

"It is all the intermediate profit-takers," Mr. Kruttschnitt said. Before going into the question of freight rates, Senator Townsend questioned the witness about government control.

"You think one factor in bringing the roads to their present condition was neglect of maintenance during the period of federal control?" he asked.

"I do," Mr. Kruttschnitt replied. "Was there any action on the part of railroad employees to retard or injure operations under federal control?"

"No action, though there was a great fall in their interest in the work when the workers began to transfer their attention to the extra authority in Washington and away from their local offices and local lines."

70 DESTROYERS ANCHOR IN HUDSON RIVER

NEW YORK, May 12.—Seventy destroyers attached to the Atlantic fleet—one of the greatest assemblages of craft of this type ever seen in an American port—today dropped anchor in the Hudson river.

Headed by the cruiser Rochester, flagship of Rear Admiral A. H. Robertson, and accompanied by four repair and supply vessels, the six squadrons passed down the river today.

They will depart for Newport, R. I., from their winter port of Charleston, S. C., to take orders and then return home. They will depart for Newport May 20.

KILLED IN CAMBRIDGE

Clarence Boothby Victim of Automobile Accident In Massachusetts Avenue

Clarence Boothby, 18, living at 105 School street, this city, was killed almost instantly as the result of an automobile accident in Massachusetts avenue, Cambridge, about 12:30 yesterday noon. His body is now at Littlefield's undertaking rooms in Cambridge, awaiting an investigation by the Cambridge medical examiner.

According to the story told by the police of Division 2 of Cambridge, Boothby was coming down Massachusetts avenue at the time of the accident, and directly behind him was a seven and a half ton truck owned by Louis Soverinsky of Foxland street, Cambridge, and driven by Arthur Myott of Cambridge. The driver of the truck, in endeavoring to turn from Massachusetts avenue into Harvard street, ran into the rear of the motorcyclist and a collision occurred in which Boothby was thrown from his machine. The ambulance was summoned from the Lowell youth was dead before he reached the hospital.

Boothby lived in School street with Arno L. Kliney and was employed as a papermaker. He was 15 years old last September.

NEUTRALITY PROCLAIMED

Allies Put Constantinople, Bosphorus and Dardanelles
In Neutral Zone

PARIS, May 12.—The allied high commissioners, generals and admirals, have decided to proclaim the neutrality of Constantinople, the Bosphorus and the Dardanelles while the war between Turkey and Greece continues. Despatches say from the Turkish capital. As a consequence, there will be unable to use Constantinople as a base any longer, and will be forced to reduce her activities there as a minimum which will be fixed by the allies. She will also be asked to send her warships outside of territorial waters.

As a result of this step, Greece will be able to supply her troops on the front and draw troops only by way of the Aegean.

DRYS HIT BEER RULING

"Beer is Not a Tonic, But is Tentonic," Declares W. B.
Wheeler

WASHINGTON, May 12.—Weir and drys lined up today before the house judiciary committee in a fight over Chairman Volstead's bill designed to turn off the beer spigot which drys claim has been pried open by the ruling of Attorney General Palmer permitting use of beer as a medicine.

The drys had the first innings. Wayne B. Wheeler, counsel for the Anti-Saloon league, opening the discussion. He declared beer could be described in no other way than by calling it "boozie." And as such, he added, it must go the way of its near relative, whiskey.

"Beer is not a tonic," he shouted at one point; "it is a Tonic!" He then referred to the congressional investigation of the German-American alliance and its connection with the brewing interests.

He said the beer prohibition was a plain subterfuge; that it was an evident move to get around the 18th amendment.

PAUL CROCKER DIES IN SALEM HOSPITAL

SALEM, May 12.—Paul Crocker of Hingham, who maintained a summer home at Marblehead Neck, died today at the Salem hospital. He was taken there a week ago suffering with heart trouble.

Mr. Crocker was 45 years of age. He had been a cripple many years. In 1915 he married his nurse, Mary Crocker, and the following year instituted divorce proceedings which were still pending when he died.

THEODORE, May 12.—Paul Crocker was a son of the late Charles F. Crocker, a Hingham paper manufacturer and member of the prominent Hingham family. He was graduated from Harvard college in 1892. He was from 1905 to 1910 and Philadelphia and the H. A. M. to head for general agent and was in charge of the Hingham branch of the North Atlantic station in Boston. He was survived by four brothers, Rev. William F. Crocker of New York, Abner Crocker, Elder of New York, and George Crocker, a banker at Harvard and the H. A. M. and Kendall Crocker, both of Hingham, a sister, Mrs. Elsie South, wife of Rev. E. W. South of Cambridge, and another brother, Bartley Crocker of this city, and a half sister, Miss Elsie South of New York.

PHYSICIANS PROTEST

Object to Being Classed as Business Men and Paying Increase in Tel. Rates

BOSTON, May 12.—Physicians from all parts of the metropolitan district registered a protest against being classed as business men and paying a 50 per cent increase in telephone rates at a hearing held today under the direction of the state department of public utilities. William A. Morse, who appeared as counsel for the physicians, said the medical profession had never been treated as a business and should not be treated so now. He charged that agents of the telephone company had threatened physicians with the removal of their telephones unless they agreed to transfer their service from the residential to the business classification.

NEW YORK, May 12.—Directors of the Southern Railway company, at their semi-annual meeting today, took no action on the semi-annual dividend of 2½ per cent on preferred stock due at this time.

JUDGE LINDSEY AGREES TO PAY $500 FINE

DENVER, Colo., May 12.—Ben R. Lindsey, judge of Denver's juvenile court, announced today that he would pay a fine of $500 and $25 costs for contempt of court, thus ending a six-year controversy.

He was adjudged in contempt by Judge John Perry of the district court in 1915. Judge Lindsey had refused to disavow what Ned Wright, a 11-year-old juvenile court ward, had told him about murder of the father.

The boy's mother was tried for the murder and acquitted. Judge Lindsey refused to obey the court's order because he said if he did he would be betraying the confidence of a child.

In deciding to pay out of his own funds he declined aid proffered by bar associations, boys' clubs, civic and other organizations and individuals.

"I have no regrets," he said. "I have no regrets as to what I did. No regrets as to what I did. No regrets as to what I did."

WASHINGTON, May 12.—Germany's acceptance of the allied reparations demands has promptly stimulated interest of American business in German trade possibilities. There has been a marked increase in the number of inquiries to the state department concerning trade restrictions. Secretary Hughes has replied in effect that with the exception of a few articles and a few restrictions, American may trade with Germany business freely.

NO COMPULSORY VOTING

BOSTON, May 12.—A bill providing for compulsory voting at all regular elections was killed today when the house accepted a committee report providing for further investigation of the subject.

WASHINGTON, May 12.—Changes in the emergency tariff and anti-dumping bill from the form in which it was passed yesterday in the senate will be sought by the house ways and means committee. Representative Young, republican, North Dakota, announced today.

White velvet is having a tremendous vogue and most of the time it is dotted with variously colored chenille.

To Declare National Emergency Exists

NEW YORK, May 12.—Winthrop L. Marvin, secretary of the American Steamship Owners' association, announced today that Pacific coast operators had telegraphed Secretary of Commerce Hoover and Admiral Benson of the shipping board urging them to request President Harding to declare that a national emergency existed in the nation-wide shipping strike. The telegram recommended that the government take over the manning of vessels if the strikers refused to return to work within 48 hours.

Clara Hamon Relinquishes Claim

LOS ANGELES, May 12.—A settlement was effected today by which Clara Smith Hamon relinquished all claim to the estate of Jake L. Hamon, of whose murder she was recently acquitted by an Oklahoma jury, it was announced by her attorney, J. B. Champion.

Austria Recognizes Obregon Government

MEXICO CITY, May 12.—Recognition has been accorded the Obregon government of Mexico by the Austrian republic, says a cablegram received at the foreign office here.

Invites Foch to Land at Boston

BOSTON, May 12.—Mayor Peters today cabled Marshal Foch an invitation to land at this port if he makes the trip to the United States that he has been reported recently to have under consideration. "Boston, the birthplace of American liberty, is the port through which the marshal of France should enter the United States," the message said.

Incendiaries Blamed for Big Fire

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y., May 21.—Incendiaries were blamed by the police for a fire which today caused thousands of dollars' damage to the home and art collections of Elmer B. Garney, internationally known artist. No estimate of the damage could be made in the absence of Mr. Garney, who is returning with Mrs. Garney from a tour of the Orient.

Miss Meli, Ponzi's Manager, Acquitted

BOSTON, May 12.—Miss Lucy Meli, the youthful office manager who handled most of the millions that Charles Ponzi took in as investments in his quick-rich scheme, was acquitted in the municipal court today on a charge of larceny. Miss Florence McDonald, a Back Bay milliner, preferred the charge as a result of her deposit with Miss Meli of $1000 for purchase of Ponzi's notes. It developed that Ponzi's business was closed before the transaction was completed and Miss McDonald's money with other funds was put into the Hanover Trust Co., which was closed subsequently.

MANY INQUIRIES ON TRADE RESTRICTIONS

WASHINGTON, May 12.—Germany's acceptance of the allied reparations demands has promptly stimulated interest of American business in German trade possibilities. There has been a marked increase in the number of inquiries to the state department concerning trade restrictions. Secretary Hughes has replied in effect that with the exception of a few articles and a few restrictions, American may trade with Germany business freely.

PHILADELPHIA, May 13.—The will of Mrs. William L. McLean, wife of the publisher of the Philadelphia Evening Bulletin, which was probated today, leaves $100,000 to Princeton university in memory of her son, Warden McLean, of the class of 1912, who was killed in the war.

NATIONAL CONVENTION OF CORNELL GRADUATES

CLEVELAND, May 13.—Cornell university graduates from many cities gathered here today to talk over school memories, boost the interests of their college and discuss educational topics. It is said to be the first national convention of alumni ever held away from the seat of the alma mater. The slogan of the convention is "Don't just get educated—keep educated."

"There has been much criticism of college curriculums on the ground that college men specialize too much," J. P. Harris, president of the Associated alumni of Cornell said. "Many educators feel that proper safeguarding of the best in American education calls for more attention to culture. The subject will be threshed out at the convention."

Prof. Paul Shorey of the University of Chicago and Dr. James Parker Hall, dean of law at the same university, were on the morning program for addresses on "Cultural versus materialistic education." Acting President Albert W. Smith of Cornell university, is scheduled to speak on "Cornell."

Romeyn Berry, graduate manager of athletics, will preside at a banquet tonight. Five hundred members of Cornell clubs are expected. Special cars bringing the college men from New York, Chicago, Buffalo, Pittsburgh, Detroit and Akron were met by Cleveland graduates.

Tao-Ke Alfred See, Chinese minister to the United States, who was graduated from Cornell in 1901, will arrive tomorrow. He will address the convention on "International Influence of American Education."

The convention will continue through tomorrow.

BUSINESS PROBLEMS TO BE DISCUSSED

The most profitable ways of advertising will be discussed in a lecture in Memorial hall tonight, under the direction of the chamber of commerce, by G. W. Sully of Dayton, Ohio. Mr. Sully is a recognized expert and organizer. In his talk he will attempt to show how proper advertising can change a non-paying into a paying business and how newspaper advertising is the most satisfactory of all forms of publicity. The speaker will also show how cooperation and organization make for a better community or city. He will show practical improvement in service and store organization that please the general public and draw trade. He will tell how system enables a merchant to know at all times about the conditions of his business instead of guessing. Six thousand feet of moving picture film will accompany Mr. Sully's lecture. There will be no charge for admission.

SALLIES ENTHUSIASTIC DESPITE RAIN

Heavy rain today halted for the time being the work of gathering funds in the Salvation Army drive, but did not dampen the enthusiasm of the workers, who, it is stated, are to keep at their task until the full amount that they have set out to raise is in hand.

Tomorrow at noon all of the workers are to gather in the chamber of commerce rooms for a luncheon and general discussion of plans.

Within the past five years no less than 37 young girls from 15 cities and towns in New England were given refuge at the Evangeline Booth home and maternity hospital conducted by the Salvation Army in Boston, according to figures made public today by the New England provincial headquarters of the army.

The cost of operating this home is about $30,000 each year and of this sum, only a very small amount is received in fees from the girls who are accommodated there.

No girl, regardless of race or creed, is ever denied admittance, provided there is accommodation and if the girl is without funds or friends no charge is made. The Evangeline Booth home is one of 25 similar homes which the Salvation Army conducts in the United States.
